

K. Unit Trust Managers of the year.*

Top Performer

Perpetual takes The Observer's 1985 Unit Trust Managers of the Year award. A richly deserved award. Its investment team—chairman Martyn Arbib, Bob Yerbury. Scott McGlashan and Martin Rasch have been producing performance plums well for many years . . .

Unit Trust form guide

... Two groups deserve a big hand Perpetual ... achieved a 100% record in both periods (one year and three years): All their trusts

SUNDAY TIMES -th May 86

Impressive

... Perpetual has the most impressive track record, hitting the top spot over the ten-year, nine-year, eight-year and five-year periods with two second places, one third, one fourth and one seventh.

THE TIMES 5th July No

Highest Marks

Perpetual comes out of the comparison with the highest marks. With the sole exception of the International Emerging Companies which talls into the near miss category, all the other long term funds in the group appear in the top quartile, both over the long term as well as the short term. MONEY MAGAZINE August No

THE PURPLE SHOW THE PROPERTY OF THE POST O

Two New Funds

On November 1st, Perpetual, one of the U.K.'s most successful unit trust managers, will be launching two new funds. To make sure you get your advance copies of the prospectuses fill in the coupon today.

N.B. All figures as at 19th August 1986. Figures are based on offer price of units and include net re-invested income. Offshore funds are quoted in U.S. Dollars. You should remember that the punits congo down as well as up and that past performance is not a quarantee of future success.

International Growth Fund
In the eleven years since launching the Group's first unit trust in the United Kingdom, Perpetual has earned an enviable reputation for consistent investment success. The top authorised fund over the eleven year period to 19th August 1986.

The Offshore International Growth Fund

is an international unit trust based on the same immensely successful investment philosophy as the U.K. based International Growth Fund.

Launched on the 23rd January 1983, the Fund invests in a wide spread of leading companies from the world's principal stock markets.

The Offshore International Growth Fund

since launch on 23rd January 1983

2,851%

For more specialist investors:

The Offshore American Growth Fund UP 102.5%

The Offshore Emerging UP 86.6%

since launch on the 21st April 1984 - investing in stock markets of North America since faunch on 8th April 1985 - investing internationally in will be considered). Please tick box ☐ Offshore International Growth Fund ☐ Offshore American Growth Fund ☐ Offshore Emerging Compunies Fund ☐ Prospectuses of the two new funds

To: Perpetual Unit Trust Management (Jersey) Limited, PO Box 459. Norwish Union House, Church Street, St Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands.

Perpetual

Vol. 135 No. 14 Week ending October 5, 1986

PRESIDENT REAGAN can now

Moscow means that a pre-Christmas superpower summit has be-come a virtual certainty. But the end of the Daniloff affair has done more than lift a heavy pall over US-Soviet relations: it may well turn out to have cleared the air in a way that will make it easier, in future, for the two superpowers to tackle the im-mensely complex agenda that will continue to confront them beyond the next summit.

Certainly Nicholas Daniloff's re-

POLARIS

ease must be interpreted as con-

TRIDENT

Labour defence line worries US

AS the political conference season continued in Britain, the became clear that defence would be one of the main issues at the next general election — and that both the liberal and Social Democratic Alliance and the Labour Party would have great difficulty in getting their respective acts together to make a credible case to put before voters. Labour is committed to unilateral nuclear disarmament, but in a television interview on Monday, the day the Labour conference opened in Blackpool, Mr Denis Healey, the shadow foreign secretary, indicated that if the rest of Nato wanted it he would not rule out absolutely retention of American nuclear weapons in Britain. The party leader, Mr Neil Kinnock, in the same programme emphasised his commitment to a non-nuclear Britain but also stressed the need to strengthen conventional defences.

Against the advice of the Liberal leadership, Liberals voted at their assembly for a non-nuclear defence for Britain, which puts them at odds with the other half of the Alliance, the SDP, who voted at their conference to continue the nuclear commitment. The voted at their conference to continue the nuclear commitment. The Conservative Party conference has yet to take place.

The American Defence Secretary, Mr Caspar Weinberger, is worried by the Labour attitude. "I think that it would be taking quite a chance with the people's liberty and freedoms and the independence of Britain and the future of Europe if, for an independent nuclear deterrent that does play a major role in keeping the peace, you substitute what was called in world war one, and later in world war two under similar circumstances, a piece of paper." Dismantling Britain's deterrent and romoval of American nuclear weapons would be "an invitation to attack".

The summit back on course safely look forward to a fireside chat with Mikhail Gorbachov in tween East and West.

With this glimpse of the future,
the US Secretary of State, George
Shultz, set to work with the Soviet Foreign Minister, Eduard Shevardasdze, to solve the Daniloff case. They were able to set aside the formality of their occasional, carefully organised meetings, and to see each other in New York this past week on an analysis of their past week on their past week on the almost daily basis. They were able, it seems, to find a formula that would satisfy honour on both sides.

It may turn out that Daniloff's anguish in Moscow will not have boen in vain, and that the price that Moscow is willing to pay for extracting Gennady Zakharov, the Russian now in US custody, includes freedom for at least some prominent Soviet dissidents. Mr Gorbachev must have been

US BASES

NATO

Strengthen the European pillar

Suppor

Promote new firmation that both superpowers now believe that the log-jam in arms control negotiations has been proken, and that enough progress nas been made on intermediate closely involved in the solution that has now been found. But it nucleur weapons negotiations may never be known whether Mr Gorbachev was consulted by the KGB before they swooped on Daniloff a month ago on the Lenin Hills moments after an acquaintthe nuclear arms race — to use the summit as an essential marker towards new trenties designed to reduce the balance of terror be-

CRUISE

ance had handed him an envelope containing maps marked "secret".

Prosident Roagan, then still holidaying in California, did not apparently spot immediately that Daniloff's arrest would provoke a passionate outery against Soviet "hostage-taking". Inclutiously, he let it be known that he would consider a straight Daniloff-Zakharov trade-off.

The Russians delayed their reply. President Resgan's political antennae came forward. He realised that his domestic backyard was domanding toughness, not appeasement, and that the anti-summitteers and anti-arms controllers had found in Daniloff a wonderful justification for their cause. The Kremlin, too, appears to have understood that the Daniloff affair had become a smoking gun. All the evidence points to the assumption that Mr Gorbachev tion operation. And at the end of the day, and in spite of the explusion of 25 Soviet officials at the UN, both sides decided enough

ARMS CONTROL

Promote test moratorium

and weapons-free zone

Seek multifateral cuts

Stop testing and work for European weapons-free zone

Party in need of a convincing salesman

By David Fairhail

IF ever anything called for a pre-emptive strike, it is the Labour Party's campaign to sell its radi-cal, non-nuclear defence policy to the United States and the other Nato allies who would have to live

A paradox of the current party political debates on defence is that while the Liberal-SDP Alliance writhes in agony over just one aspect of its policy — how to make up its mind on a replacement for Polaris submarine missile force — Labour acts as if its own much more drastic proposals could be carried through with no more than a polite exchange of diplomatic notes between London, Washington and Brussels.

"Dear Pentagon, You may have noticed that we have had had a change of government here in London. Would you be kind snough to remove all your nuclear weapons from British territory by the end of next month. Hoping this does not disrupt any of your other Nato plans, Yours sincerely . . ."

This week's television appearance by the US Defence Secretary, Mr Caspar Weinberger, and his assistant, Mr Richard Perle, shows how misguided such a complacent attitude would be. Their respective up of Nato and is in any case an enormous "if".

Limit deployment under "dual key" Maintain under ALLIANCE Cance Continue Nato Continue to deployment Phase out for Trident CONSERVATIVE present rules Maintain without Cancel In its statement on Defence and Security in Britain, the national executive talks confidently about Army's nuclear artillery to the wildly irresponsible.

But if this is the sort of language they are using publicly now, at the mere prospect of a non-nuclear Britain, imagine what they would say and do behind the scenes if the prospect became an immediate reality. The sort of bullying that went on over New Zealand's decision not to receive nuclear war-ships would be as nothing to the diplomatic rough house that would break out if the United States' direct superpower relationship with the USSR and is leadership of a nuclear-based Nato were suddenly threatened by a discor-dant British voice.

THE PARTY

POLICIES

LABOUR

One of the crucial features of Labour's nuclear policy by com-parison with the Alliance's is that t proposes the total rejection not only of domestic systems like Polaria, but a Nato programme like the US cruise missiles at Greenham Common, in which the Americans have invested a great deal of political capital and which directly implage on their arms control relationship with the Soviet Union.

Not that Labour's policy is necessarily unworkable. On the contrary, one can already see ways through the Nato minefield if only comments are that Labour's policy the ground has been carefully would be likely to lead to the break surveyed beforehand. But that is ling Trident should be no great hassle (and that, of course, goes for Labour too). Putting Greenham Common's cruise missiles under "dual key" control would be awkward, but not something the Americans could easily object to in principle, since they would certain-ly do the same if roles were executive talks confidently about using the key British postings in Nato to work for change, rather than opting out as the French did. That's all right provided you realise that the other two key members of the Alliance, the Americans and the Germans, may not be interested in working with a government that does not share their basic policy objectives.

Even the Alliance's relatively modest proposals for nuclear change are more than enough for one Parliamentary lifetime — and that with a solid majority. Cancelchange are more than enough for one Parliamentary lifetime — and that with a solid majority. CancelUS nuclear weapons in this coun-

There are several current precedents for the Americans producing weapons for possible use in Europe which are stockpiled in the United States and could only be transferred across the Atlantic in a crisis subject to consultation. Neu-tron bombs and binary nerve gas munitions both fall into this cate-Creating some sort of "minimum gory and the bombs on US Air European deterrent" with the French to replace Polaris — if and Upper Hoyford could be added that's the way the Alliance policy debate works out — raises all sorts handled. The Poseidon submarine. that's the way the Alliance policy debate works out — raises all sorts of problems, but if necessary the initiative could quietly be abandoned. A nuclear-free zone in West Germany could be unliaterally created by handing back Rhine and Upper Hoylord could be added to it if the issue was properly handed. The Poseidon submarine base at Holy Loch could be removed on the practical grounds that the much greater range of the Trident system makes it redundant. Cancellation of our own on the basis that cuts in conven-tional defence would otherwise be necessary. None of this need be represented as a crude policy of "Yanka go home".

Cruise missiles could be more difficult, but the prospect of an arms control deal that makes the second base at Molesworth unnecessary obviously helps (see page 7). If Labour is not satisfied with the Alliance's "dual key" veto, the diplomatic key here is to remember that this is a Nato programme, not an American one, even though not an American one, even though the Tomahawk missiles are UStiated through Nato channels.

There is only one man in the Labour leadership fully qualified to do the selling job Labour's policy so desperately needs, and that is Denis Healey. His response to hearing that Mr Perle thought it "wildly irresponsible" was to de-scribe the US official as "a middleranking pipsqueak". The former Labour defence and foreign secretary is as tactless as ever, but he has the intellectual standing, background and contacts to prepare American and European opinion for Labour's bombshell. Mr Kinnock might do well to cancel his own forthcoming US tour and

1. Terrorism is a recent phenomenon. Although its international character was made possible by modern means of communication (especially the media coverage) and its devastating effects are due to new means of destruction (powerful bombs, etc) terrorism as such has always existed. For instance, the word "guerrilla" was intro-duced in the French language when French occupation forces were confronted with the Spanish popular uprising against the Napo-leonic Empire.

2. Terrorism is a one-way phe-nomenon: i.e. armed militants versus the State apparatus, ordinary citizens being the victims most of the time. Actually, it is a vicious circle. To confront terrorism, States become increasingly repressive themselves. In some cases, it is a good example of such a is the State which terrorizes the deadlock. civilian population for political most of any eventual settlement.

Accepting that with the inevita-

The second anniversary of the the December anniversary. Bhopal industrial disaster is rapidbility of an unfolding Greek attention on the voiceless victims, tragedy the main characters in would stop them from being used this drams must proceed through as purely pawns in the inevitable positive, step be taken to help the the victims (without any party victims in a timely manner. This having to shift from positions could easily be effected in time for taken in the other, the legal,

THE GUARDIAN WEEKLY

Copyright ⁶ 1988 by Guardian Publications Ltd., 119 Farringdon Road, London, England. All rights reserved. Letters to the Editor and other editorial correspondence to: The Guardian Weekly, PO Box 19, Cheedie, Cheehirs, SK8 100, England.
Subscription enquiries to the Circulation Manager, The Guardian Weekly, 164 Desnegate, Manchester, M40 2RR, England.
Advertisement enquiries to the Advertisement Manager, The Guardian Weekly, 119 Farringdon Road, London, England.

United Kingdom £29.00, Eire £31.50
AIR EDITION: Europe, Middle East, North Africa £33.00;

Americas, Africa (except North), Asia, Malaysia, Indonesia £35.50; Australasia, Far East, Pacific £36.50.

Let us send a Gift Subscription to your Irland — and a Gift Card with your best wishes.

nciose payment of £ s of Viso, Access, MasterCard, and American Express cards may subscriptions charged to their accounts. "Plasso debit my Visa/Access/MasterCard/American Express Account No.

October 5: 1986

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES

To: Circulation Manager, The Guerdian Weekly, 164 Deansgals, Manchester M60 2RR, England. Please mail The Guardian Weekly for one year to:

ardholder's Signature

Card Expiry Date ..

4. Terrorism is an alien threat

Generally speaking, terrorism cannot be legitimate and terrorists do deserve severe punishments. Nevertheless, before choosing blind repression as the illusion of a solution, let's try to understand why terrorism is prospering at all, then determine intelligent and effective ways of coping with it.

Mr Philippe Jolly, I bis rue Louis Blanc, 92190-Meudon,

Why safety must come first on the flight deck

Your report (Sept 28) on the inquest into the Manchester air disaster leaves an uneasy feeling that British Airways may be concentrating more on presentation than on policies in response to the lessons of the incident.

For instance, fitting flame resistant seat covers is obviously sensible, but how long will it take to equip the whole BA fleet in this way, and what, if anything, is going to be done about the seat filling materials?

The US Federal Aviation Authority has ordered manufacturers and airlines to use safer materials for cabin walls. Will this order be accepted by BA in the UK? Will it

Support is now being given in principle to the introduction of smoke hoods for all passengers. cations could drag on for years. On every flight the passengers are subjected to the meaningless ritual of the lifejacket demonstration. How many billions of miles have these jackets travelled in the last constitutional right "to bear arms"

in the United States.
As Michael White indicates, the notion that individual Americans have the right to maintain a private arsenal is based on the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution. That Amendment states that "A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to bear arms shall not be infringed." This is the amendment in its entirety.

At the time that the American

Constitution was being considered there were grave fears that the national government would, one way or another, abolish the State

milities and leave the States at the mercy of a national standing army.

To allay this fear, the Second Amendment was presented to the States for ratification by the first session of the first Congress, and was quickly ratified by the States, coming into effect in 1791, The United States Supreme Court has held, in the few cases on the issue that have ever reached the Supreme Court, that there is no Constitutional right to bear arms privately. (Presser vs Illinois 116 US 252 [1886], United States

Michael Miller notes, the potent lobbying of the National Rifle

Association that keeps reasonable vs Miller, 307 US 174 [1939]:)

20 years, and when, if ever, have they been used to save lives? Meanwhile, the far more important risk of fire is largely ignored. Maybe, the airlines didn't want to disturb us too much by even mentioning this terrifying subject. But now we have all seen and heard in graphic detail precisely what is involved in an aircraft fire, and want some action. What about setting a deadline for a decision on

Finally, the Manchester disaster emphasised the need for a substantial redundancy margin in the provision of safety exits. Some seats are to be removed from 737s as a result. But it was less than two years ago that BA blocked up two of the safety exits on their 747 jumbo jets, flying in the face of the opinion of some safety experts and contrary to the policies of many of the world's other leading sirlines. Will BA now reverse this policy decision as well? I, for one, will be reluctant to fly BA again until

Regarding Michael White's insensitive "post haste" comment on the Oklahoma post office massacre (Liberty and the pursuit of good ness, Sept 7) would the Guardian describe a similar shooting by a deranged newspaperman as "accu-

Michael White's article (US

finally admits H bomb error, Sept 7) contains a factual error and a comparison of suspicious intent and dubious nature. Firstly, ten megatons is equivalent to 10 million tons, not one million, of TNT.

Second, the phrase "70 Hiroshimas or 25 Chernobyls" is rather stupid.

Is he suggesting that the Chernobyl explosion had the force of more than two of the type of bom dropped on Hiroshima? Clearly ridiculous. Is he inferring by asso-true. Is he trying to establish in our minds the equivalence of nuclear bombs and nuclear power ciation that the explor Chernobyl was a nuclear one? Not stations? Quite possibly.

L. Poltawski,

St Anthonys,

The divided Basque country

Manhattan Beach

California 90266.

Bomb error

(Dr) G. D. W. Smith,

What the US Constitution

Your man in Washington,
Michael White, has been conned by the gun mob. ("Liberty and the pursuit of goodness" Sept 7). For the individual citizen there is no

says about bearing arms

Healey hints at keeping US missiles

MR DENIS HEALEY reopened one of Labour's bitter defence arguments on Monday when he raised the possibility that a Labour government might allow American nuclear weapons to stay in Britain.

THE GUARDIAN, October 5, 1986

uncontentious affair and that its unilateralist defence policy could be kept in the background. But the

US Defence Secretary, Mr Caspar Weinberger, put paid to that hope with a widely-publicised TV broad-cast in which he predicted that Labour's commitment to evict American nuclear bases would threaten the cohesion of the 16-nation Nato alliance.

The party leader, Mr Neil

Kinnock, had no choice but to reply. Perhaps mindful of employment prospects around the US installations, he explained that Labour would not close American bases capable of being used by nuclear-armed aircraft and missiles, but only those which had stockpiles of nuclear weapons. Nor of a US nuclear umbrella. "I think

Mr Kinnock knows full well that

t would be immoral do so," he

The shadow foreign secretary said he thought it highly unlikely that an alternative would be found to removal - which is now party policy - but he refused to rule it out. His remarks, made in an interview on Panorama on BBC television, are certain to provoke an outburst on the left, where Mr

CLASSIFIED

BOOKS

ANY NEW BOOK sent anywhere Write. Whiteman's Bookshop, 7 Orange Grove, Both, UK, Visn-Mustercard accepted

LONDON HOTELS AND APARTMENTS

FAIRLAWN APARTMENTS

APARTIMENTS

Kensington W11

A temporary Londor home for visitors or families on the move. Short or long lets in comtortable tally equipped service flats, steeping 2-7 from £80 per flat per day. Fully equipped littohen, fridge, china, linen, central heating, hot writer, colour tetevision, included with mald service and private telephone. Push chairs, high chairs and cots or cribe available on request without charge. Babyahing and easy car partifug Baby access to West End and Portobello Road.

Brochure: 109 Elgin Crescent. Kensington, London W11. Tel: 01-229 5006

202 LUXURY SERVICE APARTMENTS FROM £39 per day per apartment LONDON

Self-contained, fully serviced apartments in Kensington — close to park, shops, buses and subways. Colour TV, telephone, equipped kitchen, central heating Modern fuxury at reasonable rates. Car park Brochure by return mail. Quote "G". CHALFONT INVESTMENTS LTD... 202 KENSINGTON, CHURCH STREET, LONDON W8, ENGLAND. Tel: 01-229 5371 (ansafone) 727 7038/229 3056
Telex: 21792 (ref/3564).

Healey's commitment to closure of pool at the conference. Mr American nuclear bases on British Weinberger's remarks are said to have caused some embarrassment Against the background of at-tacks by the Reagan Administra-tion on Labour's policy, his inter-tion on Labour's policy, his interview will be used by some of his vate about their attitude to the party's defence policy.

On Panorama, Mr Weinberger

said that he was worned by the non-nuclear commitment. "I think

dence of Britain and the future of Europe, if for an independent nuclear deterrent that does play a major role in keeping the peace,

you substitute what was called in world war one, and later in world war two under similar circum-

He went on to claim that dismantling Britain's deterrent and removal of American nuclear weapons would be "an invitation to

At his fringe meeting Mr Healey was scathing about the Weinberger view, accusing the US Administration of colluding with stances, a piece of paper."

knew to be a pup."

FOREIGN

EXCHANGES

2 2830-2 2870 20 42-20-45 60.18-60 29

00.18-90.29 1.9890-1.9918 10.96-10.97 9.50-9.52 2.9028-2.9070 11.19-11.20 1.0504-1.0614 2.003-2.011 220.26-220.83

3 2813-3.2857 10.56-10,57 210.94-212 52 -191.37-191.65

9.90-9 92 2.3552-2 3590 1 4335-1 4345 1.3884-1.3902

2 2760-2 2800 20 66-20 89 60 94-61.05

60 94-81-65 1 9960-1 9389 11 93-11 11 9 62-9-64 2 93-2 94 11 18-11 19 1.0719-1 0729 2.032-2.038 221 73-222 10 3 32-3.33 10 65-10-68 211 45-213 04 193-64-193 91 93-79-85 2 3847-2 3857

susceptible to pressure from Wash-Mr Healey denies such charges vigorously. On Monday at a fringe ference, he forthrightly attacked and freedoms and the indepen-Mr Caspar Weinberger, US Defence Secretary, and his assistant, Mr Richard Perle, for their opponents as ovidence that he is that his party will provide the country with an effective defence.

It is a problem he will now share with the Liberals who, at their conference last week, threw their Alliance with the Social Democrats into disarray by voting — albeit narrowly — for a policy stipulating that Britain should develop a non-nuclear defence con-

This decision, taken against the advice of the party leader, Mr David Steel, and most Liberal MPs, would appear to preclude the possibility of an Anglo-French re-placement for the Polaris nuclear deterrent system when it becomes obsolete in the mid-1990s. Since the SDP leader, Dr David Owen, has a cast-iron commitment to Alliance is now in disarray on a subject which, its leaders agree, is

By James Naughtle

soil has always been doubted.

electorally explosive.

tribution to Nato.

would Labour accept the protection develop such a replacement, the

Mr Kinnock knows full well that he will have the problem of trying party a stern lecture on its elector-remarks criticising Labour policy. His Panorama interview came during a programme which included Mr Weinberger's heavily leaked comments on Labour's policy. Mr Healey was asked whether it was possible that the Americans could ersuade a Labour government to allow them to keep nuclear weapons in Britain. He replied: "I don't think the Americans could persuade us, but I think that if we take the alliance seriously we have to listen to what our allies feel as a whole." Asked by his interviewer, "So we could end up keeping America's weapons here if that is what the alliance wanted?" he replied: "I doubt it, but it's not inconceivable." With the party fully committed to a non-nuclear defence policy and to removing all American nuclear weapons — a policy reaffirmed by Mr Neil Kinnock, the party leader, at the weekend — Mr Healey's comments are embarrassing and will cause trouble for Mr Kinnock among some of his opponents on the left.

Mr Kinnock himself was emchatic in the same programmo about his commitment to a nonnuclear Britain, but also to strengthening conventional defence. Speaking with obvious emotion, he said that if he were a soldier he would be prepared to die for his family or his country. But he would nover be prepared to wipe out humanity in a nuclear

Mr Kinnock and Mr Healey are visiting the US in the next few months — Mr Kinnock twice and one of their principal aims will be to try to convince senior officials in the Administration that they would seek, in government, a new stable relationship with the US despite the party's determination to create a non-nuclear Britain.
Senior officials from the US embassy in London are in Black-

THE Labour Party had hoped that its annual conference in Blackpool this week would be a relatively uncontentious affair and that its that his party will provide the month—to the notion of Anglo-French bomb was seen as a humiliating attempt to placate the inflexible Dr Owen, who is thought

> THE WEEK IN BRITAIN by James Lewis

Defence problems plague both Alliance and Labour around which both parties were able to unite, that there was no need to take any binding decisions about Polaris until the early 1990s, by which time the international arms situation could look One of the better things to happen to the Opposition parties has been the appointment of Mrs Edwina Curry as Henith Minister. Brusquely dismissing the evidence, now widely accepted by the medical profession, of causal links five million applicants applied earlier this year. between poverty and ill-health, for shares worth £1.5 billion, The Ministry poor health was due in part to their own ignorance compared with the more enlightened South. The North spent too much monby many grassroots Liberals to be far too big for his boots anyway. Until it was overridden by Dr Owen, the Alliance took the view, ey on chips and potato crisps, she scolded. "We have problems here of high smoking and alcoholism. Some of these problems are things we can tackle by impressing on people the need to look after themselves better. That is somehing which is taken more seriously down South. There is no reason why it cannot be taken seriously up here." She had nothing to say about the findings of a Bristol University study, published the same day, that the region's figures for premature death, permanent sickness and low birth-weight were reinted to its mass unemployment, poor housing and record

Trustee Savings Bank was oversubscribed eight times. Some which means that at least two reported heavy withdrawals by

The Government's scope for stimulating the economy - a course urged by the Rengan administration — was severely limited by a record current account deficit in August of £886 milhon. On this occasion, little of the falling oil prices; the reason was, yards.

ticularly against the German mark, caused a slump in share prices and the Financial Times 30share index fell on Monday by 21 points to 1,212, which is the lowest or seven months. Though the Bank of England intervened in the foreign exchanges, the City clearly believed than a rise in interest rates is now seriously on the cards.

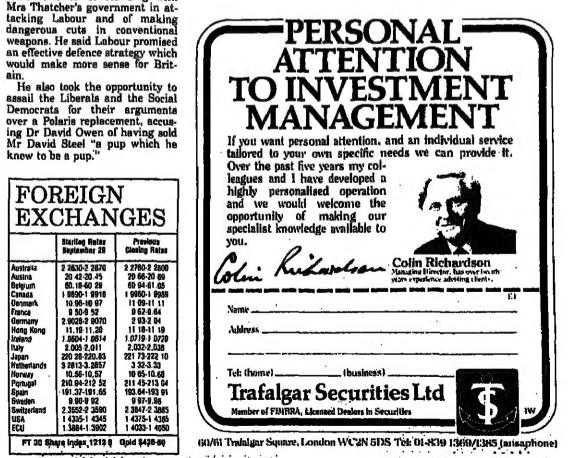

Three directors lost their jobs when Rover, the state-owned car and truck firm, showed a loss of £204 million for the first half of this year. This compares with a deficit of £44.8 million for the comparable period of last year. One of those dismissed was the car division's long-serving chairman and chief executive, Mr Harold Musgrove, who incurred Mrs Thatcher's displeasure when he opposed the Tory plan to sell Austin Rover to Ford of America

The Ministry of Defence nounced that a third of the 18,000 million of the applicants will re- jobs at Britain's two remaining ceive nothing, and many others naval dockyards — at Devenport will receive fewer shares than they (Plymouth) and Rosyth (Fife) had asked for. Building societies are likely to be lost over the next eight years. The news provoked investors who thought that the one-day strikes at the yards, both bank shares were a better proposi- of which are due to be handed over to private management next year. The Government insisted that the planned workforce reductions reflected the lower level of maintenance required on Britain's modern competitive tendering policies which meant that more work was deterioration could be attributed to being carried out by private ship-

HUNTSMANS

When visiting London we invite you to call and see our Hand Tailored Autumn range of Ready-to-Wear Men's Clothing.

Tel. 01-734 7441 11 SAVILE ROW

Unfortunately, recent terrorist (Chile) or racial (South Africa) outrages have once more attracted reasons. It may be one government against our "Free World": Third World fanatics aimed and abetted by Communist plotters! To a cerwhich sponsors terrorist operations against another (see the US support to the "Contra" in Central tain extent, terrorism is indeed the poor man's weapon in the confron-tation of the Third World against the wealthy West: a reaction of despair from people nobody listens to, which can evolve into a gratu-America). History has also witnessed (successful) terrorists becoming heads of State, such as F. Castro or M. Begin. Terrorism is a vague word and it itous murderous frenzy. Nevertheless, terrorism is not only an "external" threat to the West: is only one side of the coin. Playing with words is what makes it con-fusing: the "Resistance" fighters in World War II France were merely Baader-Meinhof were German citizens, weren't they? Besides, it is simplistic to seek a scapegoat as soon as a bomb explodes somewhere. Gunboat diplomacy is a "saboteurs" from the Nazi viewpoint . . . 3. Terrorism is a strictly criminal activity and only technical solutions (surveillance of the popu-lation, repression at all levels, etc) 19th century form of terrorism the USA has chosen to meet the challenges of a complex 20th century crisis affecting the Middleare usually considered to solve the problem. This is a gross mistake in that it is only directed against the violent manifestations of terrorism - not the roots of the phenomenon. Terrorism can become an alibi to the constant reinforcement of the State apparatus. Repression does not solve the problem: it makes terrorism bearable by conquest for suitable political solutions superflous. Northern Ireland

Let Union Carbide be the first to prizciples.

Such an initiative would refocus

Vol. 135 No. 14

PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

Bhopal — the tragedy two years on a chance to demonstrate the genu-

Isopal industrial disaster is rapidly approaching. Yet very little of a concrete nature has been done to help the 200,000 or so victims. They will have to await the outcome of legal proceedings. These are expected to take no less than 15 years, which, based on the average life expectancy figures for the Bhonal area, will mean that a consultance than the international consultance than the international consultance in the legal process. ineness of their humanitarian con-The envisaged Self-help Development Scheme could well become a model for future assistance in similar disaster situations and, who knows, might provide the face-saving escape vehicle for an the Bhopal area, will mean that a consultancy team, who in close large number of the victims will contact with victims and local eventual out-of-court settlement when in two to three years' time have died of natural causes by government would draw up a then. In any case, legal fees and bhopal Development Plan based on Mahatma Gandhian self-help the court proceedings will have ground to an inevitable halt in this most complex of legal cases. Peter B. Rae, Centre of New Economic Studies, 5 Clorane Gardens, the courts — the Indian government because its entire industrialisation programme is under fire and Union Carbide because legal prudence demands it — we would propose that an additional register and the disaster and would provide a first opportunity for all parties now involved (on last count, around 50) to collaborate constructively to the immediate benefit of the distance (without courts). Veterans' fast

Every day since September 1 two US Veterans have been on the steps of the US Capitol, fasting and meeting congressmen and citi-zens. They are doing this out of their sense of outrage and betrayal at what their government is doing in Nicaragua and other Central American countries. Since September 15, two other Veterans have joined this "fast forlife" in front of the United Nations' Building in New York.

Their leader, Charles Liteky (00) is no ordinary service man. He holds the highest US award for bravery, the Congressional Medal of Honour, for repeatedly risking his life to save twenty wounded US reldiers during a bettle in the soldiers during a battle in the Vietnam War. He was at that time Vietnam War. He was at that time a Roman Catholic US Army Chaplain. The other three men are:
George Mizo (40), Trenton, New Jersey, US Army (Vietnam); Brian Willson (45), Vermont, US Airforce (Vietnam); Duncan Muranis Airforce (Vietnam); Duncan Muranis Michael Dobbs's article on the Basque region, a division mous Basque region, a division which here is even likened rather unrealistically, to the Protestant unrealistically, to the Protestant of the Michael Dobbs's article on the Basque region, a division which here is even likened rather unrealistically, to the Protestant unrealistically, to the Protestant of the Michael Dobbs's article on the Basque region, a division which here is even likened rather unrealistically, to the Protestant unrealistically, to the Protestant of the Michael Dobbs's article on the Basque region, a division which here is even likened rather unrealistically, to the Protestant of the Michael Dobbs's article on the Basque region, a division which here is even likened rather to the Protestant of the P Airforce (Vietnam); Duncan Murphy (66), US Army Ambulance Corps (World War II).

Only, the public broadcasting system has reported on the fast in the United States. The commercial media are ignoring it so far.

.. C. G. Gifford, DFC, National Chairman, (Canadian) Veterans Against Nuclear Arms Halifax, Nova Scotia.

sented what is known as "Euskal Herria" which can be roughly translated as the Homeland of the Basque People. It didn't though, show the political line which divides the Spanish part of this area into two separate regions. Evaluate the ancient kingdom of Navarre. Society in Navarre is deeply divided as to whether the province -should become part of the autono-from the Socialists and rightwing parties to woo public opinion sway from unity with the Basque region probably because an independent Basque country would be much more viable with Navarre's important agricultural wealth.

into two separate regions. Euskal, the autonomous Basque area and Nigel Bowles, Pamplona, ... Navarre, Spain

THE Westminster Lobby system is facing a challenge from the the traditional relationship be-tween political journalists and Downing Street. The Parliamentary Lobby practice of non-attribution in such briefings. "It is not a matter for me," he said. "It is a matter for the Guardian and

Mr Ingham attends briefings at the Lobby's invitation and is was not a matter for him. Mr correspondents attending are obliged by the Lobby's rules not

Mr Bernard Ingham, the to identify Downing Street as of the system and he believed rime Minister's press secrethe source of their information, the time when it could be Prime Minister's press secre-tary, said that he had no pro-posals for changing the existing allowing Mr Ingham to be idenallowing Mr Ingham to be iden-tified, it is believed likely that he would no longer attend.

Guardian seeks lobby reform

In an exchange of letters last week, Mr Preston informed Mr Ingham of the Guardian's intentions and Mr Ingham said that Preston said journalists had become increasingly distrustful the time when it could be defended was past.

The Lobby will now have to decide how to respond to the Guardian's statement. A number of correspondents are strongly in favour of reform, but many others are opposed and past efforts at radical reform have foundered. No meetings are scheduled until the return of the Commons in Octo-

In recent years, some reforms ing regular on-the-record briefings with Opposition lead-ers — but the traditional nonattributability of daily Downing Street briefings has been main

Two years ago Mr Ingham made it clear to the Lobby committee that an on-the record system was not acceptable to him.

Mr Preston said: "I hope that editors and correspondents or other papers and in broadcast ing organisations will suppor us in this effort at reform.

Putting the Prime Minister's views on the record be real mysteries a long time ago but the veil, though threadbare, has not yet been lifted properly. The funny old institution has still tried to cling to its dignity. That self-conscious dignity was once based on genuine secrecy.

Only a couple of decades ago the senior figure of the Lobby would move through the Commons corridors like surrogate ministers, accepting confidences, blending naturally into the landscape, and guarding their rules with the iron discipline of a Masonic lodge. That's gone now, but the centrepiece of the system, the daily sessions with Downing Street officials, has remained.

The trouble is that the tantalising glimpse into the Lobby world afforded every time there is a public fuss has resulted in more curiosity, and more misinforma-tion. It's against that background that a large number of journalists at Westminster want to modernise the system. The self-respect that used to enforce secrecy now demands reform.

The Parliamentary Lobby Journalists no longer indulge in the more quaint antics of their progenitors — the coded references to party leaders as Blue Mantle and Red Mantle — to conceal the existence of briefings or the ancient and ridiculous instruction to members to avoid running after miniscase of causing offence.
Such daftness has long since

JIM PRIOR is one of the decent men of the last decade, and as such he has been a rarity in high biography, now being extensively serialised in the Observer before appearing formally between hard covers, is a political event of some importance: the first substantial effort by any of the 20 ministers who have left Mrs Thatcher's story. But its main political inter-

As the serialisation has already shown, the decent man cannot always contain himself. Happily, a certain venom spices his memories of government. For a Tory to do this kind of thing to colleagues to grapple with BL's demands for still in place — even though he is far from being a Crossman or a thought it should not have. "Poor Castle — is a departure from good Keith used to have sweat all over behaviour, to be put down as one more item in the Thatcher legacy. She who has lived by disloyally must expect in part to perish by disloyalty in reply.

is actually Sir Gooffrey Howe. Where others emerged with credit as well as blame from the Prior reckoning, Howe is repaid with some savagery for years of being wrong. Hopelessly legalistic and quite unable to understand human nature, he "concocted" a first budget that did "so much harm", and then played the deceiving gone, as has the reluctance of press. His ubiquity is extraordinary, but not even he is capable of siders that they attend collective many of the things of which he is siders that they attend collective briefings. But what remains is the rule of non-attribution at meetings with Downing Street, and it is that instruction which, more than any other, is at the heart of the trouble. It means that each morning at 11am when journalists (mainly from evening newspapers and broadcasting organisations) go to Downing Street to meet Mr Bernard Ingham or at 4pm when he

He is, however, capable of using cleverly the freedom which the Lobby allows him. His closeness to Mrs Thatcher, his political instincts, and his natural bluntness have made him maybe the most formidable exponent of Thatcherism. In some ways, he gave it its image. Day by day he meetings with the Lobby which would be, in effect, press conferences and would discard the non-

But the weekly discussions with Mr John Biffen, the Leader of the Commons, and Viscount Whitelaw, the Leader of the Lords, are still held on the traditional basis though no one with a passing interest in the way Westminster works can be ignorant of their Downing Street to meet Mr Bernard Ingham or at 4pm when he comes to meet journalists in the gave it its image. Day by day he has sketched out the picture of the Prime Minister as she wants to be existence. The only people who has sketched out the picture of the place are the readers.

James Naughtle reports on the secret byways in the corridors of power

be reported except in a second-hand

In recent years journalists have begun to signal the source of their information. Sources close to the Prime Minister have, at last. become sources close to the Prime a progressive loosening of the rules in practice. The system as it was set up — to conceal from all but members of the Lobby that formal contacts with Downing Street took place — has broken down. Indeed, so notorious have the briefings become that Mr. Ingham is second.

seen, and it has been imprinted on the nation's mind.

The argument of the old-style obby defenders has been that such frankness would not be poswithout the standing rule of non-attribution; the argument of reformers that Mr Ingham is given Minister. But such attribution is a a freedom which allows him to set breach of Lobby rules. They state that no indication of the source should be given. So there has been a progressive loosening of the rules what greater gift could a civil

The Lobby has been getting younger, and bigger, and with these changes there has been a growing restlessness. Two years ago there was an abortive attempt become that Mr Ingham is accused of almost everything that comes out of Whitehall and every political insult which appears in the

It is a system which could no longer be made to work, even if that were desirable. Most journalists arriving at Westminster these days do not quail at the thought of these secret intimate gatherings. Few of them get copies of the rules, and even fewer read them. In failing to do so, of course, they miss some gems. This, for example: "Don't talk about Lobby meetings before or after they are held, especially in the presence of those not entitled to attend them. If outsiders appear to know some-thing of the arrangements made by the Lobby, do not confirm their conjectures or assume that as they appear to know they may safely be told the rest." The Lobby - to the relief of most of its members — can no longer hold that line. Its members think it safe to admit that the meet Mr Ingham, and would prefe the mechanisms they employ their work to be known.

A lobby journalist's work still depends on individual contacts more than on collective briefings. Ministers meet the Lobby collectively very rarely (and the Prime Minister almost never) and it is outside the Lobby room itself - up in its turret overlooking the Thames — that most of the work is done. And the principle of confi-dentiality when it is required (but only when it is required) has the same place there as in any other journalistic operation.

But when that principle, though fundamental, becomes an institu tion in which any Downing Street press secretary cannot be called Downing Street press secretary i appears to have been turned on it head. It's being used to concea rather than to reveal.

The result is that dissatisfaction has grown. Mr Inghain's robus political style, which results in able verbal fights with his inqui tors, has put him in an influentia position enjoyed by few of his predocessors. Though he might deny it, he can often dictate the tone of the coverage of Westminster politics by releasing informa-tion selectively and steering correspondents away from inte esting areas by offering juic titbits which appear, at the time

Queen on threat to Commonwealth

By Hella Pick

THE Queen, opening a meeting of Commonwealth parliamentarians in London's Westminster Hall last Covent Garden, home of the Royal week, warned against the danger of allowing policy disagreements to break up a unique institution. She said that, "from the family relationship (of the Commonwealth) comes the capacity to disagree without breaking up . . . friendship need not exclude plain speaking, and understanding can best be reached in an atmosphere of tolerance and respect for the opinions of others".

Mrs Thatcher gave an example of plain speaking on South Africa. She said she had no intention of bowing to Commonwealth pressure to support punitive sanctions and felt Britain had no responsibility for holding the Commonwealth the Commonwealth should become an institution for the joint execution of action."

Mrs Thatcher was emphatic about her own future. She said she looked forward to attending the next summit of Commonwealth heads of government, to be held in Vancouver in October next year. The occasion was the beginning monwealth Parliamentary Asso-Ballet, are to replace existing covercrowded facilities.

ROBERT HELPMANN had two stage careers. In the one, ballet, he excelled; in the other, acting, he was only a little less well known.

for the Royal Ballet. In the same year he was chiefly responsible for a new and controversial production of Swan Lake at Covent Garden. year he was chiefly responsible for a new and controversial production of Swan Lake at Covent Garden. Besides being a dancer he was

The prince of Sadler's Wells

Sir Robert Helpmann died in Sydney at the weekend. This appreciation was written by the late James Kennedy

Thereafter nearly all his work was with and for the new Australian Ballet of which he became co-director, with Damme Peggy van Praagh, in 1965. For this company he had by then already made The Display in 1964. This was followed by Yugen (1965), Sun Music (1968), Perisynthion (1974) and finally, in cooperation with Ron-ald Hynd, a balletic version of The Merry Widow, which proved to be the company's most popular, if not most artistic, success. For one year he was the sole director, unpartnered.

of the three children of a fairly successful businessman and a formidable lady, Mary (neé Gardiner) whose wish to go on the stage was fulfilled vicariously by her children; they all acted professionally. He acted and danced from Some said that Helpmann, as dancer, was a splendid actor and, as actor, a splendid dancer. Such jibes beset his extraordinarily busy and varied career. They, in fact, veiled considerable compliments. childhood. His conversion to ballet True that in the princely roles in came at 14 when Pavlova took him ballet's classics he could do no more than get by, his classical training had been too little and too into her company during her Australian tour. Nine years later, after a busily successful adolescence in Australian musical comlate. But he had an imposing manner — not a virtuoso among balletic princes but a shrewd edy, he came to Britain, under the advice of the actress Margaret presentable, and musical, one; and at Sadler's Wells and in the early Rawlings. Then came his first, often recounted meeting with Ninette de Valois, who said of him, and to him: "I can do something with that face." After a very brief years at Covent Garden this prince roles were quite another matter; in apprenticeship in the Sadler's Wells corps de ballet he succeeded them he was at home - and peerless (witness his still unmatched playing of the Red King in de Valois's Checkmate). In to Anton Dolin as Satan in Job and the comic roles he was best of all In the same ballet two years the comic roles he was best of all later he was with Markova's very — as Dr Coppelius, for instance, or as Mr O'Relly in The Prospect Bofore Us, or as an Ugly Sister in Ashton's Cinderella, this last being a role in which, with Ashton young successor, Fonteyn, and her partner he remained for the remaining 13 years of his time with the company.

De Valois's The Haunted Ballhimself as the other sister, he continued to delight the Coveni room gave him his first role in a allet. In 1950 his career Garden audiences into his sixties As an actor (spoken word) he lacked the voice for greatness but changed course.

For the next 15 years acting and play-production were to come first. Elektra, in 1963, was the last as partner to Markova in Giselle.

THE GUARDIAN, October 5, 1986

choreographer, producer and, eventually, director of a national ballet company. In the spoken word theatre he directed as well as acted. He appeared in many films. He belonged to the small group who nurtured the Sadler's Wells

(later the Royal) Ballet from infancy to postwar fame (1933-50):

much later (1965-76) he helped to

He was born in 1909 in Mount

Gambier, South Australia, eldest set up the Australian Ballet.

Covent Garden facelift

he had an exquisite sense of timing and moved with an unforced grace unknown to most actors; he had

By Simon Midglev

Opera House was announce London last week.

London last week.

The plan, which includes modernising the stage and providing a permanent home for the Royal Ballet, will result "in one of the most beautiful and exciting arts complexes anywhere in the world" according to Sir Claus Moser, the chairman of the Royal Copers House Board. Opera House Board.

The proposal also includes a colonaded shopping arcade on the north and east sides of the square. Substantial revenue is expected from the sales and lottings of shops and offices and a predicted £20 million shortfall will be met partly by private donation.

"We all detest apartheid and want to see it demolished. We don't quite agree on how best to do it. But it was never envisaged that of a five-day conference, marking the 75th anniversary of the Com-Ballet, are to replace existing

The Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, is one possibility. Covent Garden's stage has scarcely been altered since 1902. By contemporary standards it is small and conditions backstage are primitive. New side and rear stages are to be added, existing machinery replaced and the present flytower rebuilt.

Airline faces ban after terrorist gaoled

By Paul Keel

THE Government is considering a ban or drastic curbs on Libyan Arab Airlines flights to Britain in view of evidence at an Old Bailey trial which implicated the airline grenades for an Arab terrorist, who was gaoled for 25 years last week, was taken through Heathrow Airport by a man in LAA uniform. Dr Rasmi Abdul Hafez Awad, terrorist group. A Libyan double agent tipped off police and the grenades were found in the bag. The Foreign Office said last gnome-like and ageless; his phy-sique was light, quick, graceful, an asset even into old age. He was witty and sociable and, in the against the sirline now that the trial was over. Security surround-ing LAA flights was increased rules and legal agreements pre-vented further action until the his lack of education. Because of this lack he tried all the harder and, probably, got on all the better. He was knighted in 1968 and loved, he said, being "sirred" by his

James Kennedy, who died last year, was ballet critic of the Guard-strong talent for melodrama if not for tragedy. He was a fine producer of plays. The ballets which he made for the Sadler's Wells and Australian companies were highly dramatic, briefly sensational and which gives long life to choreogra-phy. In fact none of those he made in Britain has endured, save, perhaps, his Hamlet, as an oddity.

But in their time, during or just after the war, they were invaluable props to the repertory.

The theatre, as he used to say, was his life. He was — and well he knew it — very competitive and determined. His face, with which de Valois had said she "could do something." was huge-eyed, theatre, had very good friends; his competitive abrasiveness made him enemies as well. He used, until he was quite old, to bewail enemies.

ian for nearly 50 years.

The court heard that a bagful of aged 43, was convicted after a 10-day trial in which he had denied conspiring to cause explosions and being a member of the Abu Nidal week that ministers were urgently considering what measures to take after the man's arrest last Septem-"The Government is gravely concerned that this case clearly implicates Libyan Arab Airlines in terror-related activity," said the Foreign Office. "The Government remains determined to be tough on terrorists and those who assist

The British concession for services to Libya is held by British Caledonian but security and insurance problems stopped their flight

Awad was arrested in London in September last year by the anti-terrorist branch of Scotland Yard after officers had watched him collect a holdall containing grenades from a Libyan student.

The student, who appeared in court at the Old Bailey in disguise to give evidence for the prosecu-tion, had told the police that he was under pressure from Tripoli to assist in a terrorist plot and was directed by the anti-terrorist branch to continue following his instructions.

The student collected a package containing the grenades from the Libyan Arab Airlines office at Heathrow Airport and was later instructed to hand it over to Awad at a London Tube station.

After being arrested in posses sion of the grenades with another Arab, Mr Nassar Mohamed, Awad claimed that he had believed the package to contain drugs. But documents found at the doctor's apartment in Madrid linked him to Abu Nidal and terrorist plots.

Awad's co-defendant, Mohamed

28-year-old Iraqi-born student. was found not guilty of taking part in the conspiracy.

ONE PLACE YOUR MONEY WORKS AS HARD AS YOU

BARCLAYS FINANCE COMPANY (ISLE OF MAN) LTD.

BARCLAYS HOUSE, VICTORIA STREET, DOUGLAS, ISLE OF MAN.

Some things work very hard in the Isle of Man. Your money, for instance, if you put it in a Fixed Term Deposit Account with Barclays Finance Company.

A good rate of interest. With Fixed Term Deposits you have the details.

the advantage of a good rate of interest (which is fixed from the outset and is based on money market rates) and it is paid gross without any deduction of tax. Deposits can be held in most major currencies.

The minimum deposit is only £5,000, or currency equivalent and you can make other deposits at any time you wish.

The interest is paid at the maturity of the deposit, or in the case of deposits which are for a fixed period of twelve months or more the interest is paid at six monthly

In the case of call accounts the interest is paid at six monthly intervals also.

We'll keep in touch.

Even though you may be on the other side of the world, we can keep you fully informed through our up to date communications systems.

Every transaction on your account is separately advised, with full details given on each occasion.

There is complete confidentiality over

Barclays Finance Company in the Isle of Man offers many options regarding the re-investment or transfer of both your capital and income.

Fill in the coupon and we'll send you all

And that's all the work you've got to do. If you would like further information on these services, and current rates of interest, please complete this coupon and return to: Ray Naylor, Barclays Finance Company BARCLAYS A ISLE OF MAN

Designer of the state of the st

est, one must say, is as a testament to failure.

The person who comes out worst with revelations.

that the level of incomes literally did not matter.

Prior describes a visit he paid her early in 1981 - "one of my

"Oh no, Jim, I never leak," the Prime Minister replied.
"Well, if you tell me that I must accept it, but in that case your officials and press people certainly

"Oh, that's quite wrong. They never know anything so how could they leak?"

Looking back, he appears to think he was wrong even in 1979, when the battle had hardly been ent of the monetarists, in late 1970s. When, in mid-1981, he enormous shock". key. Prior tells a little more than nature, he "concocted" a first budget that did "so much harm", and then played the deceiving substeur of union-reform plans for which Prior thought he'd got full Cabinet agreement.

Jim thought the whole Treasury

Key. Prior tells a little more than we knew about the chasm of incompetence which precluded Ted a reasonable working relationable working relationable working relationable working relationable working relationable working relationable working "grossly underestible her absolute determination." Rather like the print unions and added, "But, of course, so do he not Joseph who had the idea of the chasm of incompetence which precluded Ted a reasonable working relationable. The Thatcher phenome a reasonable working relationable working "grossly underestible her absolute determination." Rather like the print unions and added, "But, of course, so do he not Joseph who had the idea of you."

A Balance of Power, by James at Wapping, they allowed their Prior, is published by Hamish birthright to be whipped from Hamilton on October 6.

A third strand of misconduc minister ruthlessly determined to exclude them from all economic decision-making, they were unwil ling to mobilise against her. They declined to make common cause or work together. Prior describes only one occasion when they tried to, a half-hearted effort to think about bolting the Cabinet over the 1981 budget. He had breakfast with

when the battle had hardly been joined. "Margaret had caught the new mood," he writes. "She was well qualified to be Industry Secremore in tune with people than I tary, and in a better-run govern in Belfast. Like Northern Ireland Secretaries before him, he became character are paralleled by the sheer incredulity Prior admits to: his inability to see what is happening. He describes the first budget not merely as wrong but as "an rational persuasion and the polienormous shock".

So naivete was the west second mistake. The Thatcher phenomenon bit there out of a clear characteristics of give-and-take, at large among forces that believe in nothing of the kind. So it was in Ulster.

Diary of a decent man

Hugo Young on the autobiography of the Cabinet's give and take minister team were "not a very impressive bunch", out of their depth, and without experience of "running a whelk stall let alone a decent-sized company"—a point that could be made against many famous wets as well, but let that pass. Compared with Sir Geoffrey, even Keith Joseph is handled with some ffection, as a soft-hearted man whose only crime was to be addicted to "hare-brained schemes" One of Prior's more graphic, yet piteous, paragraphs describes Jo-seph's efforts as Industry Secretary

Such glimpses of the exercise of power, however, are not often power, however, are not often afforded. This is not a book about how the Thatcher Cabinet conducted itself. It will have caused Sir Robert Armstrong, if he was asked to yet it for official secrets, no problems, for it is very sparing

There are some, but in a minor key. Prior tells a little more than putting Ian MacGregor into British Steel. We learn more startlingly than before just how deep was the with Mrs Thatcher, but one ex-ample might merit being called in evidence when the Westland saga resurfaces in the Commons next also emerges. Faced by a prime

But that was all.

the early days, to the proposition that the level of incomes literally did not matter.

The book is relatively thin on the precise details of encounters

These disclosures of a concessive that the level of incomes literally did not matter.

The book is relatively thin on the precise details of encounters

These disclosures of a concessive the land, "I was playing for high stakes and I got it wrong."

These disclosures of a concessive the proposition that the precise details of encounters are larger to the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the precise details of encounters.

These disclosures of a concessive the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition and the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition and the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition and the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition of the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition and the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition and the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition and the proposition and the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition of the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition of the proposition that the level of incomes literally depend on the proposition of the proposition of

Cap, who has misplaced Churchillian instincts about anything which smacks of appeasement, has been having a thin time lately with all this talk about a deal on arms control --- a topic on which he has loyally kept his reservations to himself. But his remarks on Panorama represent the conventional American wisdom on Nato. It embraces most Democrats, with the important distinction that they think the Reagan Administration has handled East-West relations with aggressive incompetence — to the etriment of alliance cohesion.

Ritual votes of loyalty to Nato at Americans may not much care one way or another if Britain clings to the illusion of an independent deterrent (except in export terms), but they regard the alliance as one in which inescapable nuclear burdens must be shared. Look at the way they are trying to stamp out a minor outbreak of "nuclear allerin far-away New Zealand.

They fear infection.
All the same there is a weary predictability about Mr Weinborger's dire alarms, They are almost as old as the alliance and were last heard in similar form in March 1981 when the National Security Advisor, Richard Allen, spoke of "outright pacifist sentiments" in Europe after the Labour/SDP split and blamed it all on "deficit spending (sic) and uncontrollable social programmes".

Four years later Allen is long gone and Nato is still there. But the well-placed Democrat may also be over-optimistic in insisting that there remain "no good alternatives" to the status quo. As Labour activists gather in Blackpool and Liberals agonise on the alliance's correct stance they should be under no illusion that Europeans are alone in seeking to upend the pragmatism supposedly the pre-rogative of the Liberal centre. From that quarter we have seen only a token attempt by Senator Sam Nunn, the moderate Democrats' leading defence intellectual, to cut US troop levels in Europe but only to extract higher support expenditures from the perfidious allies. There has always been one

Senator willing to try.

Gary Hart, front-runner for the Democrats' next Presidential nomination recently observed: "We are not the Romans. We do not intend to stay in Germany for 800 years."
But that was it. In his book on military reform, America Can Win, Senator Hart devotes a couple of pages to beefing up oper-ational reserves on the Nato central front with a view to counter-attacking against a Soviet

Meanwhile a motley crew of repentent former presidential ad-visors, led by Robert McNamara and George Kennan, propose adop-tion of a nuclear "no first use" policy as a healthy recognition of reality. But in their latest salvo last May they drew back from earlier emphasis on stronger con-ventional defence. The implication is that a conflicting reality - the US budgetary crisis and European tightfistedness — makes such an expensive alternative implausible.

Conservative debaters, many of them "neo-conservative" refugees from the other side, have no such inhibitions. Many of them don't think much of the Europeans, whom they regard as rich, tightwad, effete, mercantilist (a favourite word of Dick "Prince of Darkness" Perle, the brains behind Cap), and wimpish in regard to the Soviet menace. The Europeans also complain about US conduct in, say, Central America, to the point where Irving Crystal, nicknamed the godfather of neo-conservatism, is predicting a major Nato clash leading to a rethink or even "the withdrawal of US forces". Assorted conservatives are also arrangements which Atlanticists keen to save money where they of the Heath-Schmidt-Callaghan can, either to cut the US budget

RETURN TO THE U.K.

unilateralism" which so upset the tiresome allies — Nicaragua, Lib-ya or the Gulf. Money saved could be spent on strategic reserves and on the fledgling rapid deployment

Brzezinski, both holders of Richard Allen's post in their time, have proposed a 5-10 year phased uni-lateral withdrawal of ground as the sentiments which bound the wartime allies grow weaker and issues like trade and Mr Gorbachev's suits divide them. Americans, even ardent BBC

We are talking a lot of money.
Of the $300 billion Pentagon budget something between $120 and $170 billion can be ascribed to Nato — as much as the budget deficit. But it is also a metter of deficit. But it is also a matter of strategic rethinking. Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew fallen on New York, no foreign for a cow and when the dust has army razed Chicago. Nor do they understand how President strategy may accommodate all Reagan's windy rhetoric and domestic popularity seems incompre-hensible abroad, how Western led. There is no sign tha troops — not nukes — to halve the present US contribution and get the Allies to shoulder more of their detents with Moscow (yet again) own defence. Others say that 300,000 GIs are no more than a Maginot Line, a nuclear trip-wire which is hopelessly out of date.

detents with Moscow (yet again) enough to start thinking aloud. But even as Mr Weinberger fires munist domination, let alone how weariness with the superpower which is hopelessly out of date. There is no sign that the Reagan the joys of neutralism. eliminat white House is entertaining serigeneration have taken for granted.

The American debate, such as it is, emanates largely from the right where — as on the Labour left — put to better use — in those very ideological fervour provides a liberating capacity to contemplate the slaughter of sacred cows, a pragmatism supposedly the orewill be an alarmist tendency to take for granted that Mr Kinnock and (even more unlikely) the German SPD will win working majorities in 1987 or '88 an actually do what they promise to (unlike Lord Wilson). Officials are questioning visiting politicians Diplomats are getting nervous. Yet if the sacred cows are on > led. There is no sign that Congressional Democrats are bold enough to start thinking aloud. eliminate those Cruise and SS-20

Deterring the Americans

defence policy at least has the virtue that it provides persuasive proof of an underlying proposition about the so-called "independent" British deterrent. That proposition is that the continued existence of a British nuclear force has a lot more to do with deterring the Americans from deserting us than with deterring the Russians from attacking us.

The central thesis of Mr Weinberger's pre-emptive strike against the election of a Labour government under Neil Kinnock is that, if such a thing were to happen, and were to be followed by the "de-commissioning" of Polaris and the closure of American nucleon would seriously consider pulling out of the defence of Europe. Or, to put it more brutally: "Vote Labour and you're on your own." interventionism is clearly a highrisk strategy both for the Ameri-cans and for Mrs Thatcher, and Mr Kinnock was doing his best at the weekend to imply that Mr there is much disagreement about it in Washington, it is more likely to be about the wisdom of going public on the subject of a friendly ally's internal affairs than about the actual substance of the Defence Secretary's argument.

The fact is that, whether they say it in public or not, that is what

It remains to be seen whether tempt to influence the outcome of the next British general election proves counter-productive or not.

recorded in the Panorama programme will nevertheless have gramme will nevertheless have an it is not difficult to see why this made more obvious to them that

THE extraordinary public on-slaught by Caspar Weinberger on mean that, this time round, the the Labour Party's non-nuclear argument will be based on realities highly unlikely that it would so rather than the bits that have dominated public discussion ever since the foundation of Nato.

The retention of Britain's nuclear weapons has always been closely related to the question of how to tie the United States into Europe. The discussion of such matters among those "in the know" (and also those merely believing themselves to be in the know) has always been more concerned with American intentions than with those of the Kremlin.

What has been at stake has been the persistent fear of European leaders that the United States would sooner or later be tempted to revert to its well-known isolationlear bases, the United States ist traditions, or (perhaps even would seriously consider pulling worse) might seek to go it alone militarily in other theatres of the world. Many, if not quite all, of the key decisions relating to European defence have been dictated by this Weinberger's views were by no defence have been dictated by this means typical of the American political establishment. But if ate fear of an imminent Soviet attack through central Europe. But if this has been the reality behind most of Nato's defence policy, the way in which the subject has been presented to the innocent British voter at successive general elections has The fact is that, whether they say it in public or not, that is what they think. Though it was put to me rather more privately and a great deal less publicly and a great deal less public great deal less publicly by a Libya, even pauperising our concently, the message I was given was much the same.

By lan Aitken În London

Our bases be used for attacks on the large of th they had something to do with about this dramatic change pritain's day-to-day defence against an anticipated Soviet at-

We have been invited to helieve that the retention of these weap-ons is crucial to deterring a direct Not so long ago I am fairly confident that being pushed around by an American defence secretary would have produced a massive nationalist backlash, and massive nationalist backlash and mas measure nationalist backlash, and might well have assured Neil kinnock his place in Downing Street. In our current reduced circumstances. I am not curious to the special confrontation. What is rarely sold to the solution of the British political stage, may circumstances, I am not quite so is that their real use is almost entirely diplomatic, and that they are really targeted on Washington one valuable consequence for the is so. If the real case for retaining honesty of this debate taking place, on defence policy across the entire one of the control of the real case for retaining the real issue is how closely they want to be tied to America's coatmore of the control of the co highly unlikely that it would go down as well as what might described as the Rorke's Drift, stand-alone, approach to defend ordinarily patriotic people who have not thought much about the matter, but nevertheless believe its military virtues — and that means most of our population instinctively respond to the proposition that this country must be "properly defended". And it is easy enough to argue that, if your potential enemy has a particular sort of weapon, we ought to have it

But it is more questionable whether such people would be equally convinced if they were frankly warned that the weapon in question were not really for firing at our enemies but for persuading our friends of our undying loyalty to their principles of foreign policy.

The misfortune about the debate on defence as it has been recently conducted inside both the Labour Party and the Alliance is that i has assisted the Conservative party to maintain the national argument on the level of fantasy rather than that of reality. Time and again it has been the clash between traditional defence and unilateralism, botween Rorke's Drift and pacificism, which has seemed to be the issue. But as the opinion polls have begun to demonstrate, there is now slightest doubt that the Labour Party, the Liberals and even Dr Owen's Social Democrats are sev-concentrate the eyes of the British electorate on what the real issues will be when they finally go to the impact of vato, which was deplored in editorials across the country.

THE WEEK

THE White House was emberking upon a review government economic polloy. How-tactical retreat at the weekend in its rearguered sction against puntitive South African sanctions. The Chief of Staff, Mr Donald Regan, algnafied a willingness to compromise on a milder sanctions package that he rejected only weeks ago.

By waiting until 8pm on Friday night, he could be certain that his crists in the House had gone home, and sould not immediately vote to override him. And he avoided catching the main talevision news bulletins.

Both the Republican Sensis and Democrat-controlled House of Representatives are expected to override the voto by the necessary two-thirds majority during the voto in the sensis and personal diseaser which affected areas for beyond Soviet borders, obliges states to warn others if radiation leaking from a of virillan nuclear power plant threatens their territory. crat-controlled House of Representatives are expected to override the veto by the necessary two-thirds majority during the final days of the 99th Congress.

An airlitt of French peratroopers continued at the weekend to the Wast African state of Togo, where French soldlers were guarding key positions after the failed incursion by Togo rebels from neighbouring Ghans. About 200 French troops, ferded in from a base in the Central African republic and backed by Jaguar fighter-bombers, were sent to reinforce "several dozen" French military advisers already in the country under a 1978 cooperation agreement.

THE sharp fall in the dollar over the last year may soon lead to an improvement in the US's current account deficit, the managing director of the international Monetary Fund, Mr Jacques de Larcelere, said in Washington.

His statement came as the dollar fell sharoly on the toral on exphanage, dransteady the dollar's decline. Mr de Laroslere's comments on the US

Mr de Larostere's comments on the US current account came at a press conference of the Interim Committee of the IMF, where concern was expressed about the aluggish growth in the industrial countries and high unemployment. The IMF expressed hops that economic activity would pick up some steam later this year and in 1927.

would pick up some steam later this year and in 1987.

As expected the interim Committee agreed to strengthen the content of its World Economic Outlook as part of action to increase international monetary cooperation. The sim is to use a series of economic indicators, based on the barrance between savings and invastment in each of the major industrial countries, to ompromise on a milder annetions packsge that he rejected only weeks ago.

President Resgan waited until four hours before the procedural deadline to vato the sanctions package agreed by both houses of Congress.

Mr Reagan's motive was to blunt the impact of vato, which was deplored in editorials across the country.

of villan nuclear power plant threatens their territory.

The Soviet Union faces another energy orisis this winter, Pravide said, with shortfalls in the construction programme for power stations combining with the impact of the Chernobyl disaster. There will be power cuts through the southern regions of the country.

THE South African homeland of Clakel threatened retailation against its neighbour, Transkel, over the weekend drams in which white commendos rescued Clakel's former security force commander, Mr Charles Sebe, from gaol and kidnepped the President's son.

The President, Mr Lennox Bebe — brother of the escaped Charles — appeated for South African intervention to defuse the confrontation with Transkel. He disclosed that he had received demands from his son's abductors, which included the resignation of his Government and the release of another two of his rephews who are being held in Clakel gaols.

THE year's death toll from violence in THE year's death toil from violence in Punjab rose to more than 500 when Sikh militarts killed three Hindus on the first anniversary of the state's moderate Sikh government. Four other people were wounded when two gunmen riding a motorcycle opened fire on passers-by with machineguns in the outskirte of the industrial city of Juliundur.

Army's intervention foils rebel attack

By David Hirst in Beirut

weekend after repulsing an inva-sion by Syrian-backed Christian rebels. operation clearly had Syrian sup-port. The fighting between former development is fraught with as yet fanatical Mr Samir Geagea ousted Mr Eli Hobeika from the command of the Lebanese forces, the Chris- er. The army's Tenth Brigade tian militia, Mr Hobeika has been plotting revenge or even a full-scale

Most of his militie — thought to number 2,000 or 3,000 men — is that Mr Hobeika's objective was to change if any Warsaw Pact attack based in the Syrian-controlled seize full control of Ashrafiyah. Beka'a Valley, and it was generally This would have been a devastattrate the Maronite heartlands he camp, shifting the whole balance of achieved a startling initial success, penetrating as far as Place Sassin, the highest point of the Ashrafiyah quarter, and the very heart of Christian Beirut.

Before the attack, inside accom-plices used a bulldozer to demolish the city.

According to the loyalists, Syr-

LOYALIST Christian militiamen, aided by the army, were in full ed in the offensive. Syria and west control of East Beirut at the Beirut deny this, but the whole

The weekend's fighting was the first time since the beginning of the civil war, in April, 1975, that combatants from one side of Beirut have fought their way deep into the other. Coming together with the other. Coming together with the detailers in south the company of the co the deteriorating situation in south Lebanon, this new and unexpected wounded.

It was only with the help of the unforeseeable consequences.

Ever since January, when the Amin Gemayel that Mr Geagea's militia managed to drive out the followers of their former commandmade a pincer movement to seal off Mr Hobeika's line of communication to west Beirut.

Sources in West Beirut believe would do so from the mountains.

But he struck in Beirut itself, and such was the surprise that he achieved a startling initial success, and such was the surprise that he achieved a startling initial success, the surprise that he achieved a startling initial success, the surprise that he would also have been a great success for Syria, with implications for the whole region. It failed, part of the huge earthen barri-cades dividing the two halves of The vote was 14-0 with the US the city.

According to the loyalists, Syrian soldiers, militiamen from Amal, the mainstream Shi'ite organisation. Hezbollah and the

Cruise force in UK may be cut

By Hella Pick and David Fairhall

RADICAL American and Soviet arms control proposals for medi-um-range nuclear missiles, now under active negotiation, would almost certainly lead to the scrap-ping of the Molesworth cruise missile site in Cambridgeshire and possibly a significant cut in the force of 96 cruise missiles based at Greenham Common. Moreover, the Soviet Union is no longer demanding "compensation" for the British and French nuclear deterrents in the context of such an agreement or insisting that the United States cancels the sale of Trident to the UK.

This means that opponents of Britain's nuclear deterrent can no longer claim that the Government's refusal to abandon Trident is preventing a US-Soviet agreement to reduce the numbers of American cruise and Pershing II missiles and Soviet SS20s.

Even Polaris has ceased to be a negotiating chip in the context of present US-Soviet negotiations on military point of view. But once intermediate-range nuclear mis-

The deal now being worked out by the two superpowers would remove all but a token number of cruise and Porshing missiles in Europe. The US proposal calls for 100 medium range warheads on each side in Europe. It would also allow the Soviet Union to retain within reach. 100 warheads on SS20s targeted against Asia, while giving the US the option of retaining an equivbroad outlines, if not the final trade with their deterrent forces.

alent number in the United States. These figures may still have to be adjusted but at most, it seems Western Europe would be left with no more than 200 cruise and Pershing missiles, each carrying one warhead.

This is a sharp reduction from the planned Nato total of 572 and would mean removing some already in place. Apart from Greenham Common, cruise missiles are deployed in Italy and 108

Pershing Ils are in place.

One way in which the new deployment of 100 warheads could be achieved is to leave one flight of 16 cruise missiles in each of the five European countries involved in the 1979 Nato programme and top up with 20 Pershing IIs in Gormany.

This would have the political ndvantage of spreading the nuc-lear responsibility and would also please the Suprome Commander, General Bornard Rogers, from a the package is fully known, the Netherlands may reverse its reluctant decision to accept 48 missiles. After the Soviet Foreign Minister's talks in Washington month, both the US and the Soviet Union have expressed considerable agreement, to form the centre Gorbachev summit. Some US officials warn that important differences still remain.

The most dramatic outcome for Britain could be the scrapping of the planned cruise base at Molesworth. Engineering work is already well under way, although the 64 missiles are not schedule to be deployed until 1988. US officials recalling all the political opposition to the deploy-ment of cruise and Pershing missiles in Britain and the rest of Western Europe — including the spectacular, long-lasting women's protest at Greenham Common are surprised that these develop-ments have attracted so little attention, either among the political parties, or the European peace

Until recently the Intermediate Nuclear Forces negotiations have been slowed by two key obstacles - on the US side, insistence that reductions must be global and not confined to Europe; and on the Soviet side, a determination to include British and French nuclear weapons in any INF agreement. Now, the Soviet Union, in what like a major concession, seems to have given way on both these issues, and the British and within reach.

The Russians suggest that work

French governments will certainly feel vindicated in their consistent

Paris moves to early use of N-weapons hetween France's conventional and nuclear forces. They claimed this

FRANCE is making an important shift in its defence policy towards earlier use of battlofield nuclear weapons in a European crisis. The move goes against the trend with-in Nato to reduce reliance on these weapons, and would make France an awkward partner for any British government which sought to harmonise defence policies with it.

The new policy is being hammered out in the conservative cabinet of Mr Jacques Chirac as part of France's defence plans for the years 1987-1991. It is expected France who have long criticised the separation or "de-coupling" to be announced in the next few

Hints of the new nuclear doctrine first appeared in a speech by Mr Chirac to the Institute of Defence Studies a fortnight ago. They have subsequently been confirmed by leaks from members of parliamentary committees on Previous French governments have never considered the country's short-range nuclear weapons. They were described as "pre-strategic" as a way of symbolising the close link between them and Fran-ce's long-range nuclear missiles which can hit the Soviet Union.

The "pre-strategic" weapons were meant as a "last warning" to the Warsaw Pact, designed to be held back as long as possible after the start of a war in Europe, but leading to an all-out nuclear ex-

would have been a devastat-ow to the Maronite Christian Defence Studies, however, the ated a doctrine which amounts to using the medium-range weapons at an earlier stage in a war, "France wants to be in a position some say, only because Mr to give the aggressor a nuclear Hobeika wrongly counted on the army remaining neutrel.

The UN Security Council, meanwhile, adopted a French resolution calling for the withdrawal of Israemade things too easy for Soviet By Jonathan Steele military planners. in Paris

The exchange is expected to be made explicit when the French Government announces its plans wants to create extra uncertainty for the next generation of shortin the mind of any aggressor. The new doctrine would not allow the range missiles, the Hades, at the end of the current defence review. Russians to assume that France MPs in the Government parties would not use its nuclear weapons have said the order for 40 Hades until a Warsaw Pact advance had missiles (with a range of just under reached the Rhine or even the 200 miles), which are meant to replace Pluto from 1992, will be French frontier.

The doctrine is being welcomed by conservative defence experts in

More significantly, the Hades will be deployed with the various French army corps instead of being kept in a special nuclear unit.

Come browsing in the best bookshop in the world.

THE GOOD BOOK GUIDE

Imagine a superbly stocked London bookshop on your doorstep. A bookshop where you can browse at leisure, guided by helpful, professional assistants. A bookshop with the sort of service you thought was extinct.

That's how The Good Book Guide works. It's a highly efficient. London based mail-order bookshop. which dispatches books all over the world. And that's not all. . .

You can use the colour illustrated Guide, 'Britain's liveliest and most worthwhile book magazine', as your personal catalogue. Books, hardback and paperback, are chosen on merit alone, and the Guide carries no advertising or publishers' puffs.

When you've chosen from the Guide, our bookshop is as near as your closest mailbox. And if you don't want to buy there's no obligation.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER Please send me a FREE copy of The Good Book Guide

Address .

Post to The Good Book Guide

91. Great Russell St, London WC1, England

STAYING ABROAD? Save even more with a tax-free car.
Contact us for details. LH or RHD cars supplied tax-free to U.K., U.S.A., African, 309 A Australasian, European or Asian specifications. Peugeot 309 SR It's true, as an Expatriate returning nome, you qualify for a special reduced price scheme on a Peupeot car, unavailable if you wait until you return to the UK and not available direct from UK customs or import problems. It couldn't be easier, we can meet you li couldn't be easter, we can meet you with your new car at the airport or docks, arrange finance, UK insurance and part-exchanges are welcomed. If a reduced price car appeals to you, or you want to buy one for your family in the UK, contact Roger Cuiggin or Val Hitchcock at The Ovni Export Sales for details. You can expect all the usual warranties plus full UK specification, without any Ford, Vauxhall, Volvo, Austin Rover, VW Audi, Mazda, Range and Land Rover also MODEL (Prices in £ Sterling) Tax-Free Price for Export Abroad PEUGEOT 205 XL 1.1 3 Dr PEUGEOT 305 GR 1.3 5 Dr PEUGEOT 305 GR Estate 1600 MAZDA 225 LX 1.3 5 Dr MAZDA 226 EGIS Dr PORDESCORT XR3I MG MONTEGO 2.0 EFI VAUXHALLASTRA L 13005 Dr VOLVO 340GL 1.7 5 Dr The above are examples from our range and correct at time of going to pres SAVE THE OVALEXPORT CHUNDREDS COLLECT SALES LIMITED FROM ANY AIRPORT

Fair shares for women

ASKED in Oslo why she had no women in her Cabinet, Mrs been an under-used resource," she Thatcher launched into a long says. explanation of the Westminster system. Prime Ministers could not youth organisation, and now chair just pick people from outside Par-liament for the Cabinet, she said, Britain you had to take MPs or peers, and there were only about 25 women among 650 MPs. This is a very limiting factor," she

To most Norwegians, Mrs Thatcher's argument would sound less like an explanation than an excuse, and a flimsy one at that. For what is remarkable about Norway is not just that its woman Prime Minister has appointed seven others to the Cabinet, but that a large proportion of the Norwegian Labour Party's MPs are women, 43 per cent to be exact.

This is a world record. It results from a decision taken by the party at its congress three years ago to impose a quota system for candi-date selection. Forty per cent had to be women by the next election.

"Why had they not insisted on 50 per cent, or would that be the next target?", I asked Sissel Roenbeck, one of the new women Cabinet members who is Minister of the Environment. "No," she replied, "we want flexibility, not a rigid formula. The party decision was actually that each sex should have at least 40 per cent of candidates and office-holders."

The Norwegian quota system has not yet been followed in Sweden where about a quarter of the Social Democratic Party Cabinet are women. But the West German SPD has just decided to work towards a 40 per cent quota in two years' time. The West German Greens have a fifty-fifty quota for their MPs.

Remarkable too is the comparative youth of the Norwegian Cabinet (average age 46). The Prime Minister is 47, Mrs Roenbeck is 36.

A former chair of the party's of its women's organisation, she rejects the idea that Norway is a feminist paradise. Few other Western industrial countries have such a clear sex demarcation of jobs as Norway. Virtually all nurses and primary school teachers are women, for example. Indeed al-most all the "caring" professions are 100 per cent women, and usually these are low-wage jobs.

Out of 20 county education chiefs only four are women. Senior university appointments are male dominated, and this spring there were campus strikes in an effort to make changes.

There may be cultural and historical reasons why Norway has more women in politics than any other place. In the remote, rural areas which typify the countryside, women always tended to be the dominant figure in the family, as men were absent for long periods at sea or trekking across difficult terrain to buy much-needed salt.

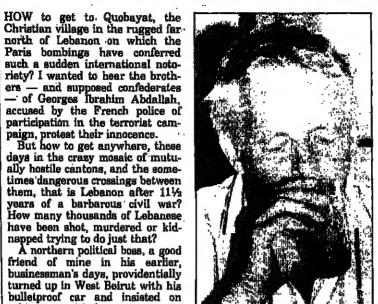

But as a professional politician, Sissel Roenbeck believes that organisation is the key factor for women's recent advances. "It is because of the process we went through during the International Women's Decade, and the fact that in the Labour Party we organised."

The expansion of creches in the 1970's, and guaranteed maternity leave helped to get more women into jobs. But the part-time labour market was not enough since it mainly benefitted men who "had their cake and ate it."

Women should press harder for paternity leave for men, and for the right for lathers to take time off when children are ill or on and fundamentalists, is apt to send a tremor through most outsiders, especially Christians and the few school holidays. "In this area Norway is embarrassingly far beopen crossing between the Chris-tian and Muslim halves of this ever more divided capital. I didn't > and three armed men in the one behind, would be precaution mischance can be a dogged foe. And it came, this time, in the shape of one flat tyre as we had set out, and then, the sudden blow-out

How I escaped from kidnappers

David Hirst, the Guardian's man in Beirut describes his ordeal

David Hirst after his escape in Beirut tecture and rapidly disappearing pasture land of the suburbs' outer-Yet still there was no real menace in the air. It was 6.30 in the morning. Very few people were about, and I had few qualms when the escort nipped up the road "for a couple of minutes" to bring help.

But I should have paid more attention to three young men in a beige BMW who passed in one direction and then returned in the other. When they suddenly emerged on foot I cursed myself for not having marked the tell-tale igns, the mean, inquisitive looks, of thugs on the prowl.

"Papers," one of them demanded. I produced my press card. "American?" a second man asked the first. scarcely able to believe such luck.
"No, British," the first replied, with an air of implying that, these days, that was just as good a prize.
They told me to come with them, as is kidnappers' wont, for an "investigation." There had been no guns so far: this was, after all, a main, if still largely deserted, thoroughfare. But my escorts' two minutes' absence, agonisingly prolonged itself beyond my ability to resist the physical manhandling.

A man opening his hole-in-wall rapels shop six yards away cost a repair shop six yards away cast a glance in our direction, and then busied himself with other things. Once inside their car, the pistols of another as we negotiated the open sewers and gigantic potholes of the narrow winding track through the chaotic sleezy archi-

As we lurched through the rabhit warren that is the "southern suburbs," I pondered my prospects.

If I was lucky, I thought, my kidnappers might be content with the $600 in my pocket, a small fortune in these times of collapsing national currency.

But inevitably my thoughts took a darker turn — to two of my British predecessors, Leigh Doug-las and Philip Padfield, who, kid-napped shortly before the American raid on Libya, were found murdered shortly after it. They had apparently been "sold" by just such freelance abductors as mine to a pro-Libyan organisation.

A black cloth descended over m eyes as we joited to a halt. But I got it off. We were in a small, apparently deserted backwater, with older-established dwellings on one side, countryside on a second, and crude breeze-block hovels going up on a third. Into one of these, it was clear they wanted to drag me. I felt I would be done for once I was in there. I resisted, and yelled at the top of my voice, but with little enthusiasm as my neighbour, pistol in my side, hissed half Arabic, half in broken English "Shut up, shut up, or I kill you, kill you now."

I redoubled my efforts as a man emerged from one of the houses. But, passing within three yards of this commotion, he made as if he did not see it. I thought it was going to be hopeless.

But then, or so it seems, m abductors began to cust anxiou glances around. Perhaps my yell ng was having some effect, and faces beginning to appear in win-dows and doorways.

I broke loose and ran 20 yards into an alley. There was little real pursuit, and no pistol shot from the rear. I bolieved I had made it, and 50 yards further on I was sure when, stumbling into a thoroughfare awakening to the new day. hailed a passing taxi already slowing for this unexpected fare. I had lost all the contents of my briofcase, my passport, driving licence, etc, and, above all, 10 years of accumulated telephor But that was a small emotion compared to the relief and elation at this bizarre working of chance within mischance, so familiar to the inhabitants of this jungle-city. I knew how very lucky I was to be free and — very possibly alive.

Our man on the Middle East tightrope

AFTER absences of many moons, a short, abstracted looking man wanders through the Guardian to the foreign department. Word gets round that it's David Hirst, our Middle Eastern correspondent, but no one seems quite sure. It's difficult to equate this self-effacing difficult to equate this self-effacing academic with the hurnoused fig. academic with the burnoused figure of our imagination, whose peerless reporting has earned him virtually every country in the taking me with him one way - through the Druzes' mountain fiefdom, down into the Beka's

Valley, stamping ground of Syrian soldiers, Palestinian guerrillas, as-sorted Shi'ite militiamen and Iranian revolutionary guards, and back over Mount Lebanon to the Syrian-controlled Akkar valley in the far north. But a mischance

The next best thing was the "Museum Crossing," in the heart of Boirut, closed to all but a few who can secure the necessary pass

but safer than any other route for those who do. But mischance again intervened. Owing to some obscure wrangle, passes became unob-

So it had to be the "southern suburbs," the vast Shi'ite slum which, since the rise of Hezbollahis westerners who still inhabit the

Through there runs the last like it much, but surely two cars, a taxi driver and myself in the first region. Stories of his exploits are legion. Stories of his exploits are legion. Six years ago he and two women were kidnapped in Beirut by armed men and taken to an abandoned apartment, where both women were raped and Hirst was threatened with execution before a blood-stained wall. His repeated assertions of friendship with PLO leaders probably saved the day: they were driven away and dumped in the street. It is said that, on learning of the incident, the PLO metad out justice to the offenders.

Dyan's nephew, captured and sent to Israel, from where he made his way back to Lebanon. Another colleague, covering Nasser's funeral in Cairo, was amazed to spot Hirst on television, sandwiched in the official cortege between Haile Selassie and King Hussein. Hirst had wangled himself a ticket, alphabatically punched.

Now 50. Hirst has been on the Middle East tightrope since 1959. After National Service in Cyprits and an Oxford education he studied at the American University bf for assistance to push the car to safety."

Perhaps his closest shave was in tanks commanded by Moshe Dyan's nephew, captured and sent to Israel, from where he made his way back to Lebanon. Another they were driven away and dumped in the street. It is said that, on learning of the incident, the PLO meted out justice to the offenders.

A colleague recalls Hirst showing, him around Beirut, larbour, at least the American University of the Arabic, he has covered most.

Thurst is self-propelled, as in reluctance last week to file a story on his latest escapade was not unexpected. The foreign editor recalls Hirst's remark when saked to explain his non-coverage of an led at the American University of American ambassador's death in Beirut before going freelancs. Flushing around Beirut, larbour, at left in Arabic, he has covered most.

One exception was the lat President Sadat, who went on the Jimmy Young Show to castigate Hirst's despatches. His co-authors biography of Sadat compared him to another Shah. (Hirst has also written The Gun and the Olive Branch — a history of the PLO— and Oil and Public Opinion in the Middle East). He was recently readmitted to Egypt, but remains banned from Iraq and Saudi Arabia, and under a cloud in Syria. Hirst is self-propelled, so his

The tin miners march into history

ALONG the pot-holed and windswept road that runs across the Bolivian Andean plain from the mining town of Oruro to La Paz at 9,000 per cent for 1985 but at one stage running at over 15,000 per cent — not only defeated conventional methods of economic there are occasional crosses recording virtims of traffic accidents. A new memorial due to be placed threatened a complete collapse of new memorial due to be placed between the villages of Calamarca and San Antonio, some 40 miles from the capital, will not, however, mark the spot of an individual fatality on the unkempt highway. point at which, on August 28, a peaceful protest march of 5,000 miners, their families and support-ers was broken up at gunpoint by troops and tanks.

Although the leaders of the Paz's MNR party came to office in August 1985 promising a sober response to the crisis and the restablishment of national unity. The MNR's election was largely the result of tactical voting against the result of tactical voting against its extreme right-wing opponent General Hugo Banzer, whose dic-tatorship (1971-78) was one of the fiercest in the country's history Although the leaders of the and responsible for contracting march were arrested, nobody was killed and there was little resis- who had voted for a statesman-like

As Bolivia suffers economic catastrophe and reverts to authoritarianism. James Dunkerley detects the stirrings of a new social revolt frightened marchers. The army had denied them food and medical attention for the last two days of an alliance with Banzer, adopted their week-long protest against the dismantling of the state mining corporation, Comibol, by the conservative civilian government of the last two days of an animace with Banzar, adopted his Harvard-drafted neo-liberal economic programme, and suspended the constitution in order to begin an offensive on a state sector servative civilian government of Victor Paz Estenssoro. Nonetheless, some of the regime's oppo-nents believe that the events of that Thursday were not just the latest in a string of clashes be-tween miners and troops in Bolivian history but signalled the demise of the tin industry and very possibly that of the country's tenuous return to constitutional ment, already at an official ism, begun in 1982 after 18 years level of 20 per cent, escalated further as public enterprises were of military rule.

Arguing that the march was part of a "subversive plan," for which no concrete evidence was presented, the 79-year-old Paz declared the second state of siege of his year-long government, sus-pended constitutional guarantees, imposed a curfew, and arrested some 170 union and opposition activists. This reversion to authoritarianism in a perpetually unsettled state was scarcely greet-with the cautious response of a movement were broadly interpreted to confirm the success of civilian conservatism in handling what is without doubt the most severe socio-economic crisis in the west-which accelerated the fall in tin prices and made most mines in the world unprofitable (including those in Cornwall), it was already as bankrupt as a sovereign state could be. As commodity prices slumped, the cost of the debt incurred in the heady days of the 1970s rose, and capital reinvestment in mining became a distant dream, the first half of the 1980s ment in mining became a distant dream, the first half of the 1980s dream, the first half of the 1980s were marked by the collapse of the formal productive sector and widespread adoption of survivalist strategies by people well beyond the diminishing industrial labour force. According to the conservative figures released by the Central Bank, between 1980 and 1985 mineral production fell by nearly half, official exports by a third, GDP by 30 per cent and disposable national income by more still.

tance from the exhausted and "middle way" were soon dismayed that covered nearly two thirds of

Inflation was indeed reduced but by the "demand management" expedient of freezing wages at a time when prices were still rising at over 100 per cent per month so that very few people could afford to broken up and production contin-

With a miner's wage at £25 a month and that of a state-em-ployed doctor at £40 (meat costs pioyed doctor at £40 (meat costs 75p per pound, an urban bus ride 20p), it is barely surprising that the one-sided "free market" has engendered a massive informal subsistence economy. According to economists Samuel Doria Medina and Rolando Morales this is now worth over $3 billion - more than Moreover, the notable absence of coup rumours — largely because the army is unable to outflank Paz to the right on economic policy or public order issues — combined with the cautious response of a

However, the largest and most publicised aspect of informal activity is the cocaine trade, worth perhaps $1 billion and directly or indirectly supporting one tenth of the economically active population. It is no exaggeration to say The Bolivian economy would be that in terms of both exports and The Bolivian economy would be in dire straits whoever was in office. Dealt a terrible blow by the collapse of the International Tin Council in October of last year which accelerated the fall in tin proclamations, allows narcotra-ficantes to recycle their dollars through the Central Bank without hindrance whilst simultaneously inviting a force of 150 US troops to stage much celebrated raids on ne processing plants in the presidential ambitions and interdepartmental rivalry within the US government, this noisy "collaborative operation" (six US helicopters and one Bolivian) has signally failed to decapitate the cocaine industry. After six weeks,

Colonel John Taylor's troops had located seven deserted camps of the 35 listed for destruction by the DEA, captured not one gram of chlorohydrate, and detained one national income by more still.

Indices of mainutrition and infant mortality are now far closer to those of the Sahel than of Argentina. Hyperinflation — officially without notice or penalty charges.

especially if you'll need a mortgage.

ABBEY NATIONAL BUILDING SOCIETY, DEPT. ORS. AUBEY HOUSE, SU GRAFFON GATE EAST, MILTON KTYNES MKY I AN, ENGLAND

in reducing the price of the (legal) cocaleaf cultivated by thousands of peasants from $125 to $25 a bale as well as raising fears of a future use of defoliants.

The field-day being enjoyed by the proponents of neo-liberalism may be coming to a precipitate end. The dismantling of Comibol, immediate firing of 8,000 of its 20,000 workers, and imminent closure of schools and clinics pro-vided by the corporation was de-signed both to offer the richest pickings to private capital and to destroy the miners' union. How-ever, the "march for life" halted at Calamarca aroused considerable sympathy in the peasantry, which broke from sowing to applaud in unexpectedly large numbers at the roadside, as well as a middle class that is normally terrified by the miners' proclivity for exploding dynamite at boisterous radical

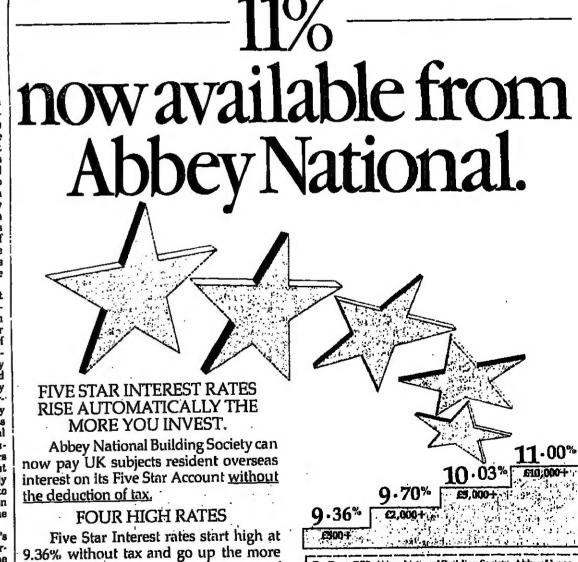

Loss of support in these two key areas of the government's constitu-ency has been underlined by opposition from the conservative Church hierarchy and local civic associations. Moreover, the regime must now contend with broad antipathy to new sales and property taxes specificially designed by Price Waterhouse to pay off an unpopular foreign debt. So depleted is national income that extra fiscal pressure is far more likely to

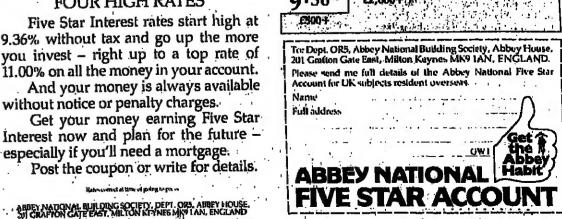

Many campesinos believe the prop-erty tax to be a ruse to deprive them of lands, and the atmosphere in the countryeide is sufficiently tense that people travelling to rural communities often ask for credentials that show they are not working for the government.

Even inside the MNR and the US Embassy there are those concerned at the train of events in spite of the recent release political prisoners and renewal of talks. On the day Comibol's clo-sure was announced, 900 miners left the camps in search of work in lowlands. They have quit the union, and according to conven-tional wisdom are now outside the formal political exchange between right and leftwing organisations.
Yet they have joined a rapidly expanding mass of angry and impoverished subsistence labourers for whom direct and porhaps violent action increasingly seems a viable option compared with futile bargaining within formally democratic structures. The orthodox Left is in retreat, and rumours of a coup are at a low ebb but those of the influence o Sendero Luminoso growing across the border in Peru are notice-

James Dunkerley teaches politics at Queen Mary College, University

Lack of information, poor advice, ignorance of tax implications — all these things can cost you dear. Our clients find it easier on the pocket and kinder to the nerves to have us do the hard work. Take our Portfolio Management Service for example: we manage liquidity in a range of currencies and investments in carefully selected and constantly monitored funds. Nothing outlandish — no stamps, no precious stones, no container leasing. We're aiming for steady growth with security. We get it too.

To give an idea of what we can achieve here are the values, net of all charges

Cash value at 1st September 1988 Conservative Portfolio £34350

Aggressive Portfolio

What we can do for you remains to be seen. As a first step, return the coupon now to find out more about us and our range of financial services. STRUE

Iniohowen (Finance, Investment and Tax Counsellors)
Members of the Financial intermediaries, Managers and Brokers Regulatory Association 39 Downing Street, Farnham, Surrey GU9 7PH Telephone: (0252) 726036 Telex: 265871 MONREF G - REF FTF2001

.Please send me del	alls of the fi	nancial ser	vices you d	offer to e	xpatriates.
Name:
:			. 1	1
Address:
			1.0	14, 19

What if the arms race really stops?

THERE could be an earthquake in the making. A Soviet-American accord in Washington during the autumn on intermediate-range missiles in Europe is now, suddenly, a strong possibility. Obviously it would impinge heavily on the British parties' defence policies, which is at least core reason given Reitain's anneal position. one reason, given Britain's crucial position in Nato, for the US to pursue it with some vigour. On the Soviet side the initial placing of medium-range missiles in Europe has always been an act of escalation which they have been embarrassed to defend, and their efforts to prevent the West from matching the systems they installed have met with failure. For Nato itself, acting collectively in Brussels, the old doctrine of ensuring that the US remains immediately linked to European defence has still to be satisfied, which is why, under the terms now being discussed, a reduced number of warheads (the likely total is thought to be 100) would remain on both sides. Militarily far fewer than that, or none at all, would preserve that that, or note at all, would preserve the balance, but they would not meet Nato's 1979 linkage requirements.

One hundred warheads on each side still make a formidable array, and it is only the existence of 100 times as many as that in each of the superpowers' own strategic arsenals which makes so inflated a figure seem acceptable. Nonethless, this would be both a striking political agreement and the correct it seems that the Russians are not first actual cut in nuclear weaponry since build-up began. Mr Gorbachev has made it clear that he is Mr Gorbachev has made it clear that he is not going to the United States without an argument that Britain would be contributarms control agreement in the bag. That cannot possibly be achieved at inter-continental level in the time available. In ballistic missiles in Germany (which the Russians dislike most) it is elementary compared with the negotiation on strategic sub-systems which remains to be done in Geneva. Even so, it is hard to believe that Soviet interest in the huge uprating of the British deterrent which Trident would entail has disappeared for all time. Perhaps it will be raised again in the Geneva strategic context. Perhaps SS-20s will come trundling back if or when Trident becomes operational. In the meanwhile, though, if operational. In the meanwhile, though, if the terms outlined on page 7 approximate to an agreement, Mrs Thatcher can say with every superficial justification that her Trident programme is not holding up a European arms deal.

Where, then, does this leave the Opposition, and perhaps more specificially the Labour Party? How do Caspar Weinberger's dire forebodings about the break-up of the Nato alliance if Britain gees non-puclear warheads pointing the other way, and if these totals are both reduced substantially, Britain's 64-missile deterrent, deadly though it is in absolute terms, is a matter of relatively small moment about which the Kremlin does not propose to agitate itself. The deal as outlined does not destroy the CND argument about the basic immorality of all nuclear weapons and therefore of Britain's possession of them. But it does make it harder for a future British government to embark on a course which, at the least, would lead to the Nato Alliance being recast when the material rewards in terms of East-West stability would be so palpably

Nato alliance if Britain goes non-nuclear square with his own government's intention to do part of what Labour requires and disarm in Europe? For if the outlines are much concerned whether Britain unilateralv disarms or not (why should they be, given . That lng to a significantly lower nuclear arms inter-total in Europe falls away. If the Russians have more than 200 three-warheaded SSdropping all domands relating to the British 20s west of the Urals, and the existing and French systems, including apparently a American programme accounts for 572

The deal is not yet signed and its full contents are not known. What is apparent is that for the time being the arms controllers in Washington have inched ahead of the cold warriors, and that position, though it may be temporary, could not have been foreseen. It is also evident that Gorbachev is interested more in the actuality of East-West coexistence that in the nuclear theorising which lies behind it and which so heavily preoccupied his immediate predecessors. This conjunction may mean that it is not a good time for the lesser members of Nato to complicate matters by revising their nuclear strengths either drastically up-wards or drastically down. Mr Weinberger may have done himself more harm than good when he addressed the nation, and Mr Perle may be no more (though we doubt it) than the middle-ranking pipsqueak characterically so described by Mr Healey. It is easier, though, to pass over their interven-tions at a time when the Nitze school of arms control seems on the verge of getting results: when the earth, and much else, may

The motor of growth blows a gasket

IF the world wants to boost economic growth and break the dismaying spiral of unemployment then the leading nations must end the collective inertia which threatens to engulf them this week at the IMF in Washington. A year ago the Group of Five industrialised countries agreed to act in concert to reverse the overvaluation of the dollar which was threatening to unleash a tidal wave of protectionism. Since then the dollar has fallen by an average of 21 percent (ranging from 36 per cent against the yen to 6.4 per cent against the pound). This was long overdue, but not enough to restore the dollar's lost competitiveness, particularly against Germany and countries in the Far East. Mr Ronald Reagan recently managed (but only just) to veto yet more protectionist legislation in Congress (which now goes into recess, taking the heat off for a few months.) This interval needs to be used to engineer a further controlled fail in the dollar accompanied by simultaneous expansion by the stronger economies, particularly Japan and West Germany, which are sporting enormous trade surpluses and zero inflation rates. The US is walking a tight rope. If the dollar goes into free fall then interest rate funds thereby worsening the other major problem, the Budget deficit. It is at times like these that governments must avoid retreating into myopic self interest. They could start by reminding themselves just why the IMF was set up 40 years ago. It was to promote international stability, primarily in foreign exchange markets and in balance of payments transactions. If the short term self-interest of countries had coincided with international interest there would have been no reason to construct an IMF at all. The need for international co-ordination had never been greater than it is now because of the still smouldering debt situation, absurdly high interest rates, and because of the way vast sums of money undreamed of 40 years ago can move around the world instantly at the touch of a computer keyboard outside the power of any one country to control. Since last year's meeting at the Plaza Hotel in New York there has been nothing but the discordant sounds of everyone else passing the buck.

The excuse for doing nothing has been

will have to be raised even higher to attract in oil prices and will do little to reduce the unacceptably high level of unemployment, particularly in Europe (as last week's OECD report on employment prospects confirms). Countries on the receiving end of the oil price fell are merely beginning to spend the cash which the oil producers have involuntary forgone.

Unless America is to be forced into a destabilising recession (with all that that implies for the rest of the world in terms of reduced exports) then the stronger economies must take up the task of injecting demand into the world which the US has been doing almost singlehandedly. West Germany can no longer plead fear of inflation as reason for not expanding because the annual rate of inflation is because the annual rate of inflation is actually negative and going down. Will they still be quoting inflation when prices are going down by five per cent? Nor can Japan plead caution when it is not only facing negative inflation (any month now) but also sporting a surplus of $68 billion (£48 billion) on its trade with the rest of the world. What is the spirit of the IMF all about if not to take action when trade

August a bad month for trade

THE GUARDIAN, October 5, 1988

WE baven't heard much about trade deficits WE haven't heard much about trade deficits lately. They were a national obsession in the 1960s and early seventies, but the discovery of North Sea oil put paid to all that. Or so we thought. But the record deficit of £886 million on the August current account (trade in goods and services) is a sobering reminder that Britain's experience of surpluses may have been a brief sojourn before normal service is grimly resumed. There were, to be sure special resumed. There were, to be sure, special factors in August. But the figures are suggesting that the party may soon be over. The cumulative surplus in the first eight months of the year is now a slender £68 million. This makes the Government's Budget forecast of £3 billion surplus for the year highly unlikely. Worse, it makes the National Institute's prediction of a £5.8 billion deficit in 1987 less far fetched than it may have seemed last month.

In the three months to August it was the old, familiar tale again. The volume of exports (excluding oil) was up by a creditable 2½ per cent. But import volume (again, excluding oil) shot up by 6 per cent. With oil (thanks to falling prices) no longer able to bridge the gap, the current account took th

The North Sea oil bonanza was nature's gift to Mrs Thatcher. In 1978, Government oil revenues were only £238 million (in the financial year). They built up very strongly to a peak of £12 billion in 1984-85, before falling back to £11.4 billion in the last financial year and a (forecast) £6.1 billion in 1986-87. The oil won't disappear overnight But production will steadily fall and unle prices recover their former strength, the North Sea's contribution will gradually

And what, pray, is there to show for it Since 1979 the annual growth in the economy has been barely 1.25 per cent a year. Manufacturing investment is still over 17 per cent below what it was then. There has been a consumor boom, to be sure: but that has disproportionately fed the factories of our competitors. Output of consumer goods is still, bizarrely, four per cent below what it was then. Britain, true enough, has recycled much of the oil revenues abroad. We now have net assets abroad of nearly 280 billion, of which part is oil money. That is no bad thing when great nations like the United States are sinking into debt. But where else are the fruits of the North Sea? In dilapidated infrustructure? In deprived schools? In depressed housing? In deterious in the state of the same of the rating industry? Or in 3 to 4 million rating industry? Or in 3 to 4 million unemployed? And worst of all, if all this has been happening during a once-and-for-all period of balance of payments surpluses (and claimed economic recovery) what on earth is going to happen when Britain sinks once more back into institutionalised trade deficits? It is difficult to believe that historians will look happen when the reviews that historians will look back on this period as the halcyon years. But, then we don't know

Electing to do nothing President Botha's indecision about an election, writes Stanley Uys,

brooks no opposition. On the other, some Opposition politicians believe will be with the aim of reunifying and clearly bewildered by the way things have turned out, he is being

"headless chicken syndrome". The cat-and-mouse game which Botha has been playing with the country over a general election is symptomatic of the confusion in the National Party. He apparently wants on election in November, others in his party want it in April, and yet others do not want it

Botha has nothing to offer the country except an election. The parliamentary session which has just ended was a shambles, producing no reform legislation of any significance. The much-vaunted it never will.

pole, and even "moderates" have their resistance to sanctions. backed off. Buthelezi admits he In all three of his aims Boths will be a dead duck if he serves on the council, and two organisations probably would have some success. The faction forming that has been long thought to be no more than a collection of Uncle Toms, the black chamber of commerce (Nafcoc) and culprits would be guilty of national the urban black councils, have also betrayal; some brake would be put

Botha is known to want to go out of politics on a note of triumph, but the best he can hope for is to call

PRESIDENT BOTHA'S leadership National Council, on which blacks an election, restore some unity to Klip River in Natal where the Indian chambers, and if parties is typical of the current confusion in his party support has climbed from 47 per cent in April to 52 per cent in lish-speaking PFP supporters would vote for the NP candidate to keep out the greater demon of the

New Right. For the time being

The black opposition, like the New Right, and signalling to the New Right, and signalling to the world that white South Africans are solidly behind him in his party, arresting the growth of said they cannot serve on the council until political prisoners are released. All Botha has left really are some homeland leaders and insignificant black councillors.

Botha is known to want to go out the growth of the New Right; the sanctions issue is a winner.

The whole idea, however, of message that on sanctions South Africans, or at least most white least most white desperate Botha has become. The South Africans, have formed a last white election was in 1981 and least most white election was in 1981 and least most white le united front.

Bothe's National Party has just this year, but elections were had selves to real physical risk from won a parliamentary by election at in 1984 for the new Coloured and their own people.

representatives certainly do not want another election so soon September, and that the HNP-CP their communities they are widely and Progressive Federal Party (the liberal official Opposition) are level pagging at about 16 per cent of all potential Coloured each. It is quite likely that in a coloured to the page of the continuous trey are with apartheid — only 19.3 per cent of all potential Coloured each. It is quite likely that in a coloured each. three-cornered contest, many Eng- potential Indian voters bothered to cast votes in the 1984 elections compared with 68 per cent of all potential white voters who cast votes in the 1983 referendum on

Le Monde

ENGLISH SECTION

difficult to repair the damage

facts which cannot be reintroduced in court now. This is laid down in (September 28/29)

Chalandon expressed the hope that Abdallah would

The bishop and Abdallah

groups responsible for the recent wave of bombings in Paris. Archibishop Capucci has said publicly that he was carrying out a mission. While sources at the Elysée have expressed surprise at the "exceptional facilities" given to the prelate, government spokesmen have denied that any kind of negotiation is in the air. Justice Minister Albin The French authorities seem in doubt over what line to take over the recent activities of Syrian-born Archbishop Hilarion Capucci, the former Greek-Catholic prelate of Jerusalem. The archbishop met Minister of Public Security Robert Pandraud twice, both before and after a long meeting with Georges Ibrahim Abdaliah, the presumed leader of the FARI. (Lebanese Revolutionary Armed Fractions) whose release is being sought by the terrorist group or

THOUGH it is not certain that that he can ask for expert reports against Abdallah. On Friday, the Georges Ibrahim Abdallah will be and second opinions. Boulouque tried as early as February, as the Justice Ministry was reduced to could refuse permission, but such a shifting the debate to another refuse the second opinions. Boulouque distinct Ministry was reduced to could refuse permission, but such a shifting the debate to another refuse could be submitted by dispel. Archibishop Capucci does ter. not consider however that he is on G Georges Ibrahim Abdallah is today. Information highly damag-

The message Chalandon delivered was intended to show firmness. It was meant, he explained, to clear up "the poisonous atmosphere surrounding this case." You will be heard to show firmness. It was meant, he explained, to clear up "the poisonous atmosphere surrounding this case." You will be heard to define the state of the state sphere surrounding this case." You could have legitimately been mis-taken. Justice has not always the recent attacks which have left and got four This blunder will shown the determination that nine dead and over 160 injured, it have to be remembered if Verges Chalandon exhibited when he disis not for this that he will be tried, succeeds, as well he might, in But the wave of attacks will getting the court to give his client closed that he had ordered the heavily influence a jury's decision.

And this is particularly true as Abdallah, unlike Anis Naccache

a minimum sentence or even — contrary to the justice minister's wishes — to rule he had no case to public prosecutor to ensure Abdallah is sent to trial. On the other hand, during the summer it was learned from a reliable source that the Paris prosecutor's office had been asked to examine under whose release is also demanded by answer. the bombers, refuses to condemn the attacks.

what conditions it might be ruled that Georges Ibrahim Abdallah had no case to answer. That prospect became so real year terms of imprisonment, he that the United States filed an could not in that case be eligible application, through its lawyer Georges Kiejman, to be associated with the public prosecutor's case so as to try to prevent a nonsuit being

Today, insisted Chalandon, the government had ruled out any idea of dropping the case. The public prosecutor, who is directly answerable to the Justice Minister, will do all in his power to see this does not happen. What is more, Chalandon has given the courts a tight schedule for bringing Abdallah to trial that it will doubtless not be followed: one month for winding up the legal investigation, plus the maximum of two months that the penal code gives to the court to hand down its elieves that "negotiations" are under way.

Justice Minister does not have the ly agree.

right — as was pointed out on The charge of involvement in an investigating magistrate in the concerned. case, Gillies Boulouque, is To cut sh case, Gillies Boulouque, is awaiting the findings of experts and other details. At least two months will be needed to prepare the findings of experts be convicted only if he is shown to half jokingly, half seriously. This have "taken part in the action or its in I shown to half jokingly, half seriously."

tried as early as February, as the Justice Minister hopes, one thing is sure: the government does not want to hear any more talk about making deals. This had to be made clear after the shilly-shallying in July and what Socialist Party First Secretary Lionel Jospin described as Archbishop Capucci's "extravagant visit" to Abdallah in his Santé prison cell.

Could refuse permission, but such a refusal could be submitted by Abdallah's lawyer to the presiding the decate to another ground, that of common sense: "He does not dony his role in the judge of the court of criminal appeal.

While it cannot be taken for granted that Vergès will take advantage of the undreamed-of possibilities offered by the code of criminal procedure, it is quite obvious it is not in his interest to have his client rushed to court for his Santé prison cell.

A "visit" not appreciated by the Elysée; it led to appeculation that a deal might be in the offing and this deal might be in the offing and this live would certainly give no quartical minister. The fact is the law blundered carly in July at Abdallah's first trial in Lyons, and it is very difficult to repair the damage a "visit", but on a "mission" and accused of involvement in the 1982 ing to him had been collected on

By Bertrand Le Gendre

If he faces a jury trial, Abdallah is likely to be gaoled for life. Even if he is given one or several tenfor parole, except in the event -highly improbable in the present pardon. Chalandon's statement needs to be assessed in the light of this. If Boulouque and the court of criminal appeal carry out the minister's wishes, then it will ber any possibility of a deal. Sentencing Abdallah might also at the same time set off a new wave of bombings. Chalandon evidently weighed that risk when he spoke

Yet Adballah does have a defence. It is not just Verges who says so, while pointing out trium-phantly that nothing has happened since July to strengthen the case. Others who have been able to Apart from the fact that the examine it carefully and objective-

Jacques Vergès — to impose timo covery of an automatic pistol in limits on the investigating megistrate, the latter will not as far as we know be able to complete his with the complete his we know be able to complete his we diplomate. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. This is both much know it's there and that its doors to be able to complete his two diplomates. The base passon the latter will not as far as placed by the base passon the base of the bas

Tension in Togo

General Gnassingbé Eyadema of Togo who, like the good soldier he is, personally took part in hunting down the commando unit that sneaked into the country on the night of September 23/24 to attack the military camp where he was staying. In fact on the morning of September 24, the Togolese emb sy in Paris drew the media's attention to this event, while the general received the diplomatic corps posted in Lome to explain what had happened. Togo consid-ers it has been the victim of a foreign plot and intends to let the world know it.

The ambassadors were shown an entire arsenal of Soviet-made weapons. Eyadema assured them Togo was a "peaceful country" and would "simply defend itself", but he did not name the aggressor. Official Togolese sources, however, explained that among the seven killed were two Ghanaian NCOs. Lomé remained calm and links with the outside world were never cut off, but the border with its English-speaking neighbour, Gha-na, was closed. Accrs accused the Togolese army of having "fired indiscriminately on (Ghanaian) border guards conducting an antismuggling operation".

Once again a running quarrel has broken out between "progres-sive" Lieutenant Jerry Rawlings and pro-Western General Evadema, who has embarked on a no-nonsense economic policy with the International Monetary Fund's ess charges and counter-charges and border incidents against a backdrop of tribal hatreds and ideological bickering. This border, fixed when the former German colony of Togo was carved up at the end of World War I (a third

MANY heads of states in Africa Coast, and two thirds to French MANY needs of states in Africa tend to say nothing and accuse the foreign press of "exaggerating" when assailed by problems at home or abroad. This is not true of General Gnassingbé Eyadema of Togo who, like the good soldier he to be a suburban districts, but becomes blurred as soon as it reaches the rural areas.

The Ewes, who live in the south of the country, have not forgiven General Eyadema for the death of former President Sylvanus Olympio in the January 1967
putsch organised by young officers from the north who brought Eyadema to power. Olympio's family, which has its supporters abroad, took refuge in Ghana and is still seeking to avenge what it describes as an assassination. This time substantial resources were deployed by the attackers. Six civilians, including a West German national, were killed in the fighting. But Lomé is currently also experiencing an insidious terrorism. Last year several explosions caused casualties. The first bomb went off in August 1985 a few days before Pope John Paul II's visit. The latest attack came before a summit meeting of French-speak-November in Lomé, as il Eyadema's enemies were still trying to damage, at just the right time, the reputation he is trying to give Togo as an "African Switzer-

Every one of the attempts to destabilise the country was followed by ruthless repression, which leads his exiled opponents to say they are simply "provocative acts" engineered by the government to got rid of its opponents. Since the Togolese President is calling on world opinion to bear witness to unfriendly acts against his country, he would be well advised not to lay himself open to criticism by new violations of human rights in his search for accomplices in the country.

Lebanese fear loss of French connection

EAST BEIRUT — This is a land badly. If the Lebanese felt like it, French ambassador was invited where you can count on the unexpected, where the impossible is probable and the improbable certain. Here are Lebanese Chrisiens who are now expressing their fears of — France. They are used to car bombs that can always blow up when children are on their way to achool, stray shells and bad news which slyly arrive to dampen good spirits when things seem to be taking a slight turn for the better. This gallery of adversaries, Shi'ite, Palestinian and Druze militamen, and terrorists here and everywhere has now been swelled by a worrying pair - Pasqua and

Pandraud. Rumours are rife here: they are frisking Lebanese travellers and going through their luggage with a fine-tooth comb. The Interior Ministry is preparing "measures". The French sanctuary is going to right — as was pointed out on The charge of involvement in an be sealed off. "France, monsieur," Friday by Abdallah's lawyer assassination is based on the dissipled a doctor who has more than be convicted only if he is shown to months will be needed to prepare the brief, say Paris courthouse sources.

On the other hand, the two lawyers — Kiejman and Vergès — can step in to ask for explanations on any contentious issue. It is in the interests of Abdallah's lawyer, in particular, to delay proceedings. The code in fact allows him to do the prepare the process of the case, and the present state of the case, nothing of the sort can be held to convicted only if he is shown to half jokingly, half seriously. This have "taken part in the action or given instructions for carrying it out." Or if "he procured the weapons one or any other means that helped in the action knowing it was to be in the action knowing it was to be used in it." Or again if he helped the interests of Abdallah's lawyer, in particular, to delay proceedings.

The code in fact allows him to do

The code in fact allows him to do

The code in fact allows him to do

The conditions for carrying it out." Or if "he procured the weapons one or any other means that helped in the action knowing it was to be used in it." Or again if he helped they know you're from Paris, in every conversation someone will say, not very convincingly: "You're on to going to abandon us, are you?"

Or someone will express the plous the helped and on page in foreign currency.

And then, even without wanting to pluck the sentimental chord which goes down so well in the country which goes down so well in the country which goes down so well in the action knowing it was to be used in it." Or again if he helped in the action knowing it was to be used in it." Or again if he helped to proceed the weapons and the process the plous truly affected, grieved and in some cases stunned by the waye of the case, someone will express the plous truly affected, grieved and in some case stunned by the waye of the case, someone will express the plous truly affected, grieved and in some case stunned by the waye of the case, someone will express the plous truly affected, grieved and in some cas

The distress is genuine. The reason for it is that sight out of ten of the 70,000 French Lebaness are Christians — the Muslims are moreover beginning to join them in appreciable numbers. This over-

By Paul-Jean Franceschini

perpetual coming and going, a volume of visas so substantial that the French embassy in Beirut has — with some difficulty — got Paris to extend the validity of visas for work in the coming month. The and too little as far as legal proof is investigating magistrate in the case, Gillies Boulouque, is To cut short the details, it must know it's there and that its doors the control who it's there and that its doors are open to us. So if it shuts its to become more difficult still. The "Hope the rear holds out "World" to become more difficult still. The plummeting Lebanese pound is putting stays abroad out of reach for those who do not have incomes and the second of the second o

they would laugh out of court dine in town — to show he was not Charles Pasqua's promise to going to be intimidated, that he "terrorise the terrorists". As for would not be cancelling appoint. watching from the broad 7th floor terrace of the Achraffieh the body-guards moving about the bullet-proofed vehicles.

The ambassador could not quite hide his emotion but went about his task of reassuring the guests seas community is generating a about his and his country's resolve constant supply of travellers, a "I've had some shattering news." "I've had some shattering news," he told us, and his eyes clouded over for reasons unconnected with the diplomatic proprieties.

For these Christian Lebanese love France in an old-fashioned sort of way which may make one smile, but the fact is there. They cannot bear the thought of seeing two years so as to reduce the incessant applications for renewal. There are fears about every- could resist the blackmail for long - and they say it with a sort of indulgence that is touching. The day before that Saturday, where Beirut was paralysed by a "sackcloth-and-ashes strike" (for the assassinated French military attaché), housewives went about stocking up supplies and car own-ers filled up their tanks. Nobody and the means for pursuing a Middle East policy? Should it even continue to have one?

Provocative questions, but highly relevant ones even if they have been studiously avoided by politicians both of the ruling majority and the Opposition. It takes real determination, however, to spot only a few trees and not see the obvious forest. France is at war not only with four or five brothers and their cousins in neighbouring villages. True, the Kobayat clan is by no means as innocent as it claims to be, but it is only the visible tip of a convergent alliance of interests and conflicting passions whose ultimate goal is to eliminate all Western influence in the region.

Can France still stand up to these forces which are in full expansion? Is it prepared for it? Would the venture make any

Things have unmistakably got off to a bad start. True, the opponents of French influence in the Middle East have taken the risk of triggering a national reflex of unity by carrying terrorism into France. But their perception of our country prompts them to believe this will doubtless be no more than a passing phase. A few more they tell themselves, and the fine resolutions emerging in the latest opinion polls will fizzle out. Isolationism is not an exclusively North American reaction. And particularly as it is neither an easy nor obvious thing to explain to people why France should go on maintaining its pres- Not much, certainly. Perhaps a bombs are exploding at home.

Apart from Jean-Marie Le Pen's hard right Front National, all of France's political parties have joined in backing the measures taken by the government of Jacques Chirac to combat terrorism. First Secretary Lionel Jospin pointed out that the government was "lucky to have the benefit of a very responsible Opposition, which we did not have." Socialists, however, increasingly wonder about the connection between what Jospin describes as Chirac's "hesitant" policy in the Middle East and the recent terrorist blitz in Paris. Other leading members of the ruling majority keep saying that France's position has been made difficult by the commitments the previous Socialist government made during the negotiations which helped to obtain the release in April 1985 of the French diplomat Gilles Peyroles after he was kidnapped in Lebanon. Allegations that the Socialists had done a deal were denied by former foreign minister Roland Dumas.

ready sounded? Face was only in 1984 Syrian President Hafez el barely saved in 1983 in the case of Assad told François Mitterrand he the intervention force following the Drakkar bombing. True, the United States made the first move

Since then, the adversary has not stopped scoring points. Three months ago Paris was forced to evacuate diplomats, teachers and doctors from West Beirut so as not to offer too many French nationals as hostages. A few days ago, French military observers were withdrawn from the divided capital. From being arbiters, they had hecome targets. Soon, it will be the turn of the French contingent in UNIFIL to pull out, unless it is decided to make them live underground, that is condemn them to a role that serves no useful purpose. Our representatives are not even safe in East Beirut since our military attaché was assassinuted.

At this rate, what will be left of the French presence in Lebanon?

have a historic role in the Middle Besides, hasn't the retreat al- the beleaguered Maronites which East while simultaneously giving was prepared to tolerate when the French head of state, forgetting rather too quickly the assassina-tion of Ambassador Louis Delamare, lauded him on his non-support of terrorism. But wouldn't even this be too much for Shia extremists for whom the only acceptable republic is an Islamic

By Jacques Amairic

Given this disastrous situation, how important are a few terrorists held in our prisons? Should they continue to be held if the West has been irrevocably rejected over there? We will shortly have to expect to hear such assertions in the form of questions. They were already being heard not so long ago among Prime Minister Jacques Chirac's aides before any od was spilt in Paris.

There was in fact nothing very surprising about that. Apart from that old French contradiction — it goes back at least to Valéry Giscard d'Estaing — of claiming to attained their goals in Lebanon insofar as France is concerned. The two countries will doubtless then fall out considering how far apart their respective plans for Lebanor are. At any rate Iran will have one more task to complete - put an end to France's policy towards

We may today cavil about the validity of this policy to which Chirac made no small contribution when it was forged. We can - and should — ask questions about the flaws of President Saddam Hussein's regime. Nevertheless, the fact is that in its potential consequences the Iran-Iraq war far outweighs the Arab-Israeli conflict. Iran wins, then the entire balance of power in the region will be altered. What will France's response t

this new challenge be, especially if it is backed up by further seizures of hostages, by new acts of terror ism? Do our leaders seriously think that France, which is one of Iraq's biggest suppliers of arms. will be spared for a long time by a regime whose messianism threatening to engulf the region Obviously, it is not our timi proposals to hold an internationa 'forum" on the Middle East nor our guarded restatements of th Palestinian people's right to self-determination which will suffice to pacify people who do not accept the existence of Israel

The worst is perhaps still come. And if we want to prepare the public to stand up to it, it is better not to hesitute to tell then

Damascus angered by anti-Syrian media campaign

DAMASCUS - "We're deeply dis- relations which have been built up tressed by the attitude of some since President Mitterrand's visit French media which are trying to to Damascus in 1984. M Chirac establish a link between the ter- encouraged and expanded these rorist attacks in Paris and Syria." said Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Al Chara. Solemn and determined to be convincing on a subject on which he had clearly set his heart, the minister did not mince any words in hitting back at the current "anti-Syrian campaign" in which Syria is accused of being behind the recent wave of terrorist attacks in Paris. "The me, "is that there are a few groups determined to damage the friendly and trusting relations now exist-unofficial oracle, holds that Tehup at weekends when to reach the pulling the trigger and there is

Continued from page 11

relations so they may become even more constructive and friendly. This is inconvenient for all those who would like to give the Arabs.

and Syria in particular, a negative image in the Arab-Israeli conflict." As proof of this Chara pointed to the fact that Syrian condemna- Syrian relations, Chara implicitly He pointed out that Syria's very ing between Paris and Damascus."

"For the first time there is a sort of political consensus in Paris in favour of maintaining the good wide publicity in France. "We're instead of giving credence to assumptions and phone calls claim-ing responsibility that anyone can make."

By Françoise Chipaux

have published such a communi-

While protesting frequently that he wanted to say nothing that would in any way affect Frenchtions of terrorism do not receive criticised the action of the French the publicity he said they deserve. police: "We have no intention of telling the French government strong condemnation of the assas- what to do. We don't have the right sination of the French military to do that, but it is in its interest to attaché in Beirut and the attacks examine the context and discover on UNIFIL soldiers were not given the identity of the real terrorists,

Lebanese fear loss of French link Continued from page 11 coast — you have to run the ing. As a young militiamen told yiew, especially coming from a gauntlet of the redoubtable "tun- me disconsolately: "On the divid-

former minister whose clear- nel". The fall of the Lebanese ing line between the sectors, our headedness has turned him into an pound has hurt badly. But leaders now count the bullets they Lebanese ingeniousness has man- distribute to us . . . " The civil war ran has given Damoscus a junior aged to turn it to advantage. is also feeling the austerity pinch. Industries that were once nipped To reach East Beirut, Christians copted unwillingly, not to say, in the bud by imports are starting -- except a few rash ones -- do not their own interests". up again. Everybody is looking use the sirport situated to the west "Abdallah or no Abdallah," he around to produce anything that which is now said to be dangerous, said, "these people don't always could be sold cheaply abroad. They often jib at going via Damasask Syria for its opinion and it is Someone will tell you, like a good cus. There remains the boat which forced to cover them. Iran is alone joke told at the expense of adversing wanting to really humiliate and ty, the story of the friend who is download. Shuttles daily between Cyprus and Jounieh. The other day, in the cocupation right up to the the story of the friend who is blackmail France; it is in the process of cornering its ally and leading it where it does not want to go." As for the Abdallah clan's direct responsibility in the latest torrorist actions, there is general scepticism.

This is a strange Christian ty, the story of the friend who is inundating the United States with inundating the United States with shirts or the relative who is shirts or the corumnal border. In any case, our position is clear: we are against UNIFIL and we agree with and roulette tables, while shows and French perfumes has never been so good.

This is a strange Christian the United States with shirts or the relative who is shirts or the corumnal border. In any case, our position is clear: we are against UNIFIL and we agree with an or ulette tables, while for an all-night spec. An indecent who is shirts or the relative who is shirts or the corumnal Monstrous bottlenecks still build so that gunners think twice before

The Syrians are clearly sceptical about the Abdaliah angle and are suggesting that the news conferattack very firmly an hour after we heard about it. I think ours was the only country in the world to cient proof to absolve them of direct involvement in the recent terrorist attacks in Paris.

in to the temptation of nego-tiatating and coming to terms with terrorism. The terrorists quickly realised the advantage they could draw from it. And when the French "sanctuary" was denied them, they first seized French hostages in Lebanon before deciding that every Parisian was a

The trap is all the more fiendish as the adversary never reveals his identity. So the jockeying goes on to display the most grief over the victims, even if this means having to defer to the public wrath and will. This is clearly noticeable in the long drawn-out normalisation of our relations with Iran which was initiated under the previous government and is being doggedly pursued under Chirac's administration. The whole thing reeks of what can only be described as hypocrisy: you begin to wonder whether the real aim of the Iranians and their accomplices is

Be that as it may, the fact is not simply to humiliate France.

Pointing out that Syria itself has been the victim of "criminal terrorist actions" - recent bomb explosions in buses have killed 150 and injured another 150 or more persons - Chara said: "Syria knows from experience what terrorism is. When we were victims, as France is today, we received messages claiming responsibility; but we never took them seriously. We asked no country to publish com-muniqués condemning these acts. We endeavoured to find an answer to the one question that mattered - who stood to gain by such acts? The important thing is to discover the real terrorists, not to indulge Chara agreed that the recent attacks against French soldiers in UNIFIL were not Israel's work. But, he said: "We are convinced the Hezbollahs will change their attitude if UNIFIL is deployed along the border. What they say today is that UNIFIL in fact is ensuring Israel's security against organising a poker game on the sinking Titanic will survive any shipwreck.

why we don't want to be bracketed with terrorism; this is also why we have done everything possible in Lebanon to have the hostages freed. We have had successes in a few cases and setbacks in others.

What were the reasons for the setbacks? "The situation in Lebanon is confused and highly involved," said Chara, "It's not casy to come up with results, when even in an organised country like Franco you are having problem finding the real terrorists. True our president has said Syria has influence and a presence in Lebsnon. But Syria does not govern Lebanon.'

Pressed to say whether he thought Iran was not working against Syria in Lebanon, Chara would only say it was Israel, by its Lebanon, und "its extremist agents trying to set up a Christian state who have spawned the extremists on the other side."

Considering that terrorist acts could also be the work of groups not always subject to governm tal control, Chara went back to the charges made in Paris against his country. He conceded that, not withstanding Syria's wish to main the anti-Syrian campaign continued, it could affect relations between the two countries. We are convinced this campaign couldn't possibly continue without the comdicity of certain services in the French government. If it continues, we could conclude that despite a free press, the French government is letting things take their own course for reasons of it scepticism.

This is a strange Christian "redoubt" increasingly isolated from the rest of the world but bubbling with initiative and a vitality that has remained intact. own. We ask to be treated the way

Despite public apathy privatisation is a major break with the past

THE PRIVATISATION of nationalised industries is evoking little interest among the French ism into line with international, right, but you cannot help noting elevision channel TF 1 — the gen- Postwar reconstruction called for a eral feeling is that "it will change Keynesian policy of public ownernothing".

however, never without having an tricity and a part of credit. Having effect. And, especially, when it is a proved its worth by giving the change from collective to private country 30 years of "glorious" ownership of capital the switch becomes a real break. The "em- a straitjacket. ployer-state" can apparently behave like any other employer, but lower taxes and a degree of it is quite different because of its deregulation in the areas of prices, other political and economic func-tions. The stake involved in the tion—the whole forming the three nappen to be the most powerful in Mans, they are all big names in sis. French industry, banking and in-surance. The deal should involve a should provide an opportunity for sum of about F40 billion a year, giving enterprises a free hand in compared with the F65 billion in their social, monetary and indusstock issued on the Bourse (Paris trial policies. The appointment by stock exchange) in 1985 (the figure the businesses, political directives is expected to reach F80 billion businesses, political directives this year). British Prime Minister nimed at heading off lay-offs and Margaret Thatcher's privatisation refusals to allow an industry to ist was only a third as long. relocate or join up with another -Which goes to show how ambi-tious, doubtless overweeningly am-market forces — should in theory

The second reason runs deeper. drawal from the marketplace. If the government is to be believed, It is not a policy peculiar to the object of the operation is to France. It is being pursued in say American-style, standards. ship. De Gaulle himself A change of stockholders is, nationalised Renault, gas and elec-current privatisations is therefore considerable.

The first reason stems from the government which in turn will vast scale of the government pro-gramme: 65 enterprises, which growth. That is the goal.

The privatisations are a part of a their sector, to be privatised over a package of measures inspired by period of five years. From the "liberal revolution". The plan Compagnie Généralo de is to make sweeping modifications l'Electricité (CGC) to Bull, from to a whole range of mechanisms in the Crédit Lyonnais to Paribas, the French economy which are from the Union des Assurances de thought to be damaging to it and Paris (UAP) to the Mutuelles du ultimately responsible for the cri-bitious, the present government is. disappear with the state's with-

make a clean break with the various degrees in most developed practice of joint ownership of countries and in some developing French industry which has pre- countries, such as Brazil, it may be that the moment is historically opportune. Unenterprising and overcautious and attracted by investment in real estate, those who had capital held on to it in the early '70s while the investing was done by the nationalised industries. Which accounted for the

Since then governments have all

by Eric Le Boucher

been pursuing austerity policies which prevent them from properly fulfilling their duties as stockholders. In contrast to this, all the financial markets have been helped by an upward movement whose origins are varied, but it draws attention to the mass of privately held capital in search of nyestment opportunites. Besides, the French Socialists themselves took the measure of this when they put "stocks" of publicly owned turn came to prop up public capital which was often insufficient, and even unavailable.

BORD WA

France and for three reasons.

tices in businesses run by capitalists not having the capital they possessed in the '70s is therefore very risky.
The second arises from the delay

Once inevitable, not to say necessary, from that moment. privatisation stopped being being resisted by employees, trade unions and the Socialists, except for form's sake. A consensus was established, leaving out only the Communists.

There remains the question of judging the pace of privatisation. The difficulty here is to make sure that the withdrawal of public supervision will in fact help industry and the French economy, in short, to make sure that less government will mean more martet forces. Now, contrary to the liberals' theoretical ideas, the connection is far from automatic in the reality of things, especially in The first has to do with French enterprises on the Bourse begin-ning in 1983. Private capital in back to such self-regulatory prac-

in restructuring industries. It is only now that banks are becoming involved in the modernisation process. Industrial firms have not yet. on an average, reached profit levels comparable with those of their foreign competitors. So the risks involved are many. Will such companies become targets for foreign takeover bids as President Mitterrand and Raymond Barre have pointed out? On the other hand, will enterprises earmarked for privatisation but are still in government support for carrying out takcovers inside or outside France?

The final reason has to do with the "specialisation" of the French economy. Apart from the odd case, its strong points happen to be in areas where there is very heavy government intervention — armaments, telecommunications, nuc lear industry . .

Making a clean break with "mixed" capitalism without weak ening the productive fabric becomes very difficult in such conditions. If the government does not flank its withdrawal from capital with a new policy on the lines of what is being done in the United States, offering tax incentives to investor, defining major research goals like the SDI, helping to create new businesses and supporting their growth, that is, if it does not also promote more market forces, then less government will not be enough (September 23)

G36 Dunues Cake & Shortbread ...

A delictous selection to delight any child, contains Dairy Milk Chroolale, Flake, Fudge, Crunchie, Curly Wurty, Double Decker, Chocolate Butlons and Wisps.

Telephone sales will be readily accepted, our order department number including the Bideford code is 02372 76749.

Gifts 🚱

International

HARVEYS of Bristol

G1 King-sized Gift Case...... 1 litre bottle Bristol Cream Sherry

G6 Specially Selected 3-bottle Case 1 bottle Niersteiner Gutea Domiat 1984 1 bottle Beaujolats 1984 1 bottle Harveys No 1 Claret 1983

G7 Sharry Case
1 bottle Bristol Cream Sherry
1 bottle Club Amontillado Sherry
1 bottle Luncheon Dry Sherry

1 bottle Cotes du Phone 1984, White 1 bottle Muscadet 1984, White 1 bottle Cote du Rouellon, Bland 1 bottle Toureine Bauvignon 1984, White 1 bottle Cotes du Phone 1984, Red

BRUNSWICK HOUSE, TORRIDGE HILL, BIDEFORD, DEVON, ENGLAND CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR U.K. DELIVERY

All prices include postage and packing for delivery in the United Kingdom. To order simply send us gift reference numbers with a covering remittance and names and addresses of the recipients with dates of delivery. No Custom

We can accept payment on any of the major Credit Cards. Please state card name, full number, expiry date and address to which the card was issued, together with your signature.

CHRISTMAS HAMPERS

up with nems nutable for two people at one natural.

Note of the second second

This small selection is taken from our 72-page fully illustrated catalogue which lists over 1,200 carefully chosen gifts including Christmas hampers, wines and spirits, chocolates,

The calalogue will be sent immediately on request. Please remit £1 if required by airmail. All orders for Christmas delivery must be received by 2nd December 1986.

BCOTTIBH BMOKED BALMON Superb fres

Salmon, which is smoked to perfection in the traditional way, for 24-30 hours over a fire o presentation packed and dispatch post to arrive in parfect condition
024 1/41b. Smooked Side
025 2lb. Smooked Side
026 1/41b. Silced Smooked Side
027 2lb. Smooked Side
028 3lb. Smooked Side

bined with 4003 Commence of the Commence of th

G44 Giant Amarylila Kill

Fruits: 140g pkt Percy Dattons Nul & Fruit Assortment; 125g th Danish Mackerel Fillets in od; 100g pkt Cravens Assorted Toffens; 227g ctn Mackintosh's Quality Street.

ALAIN RESNAIS'S latest film, "Mélo", which was shown at this year's Venice Film Festival and released in France on September 3, is based on a play by the little-known French playwright, Henry Bernstein. First staged in 1929 at the Theatre de Gymnase in Paris, with a cast that included Gaby Morlay, Charles Boyer and Pierre Blanchar, "Melo" is typical, with its elegant turns of phrase and high society badinage, of the socalled "boulevard" theatre of the period. But behind the glitter there is a cutting edge, and behind the apparent anachronism a great modernity of emotions.

attractive and rather boring woman who is married to a second-rate planist, falls madly in love with Marcel, a brilliant violinist who attended the Paris Conservatoire at the same time as Pierre. Blinded by passion, Maniche tries to poison her husband. But she cannot bring herself either to carry through or to admit to such an appalling crime. She prefers sulcide.

Broken-hearted, Pierre keeps faith in her until, three years later, he is suddenly wracked by doubts and suspicions. He begs his friend to tell him exactly what kind of relationship he had with Maniche, but The characters form the usual triangle:

Marcel reveals nothing; and the two of them are reconciled again as they play Johannes

Brahms's "G Major Sonata for Violin and Piano" and allow their thoughts to linger affectionately on the memory of the woman

Resnais, never more at home than when stealthily entering the universe of a writer (Jean Cayrol in "Muriel", Marguerite Duras in "Hiroshima Mon Amour" and Alain Robbe-Grillet in "L'Année Dernière à Marienbad", for example), has this time opted for a faithful and uncomplicated rendering of Bernstein's work. As a result, the film's emotional content slowly but surely grips the spectator by the throat until the tears flow — a rare event nowedays in the movies

Although the film follows the original faithfully, the Resnais touch is everywhere in evidence: in Jacques Saulnier's sets, which are a masterpiece of meticulous authenticity; in the combination of rigour and flexibility with which the camera movements accompany, highlight or anticipate emotional developments; in the inspired sobriety of Maniche's suicide, one of the most moving such moments ever suggested in the cinema (night, a wall, steps, dark water); but above all in the performance of the four actors, Fanny Ardant, Sabine Azéma, Pierre Arditi and André Dussoller (who all also appeared in Resnais's previous two films, "La Vie Est un Roman" and "L'Amour à Mort").

Alain Resnais: a cutting edge behind the glitter

Why did you deliberately choose to adapt Henry Bernstein's play for

All my films have grown out of a combination of chance and necessity. Ive never in my life taken a finished screenplay along to a producer, it's always been the other way round. That's why I describe all my films as commissioned films. But once they have been commissioned I insist on absolute freedom to make them as I was working on a project with Milan Kundera and trying to keep to a budget of 10 million francs (about £1 million). But however hard we tried we couldn't hammer out a script that would have cost less than three times that amount to shoot. So I reluctantly dropped the project. It's always a great shame when a film falls through.

Then Fanny Ardant said to me: "In the meantime, why don't you put on a play, and why not a play by that man Bernstein you're always talking about?" It's true that from 1936 on I attended the first performances of all his plays. All except "Lo Bonhaur", that is.

I couldn't resist the pleasure of going to the theatre to watch people like Claude Dauphin, Renée Devillers, Gaby Morlay and Victor Francen. I could never persuade anyone to come along with me, but anyway I was always thrilled by his plays. Afterwards I could never understand why - not that that

Sacha Guitry liked to quote a critic's remark about an actor in one of his plays: "He has such arranged to meet Resnals in the bar of the lemon. As always in hotel bars of that kind, there luxury Paris hotel, the Plaza-Athénée, one of those extraordinarily discreet, anonymous, amart and dignified places that Resnals finds so congenial. He turned up wearing his usual beige trench-coat, which was neither well-worn nor brand new. He had left home early that morning to check up on the quality of the projection in the various Paria cinemas where "Méio" was about to he relessed

Resnais had a cold, and ordered tea with been ashamed of my emotions.

actors I wanted (the ones who are in the film) were already in long-running plays. The idea of making a film of the play — feasible because the actors were free during the day - was first mentioned by me simply as a joke. But Marin Karmitz took me up on it.

I wanted to start straight away.

have to be done in 20 days instead almost impossible not to find him worked out a shooting schedule funny." Guitry added: "Why that came to 21½ days. shouldn't one find him funny?" We didn't quite keep to We didn't quite keep to it - we

The critic was simply ashamed of took 23. But it was a pretty good having a good laugh; I've never effort. I liked the idea of putting on a Weren't they a little put off by play by Bernstein, but most of the Bernstein's language? I don't know how "Mélo" will be received. But I can tell you that we made the film out of love, and not

> Interview by Danièle Heyman

With a courage rare among film producers. Karmitz agreed to go shead without waiting to see if he out of some perverse penchant for old-fashioned drama; we also de-cided, unanimously, not to attempt ahead without waiting to see u no could get further backing from coproduction agreements, television or state subsidies (in the form of an advance on takings).

But he set his own conditions, of But he set his own conditions, of sequences including course: the budget would not go above seven million francs (about £700,000), and shooting would of Nazism in Germany, or the arrival of a noiseless Delage limof the usual 70. Florence Malraux ousine at the steps of a private mansion. We didn't do any of that.

Then he opened a rather old and battered greatest possible manifestation of irritation.

briefcase and pulled out a gleaming thermos flask: "Oh that doesn't matter, i've brought my tea with me." A picnic in a swish bar: it was a nice acene that might have come straight out of a

was an obsequious "Sorry sir, the machine isn't working". Resnals frowned - in his case, the Bernstein is not highly regarded nowadays. But one has to be careful: the ink with which history is written often changes colour. The first major article praising the ilms of Robert Bresson was written by Sacha Guitry. And who do you think scornfully dismissed "Citizen Kane" as "a ridiculous film made by pseudo-intellectuals who want to ape Europe?" None other than Jean-Paul Sartre,

Anyway you've always liked melodrama, haven't you?

Yes, and music hall too. "Hiroshima Mon Amour" was constructed around Edith Piaf. And I love serialised novels as well - you know, for ages I've wanted to adapt 'The Adventures of Harry Dickson" for the screen. When I suggested to an American producer that he make a film me for not having made a historical film. The distributors threat-When I suggested to an Ameriversion of "Conan", he laughed in my face and said: "That's for the elite." Subsequent events proved used. I'd have proferred "L'Empire elite." Subsequent events proved him wrong. But perhaps my ver-sion of "Conan" wouldn't have been a box-office success.

of Steven Spielberg: he has suc-ceeded in bringing my dreams true. I had begun working on an imaginary life of the Marquis de Sade with an American artist, Jim Streranko. It was Streranko that Spielberg got to design the cursed temple in "Indiana Jones".

Does the fact that "Mélo" was shot on a shoestring make you less worried than you might have been about its bex-office performance?

I always pull in roughly the same audiences. But 20 years ago my films used to be released in only two or three cinemas. Nows days, to attract the same number of filmgoers they have to be shown in anything up to 20 cinemas. That works out more expensive, as each print costs 10,000 francs (about £1,000).

I can usually rely on between 150,000 and 300,000 spectators in Paris. For a film-maker, that's rather a dangerous position to be in. I did better only once, with "Mon Oncle d'Amérique", which had very bad reviews.

No, sorry, "Stavisky" also topped the 300,000 mark. After the way it was butchered at the Cannes Film Festival — there's no other word - that wasn't too bad, though the presence of Jean-Paul Belmondo nelpcd. People refused to forgive d'Alexandre'', "Le Tombeau d'Alexandre'', or, better even, "Biarritz Bonheur".

No holds barred in the factional fight behind Khomeini

THE Tehran daily, Risalat, has become the mouthpiece of the traditional religious right. In an become the mouthpiece of the traditional religious right. In an interview, rather curiously year, 50 leading figures (including claimed to have been given to Le Monde's "special correspondent" on June 11, 1986 — when in fact no member of this newspaper has been allowed to enter Iran since March 1984 — Ayatoliah Azeri Qomi, the new leader of the traditionalists, drew up in Risalat a list of the differences between the two sides. In his view, the disagreements are not limited to economic issues as Hojatoleslam Rafsanjani declares, but extend also to the way in which the which killed President Ali Raisi religion is interpreted, the attitude towards the government, toaching methods, radio and television programmes, foreign trade, the living onvironment and foreign policy. Judging from this long catalogue, there appears to be disagreement

Azeri Qomi and the Risalat consider, in contrast to Ayatollah Montazeri, that the two wings in the government cannot come to terms and are both doomed to disappear. Accordingly, for months now they have been calling for the Prime Minister's resignation and describing him as "an incomptent man who is running nothing."

No holds are barred in this flerce five aides) close to Minister of Heavy Industry Behzad Nabavi, who is known for his radical views, were arrested, but not a word appeared in the press. Shortly afterwards, the 50 were charged before a revolutionary tribunal, which meant that the accusations were particularly serious. It has been learnt from unofficial sources that they were accused of organising the August 30, 1981 and his Prime Minister Javad Balionar. The accusation seems all the more incredible as until ther the government had laid the attack at the door of the People's Musavi and his "guardian angel" Mujahidin movement, which has Ayatollah Montazeri. It is perhaps business to try to have one of its main "bêtes noires", Behzad Main "bêtes noires". Behzad irreversible "recommendation" by officially designating Ayatollah Montazeri as Khomeini's successor. matter dropped.

Jean Guevraa concludes a two part report never denied it.

The government's right wing took advantage of this dubious business to try to have one of its

The government's right wing stantly flouted authority that the committee of experts meeting in December 1985 made a formal and

Once again the government's detractors again to utilise Behzad way has failed to divert the attacks Nabavi to get at Prime Minister by the traditional Muslim clergy who are now questioning Montazeri's title as "ayatollah ozma" (great ayatollah) and his religious qualifications. On the other hand, it has added to the suspicions of the mandarine solidly entrenched in the state's various institutions who take a dim view of the elevation of an individual whose reformist initiatives and rather unorthodox governing led to the defeat of Ayatollah Montezeri's candidate, lojatoleslam Ahmadi, who was to dissent championed beaten by former Interior Minister Hojatoleslam Natchg Nuri. Nuri, who is a member of the Islamic Republican Party's right wing, had the full backing of Rafsanjani, who up to this time was thought to be one of Montazeri's main allies. In fact, ever since the committee of experts chose him to step into Imam Khomeini's highly coveted shoes, Ayatollah Montazeri has become an embarrassment to most of the people holding any power in Iran. These men, while disagreeing among themselves on the problems facing Iran, have joined together to clip the wings of Khomeini's successor, the better to retain their hold on him the day he moves into the country's top job.

Oddly enough, Khemeini, who had done everything possible to make Montazeri his firm and definitive successor, now seems to be frightened by the drive the latter has undertaken against immobility in the regime and the hardline postures of its leader them.

The outcome of the August I legislative by election in Tehran is especially revealing in this respect: it led to the defeat of aimed primarily at the liberalisation policy and the right Ayatollah Montazeri. In spits the honours due to him as the future "guide of the revolution" Imam Khomeini's successor is

(September 21/22)

THE GUARDIAN, October 5, 1986

The Washington Post

JOURNALIST Nicholas Daniloff was in a gilded cage in Moscow — in the custody of the American ambassador, but facing a kangaroo trial. In those circumstances, the United States government was bound to see to his early relief. The Soviets are not above treating their citizens, and others who fall into their hands, as pawns, but that is not a practice Americans will countenance for one of their own. Nick Daniloff is "out" now, to use the telling word foreigners apply when they leave Moscow. Plainly, it is not only his fellow journalists who rejoice that he is again a

President Reagan presented his departure in a spirit suggestive of triumph, and drew applause from a campaign audience. Whether there is more to cheer than the rescue of one American, however, awaits disclosure of the terms of release. Trading in flesh is, though familiar, repugnant. To become so "sophisticated" as to think of such a transaction as "normal" or "realistic" in matters including the Kremlin is to yield the American premise of individual dignity and to take on the cold Soviet American premise of individual dignity and to take on the cold Soviet way of looking at people as things.

There was, it seems, a special reason on the American side why the terms were not made public at once: to emphasize the supposedly unconditional aspect of Mr. Daniloff's release and to deny at least the appearance of any sort of exchange for Gennady Zakharov, the Soviet spy suspect jailed in New York. Evidently, however, this man too is imbedded in a package whose other elements include the 25 accused spies at the Soviet Union's mission at the United Nations and perhaps some Soviet dissidents imprisoned or otherwise restricted in Moscow. It is, as we say, a distasteful if unavoidable kind of arithmetic that must be done. And no matter what the sum, it cannot after the harsh fact that an And no matter what the sum, it cannot alter the harsh fact that an American was grossly abused and that a precedent was set to expose foreign journalist to phony spy charges.

The framing of Nick Daniloff happened to fall just as arms control negotiations were starting to look up. This cut two ways: it kept President Reagan's response short of an immediate and unequivocal suspension of the negotiations; it gave Mikhail Gorbachev some incentive to clear the case on terms satisfactory to the United States. As it is, Mr. Reagan has come under attack in some customarily friendly domestic quarters, among others, for seeming to pull his punche Whether he can yet emerge able to continue his sound and broadly popular policy aimed at improving some aspects of Soviet-American relations depends on how the terms of the freeing of Nick Daniloff play

House Overrides Sanctions Veto By Edward Walsh

WASHINGTON - The House on in aid to disadvantaged South Monday easily overrode President Reagan's veto of legislation that tions against South Africa as Reagan, maneuvering to sustain the veto in the Senate, offered to impose some of the same measures against Pretoria by executive or-

The House's 313 to 83 vote to override was never in doubt. In the main battleground, the Republi-can-controlled Senate, supporters of the sanctions bill predicted that the promised executive order would fail to deter that chamber from also defying the president and enacting the measure into law later this week.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., the chief architect of the sanctions bill, said failure to override the veto would be seen by the South African government as a victory and cast the United States in the role of aplogists for apartheid. "The foreign policy issue is not just the number of sanctions the consent of the governed." imposed on South Africa," Lugar said. "To argue that there are Republican sanctions, Imposed by the president, as opposed to bi partisan congressional sanctions weakens American foreign policy.'

Reagan, repeating a maneuver that succeeded last year in heading off congressional enactment of sanctions legislation, offered the executive order compromise in a letter to Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., and House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr., D-Mass. If his veto is susting the design of the leave that is the leave that the Jr., D-Mass. If his veto is sustained, the president said, he would ban the import of South African government and its segencies from holding U.S. bank' accounts and provide $25 million

Jr., D-Mass. If his veto is sustained, the president said, he new economic assistance, which the House approved September 18 in the wake of an enthusiastically received address to Congress by Philippine President cause someone came here and gave a speech," said Dole, warping against what he called a "rush to counterrevolutionaries, or contrast.

Africans.

These provisions are contained in the sanctions legislation, which also includes a number of other steps that Reagan ignored. The bill would ban the import of uranium, coal, textiles, and agricultural products from South Africa, sever the U.S. landing rights of South Afri can Airways and prohibit U.S. government agencies from buying goods and services from South Africa or assisting trade efforts with South Africa.

In his letter to Dole and O'Neill Reagan said he was disappointed that South Africa, "instead of moving further down the once promising path of reform and dialogue, has turned to internal repression." He said the sanctions he proposed "are incontestably necessary in today's circumstances" and would "make it plain to South Africa's leaders that we cannot conduct business as usual with a government that mistakes the consent of the governed."

Out Of A Gilded Cage | Daniloff Freed By Russians

after Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze negotiated a complex compromise in which Daniloff's release without trial was the first step. "It's wonderful to be back in the West," Daniloff said as he arrived n Frankfurt, West Germany, after 30-day ordeal that began with his arrest in Moscow on espionage charges. President Resgan, who announced Daniloff's release at a political rally in Kansas City, said the Soviets had "blinked" after days of intensive diplomatic negotiations in which the U.S. government insisted that the

However, administration sources said that the Shultz-Shevardnadze discussions, driven on both sides by a desire to remove obstacles to a superpower summit this year, also had produced an agreement that Gennadi Zakharov, a Soviet citizen charged with spying while working for the United Nations, would soon be returned to the Soviet Union. Zakharov would be returned "in the interests of national security." probably after entering a no-conest plea to three charges of espionage. He was arrested Aug. 23 on a subway platform in New York as he allegedly tried to pay an FBi informant $1,000 for classified documents on military jet engines.

Administration sources said that, at an unspecified time after Zakharov's return, some Soviet dissidents also would be released. They said that Shultz and Shevardnadze also had discussed the case of a 47-year-old Soviet breast cancer patient and her husband, a Jewish "refusenik" who has sought to leave the Soviet Union for 20 years.

Without linking it to any other matter, Soviet authorities in Mos-cow on Monday told this couple, Tatyana and Benjamin Bogomolny, that they have "per-mission to leave" and will receive a formal visa within two weeks, according to Dr. Gerald Batist, a Montreal cancer researcher who spoke with Tatyana Bogomolny by

The compromise also included an agreement to limit the size of the Soviet mission at the United Nations and to expel "most" of 25 Soviet officials identified as spies, administration sources said. But a U.S. official pointed out that the Soviets say they have only 205 staff members currently assigned to their U.N. mission and may

Senate Rejects Extra Aid To Philippines

By Helen Dewar

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Monday rejected $200 million in Senate Majority Leader Robert additional aid to the Philippines as it began debate over a huge, complicated and controversial catchall spending bill for next year that is thwarting plans for adjournment of the 99th Congress. The new componity resistances of the Philippines proposed by Minor-lity Leader Robert C. Byrd, D. W.Va., and supported by Foreign W.Va., and supported by Foreign to a "knee-jork" repsonse by the House, and questioning Philippine committent to rotaining U.S. military bases.

Dole indicated later that, if legal complications can be worked out, he may be able to support a compromise involving transfer to

WASHINGTON — American journalist Nicholas Daniloff flew out of Moscow to freedom on Monday administration directive limiting the Soviet mission personnel to 218 by Oct. 1. The names of the 25 Soviets who the administration said are spies have never been made public. A White House official said on Monday that "a few" of these 25 may be allowed to remain because the information about their purported espionage activities is not as definite as it is for others on the list. An official familiar with the negotiations said the list of the 25 purported spies had included "some negotinting room". He also said the Soviets accepted privately

By Lou Cannon

that the United States had a right to limit the size of the mission

despite protesting publicly that the action was illegal. Additional discussions will be held on the Reagan administration's order that the Soviet mission be reduced to 170 employees over three years, officials said.

Although White House and State Department officials main-tained a public silence on details of the negotiations, they were privately jubilant because Daniloff had been released without even having to enter a plea in a Soviet court and Zakharov will not contest the charges against him. They 25 purported spies have left for the Soviet Union or will depart soon. "We got everything we wanted," a White House official said.

However, the Soviets are expect ed to say that they prevailed in the confrontation because Zakharov is being allowed to return to the Soviet Union - as they have insisted should have been the case from the beginning. The Soviets have insisted on "equivalency" between Daniloff and Zakharov. Reuters quoted Valentin Karymov, spokesman for the Soviet U.N. mission, as saying that Zakharov would be released soon. If one was released, the other will be released for sure," Karymov said. But U.S. officials are presenting the compromise not as a Zakharov-Daniloff swap but as a swap of Zakharov for Soviet dissidents. Among the dissidents mentioned who may be freed are Yuri Orlov, founder of the Soviet Helsinki Watch Committee, and Jew-ish activists Ida Nudel, Vladimir Slepak and David Goldfarb. The latter is a friend of Daniloff's who said the KGB tried to induce him to frame the correspondent.

Whatever the ultimate historical verdict on the outcome of the diplomatic sources agree that the desire of both sides to hold a second summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev contributed to the outcome. "It quickly became apparent cussions in Washington that both sides realized we are on a summit track, and wanted to stay on that track," said a White House official. One source familiar with the negotiations said they "preserved de fensible ground rules for superpower relationships".

Daniloff, a 51-year-old U.S.

News & World Report correspondent who has just completed five years in Moscow, vigorously protested his innocence and backed by Reagon, who called his arrest an "outrage" and vowed on Sept. 8 that there would be "no trade" of him for Zakharov. On Sept. 12, Daniloff and Zakharov wore released from jail to the custody of their ambassadors in Moscow and New York, an arrangement that provoked conservative criticism of the president because it appeared to treat the two cases equally.

'More Sorrow Than Anger'

By Robert J. McCartney and Gary Lee

NICHOLAS Daniloff stepped off a Lufthansa plane in Frankfurt on Monday evening to end a 30-day ordeal that began when the KGB arrested him in Moscow and ac-cused him of apying. Daniloff and his wife Ruth flew from Moscow after the U.S. government reached a deal with the Kremlin allowing the reporter to leave Soviet terri-

Ruth Daniloff, a 51-year-old Briton, had tears in her eyes as she stood by her husband on the runway and a magazine colleague of her husband handed her a Tshirt reading, "Free Nick

Daniloff did not smile, but appeared grim, as he accused the Soviets of having sought to frame him. "The KGB did not punish me. The KGB punished itself," said Daniloff. "I think it's obvious to everybody what has happened over this last month. I was arrested without an arrest warrant. A case was fabricated against me for the narrow political purpose of giving the Soviet Union some political leverage over the case of Gennadi Daniloff had arrived at Moscow's Sheremety Airport for the depar-ture shortly after 6 o'clock, and, fighting tears, told reporters in a brief statement, "I must say I leave of a poem by 19th century Russian poet Mikhail Lermontov, saying the poet's words, written when he was exiled to the Russian Caucasus, best expressed his own feelings.

"Farewell, unwashed Russia .Country of slaves, country of gentry And you, blue coated soldiers And you, obedient people. Porhaps, behind the spine of the

I hide myself from your pashes Prom your all-seeing eyes And your all-hearing ears."

1986 The Washington Post Co. All rights reserve

Labor And The American Bases In Britain

LONDON - Neil Kinnock, the voluble, rec LONDON — Neil Kinnock, the voluble, rea-headed Welshman who leads Britain's opposition Labor Party, plans to travel to the United States in December to give a speech at Harvard University that will outline Labor's proposed policies for British defense. It will be Kinnock's first trip across the North Atlantic since late 1983, when the North Atlantic since late 1983, when many Americans, in and out of government, listened with appalled or amused incredulity to Labor proposals for the unilateral dismantling of Britain's independent nuclear arsenal, the expulsion of U.S. cruise missiles and the closing of all U.S. nuclear bases in this country.

The proposals, although still a little rough around the edges, have been refined since then. But the message Kinnock will bring to the United States is essentially the bring to the United States is essentially the same: Labor is committed to a nuclear-free

Moreover, it is pledged to work within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for a and an overall nuclear-weapons freeze.

The main difference between 1983 and now is that three years ago, Labor had just suffered its most disastrous electoral defeat ever, due in no small part to public rejection of its defense policy. This time, with new elections due no later than mid-1988, and possibly as early as next spring, Labor may well win.

The most recent public-opinion poll, released last Thursday, gave Labor the support of 40 percent of the electorate, six points ahead of the governing Conservatives. Conducted by Marplan, a leading British pollster, it showed an 11-point swing in Labor's favor since the 1983 elections, and put Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at her lowest standing in three

According to U.S. diplomats in several Western European countries, the possibility of a Labor victory has just started to register in Washington. But it already has provoked some reaction. In an interview last May with The Sunday Times, the U.S. ambassador to Britain, Charles Price, warned that if Labor went ahead with its warned that if Labor went ahead with its pledge to remove American missiles from British soil, U.S. public and Congressional support could build to end the American military presence in Britain altogether. In a recently taped interview televised here Monday, the day Labor opened its annual party conference, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said that an antinuclear Labour government in Britain could lead to the breakup of NATO.

Diplomats are hoping the Reagan admin-

Diplomats are hoping the Reagan administration will remain calm, avoiding public threats and predictions of doom that could be interpreted as interference and cause voter backlash in the current anti-American climate here. But even the most sanguine among them privately agree with Weinberger. "If the Labor Party won with a wirking majority," said one, "we could be looking at the start of what might be the most serious crisis ever to affect NATO in its history."

In defense planning terms, Britain's island geography serves as the ideal storage site for much of NATO's war-fighting equipment — both nuclear and conventional

- and as the jumping off point for trans-Atlantic reinforcement of U.S. troops.

The problem is seen much more as a political than a strategic one, however.

Britain is different from the reat of NATO, said a U.S. official who closely follows the alligners. follows the alliance. For reasons of history, relationship with the United States is one "that you can't repoat with any other country in Europe." Britain is seen as the guarantor of Western Europe's commitment to NATO and, therefore, to America. "If you don't have this intimate military relationship" between the two countries, the official said, "you do not have NATO. If you do not have NATO, given the record of the continent, you will have another war in

To Labor policy-makers, that argument is both nonsense on its face and a misrepresentation of a party program that Labor defense spokesman Denzil Davies says is "totally committed to NATO." In its newly refined version — the result of hard-fought internal party battles since 1983 - Labor couples its non-nuclear promise with a pledge to beef up Britain's conventional forces, both at home and in the British Army of the Rhine in West Germany. The party is committed to maintain British By Karen DeYoung defense-spending at a level that would still exceed that of any other major NATO government in Europe.

government in Europe.

Their weapons proposals, party officials say, would simply put Britain in the same category as the NATO majority in Western Europe that does not allow nuclear weapons based on its soil. And, they argue, the implemented policy would put Britain in the forefront of a growing belief throughout the continent that current NATO strategy is the for wholesale revision. is due for wholesale revision.

"The climate is much more favorable," said Denis Healey, a former British defense minister and currently Labor's foreignaffairs spokesman, in an interview. "There is a growing school of thought on both sides of the Atlantic in favor of a non-nuclear strategy for NATO, and a non-provocative conventional strategy. "I wouldn't by any means claim it is a majority, even in the defense intelligentais," Healey said. "But it is a growing strain, even in America."

Ironically, the 70-year-old Healey is as responsible for Britain's nuclear capability and its deep defense ties with the United States as any still-active politician here. He was first elected to Parliament in 1945, ing social services under her government. Conservative Party analysts acknowledge that a principle part of Tory strategy to keep these new voters in the fold during the next election is to remind them of Labor's degree policies. dangerous defense policies.

While the unilateralists seem now to have a bigger hold over Labor than ever, the party's strategists maintain that Labor has party's strategists maintain that Labor has learned its lesson. "Defense policy can't win an election by itself," said the senior analyst, "but it can lose one." Labor believes the vote-losing potential of its defense policy has been mitigated since 1983 by several factors. Principle among them is its new commitment to beef up Britain's conventional forces and keep defense spending at its current high level, as much as 5 percent of national income, for the first several years of a Labor government. "In the last election, we were the party of disarmament but not of defense," said defense spokesman Davies in a speech to senior military officers late last year. "The argument now is how late last year. "The argument now is how best to defend Britain within the western alliance, rather than . . . whether we want to defend Britain at all."

Labor hopes to save money to spend on along with the postwar Labor government of Clement Attlee, the leading force in the spiablishment of NATO. The Truman-Attlee accords of the early 1950s are still in effect as the secret guidelines governing the U.S. military presence in Britain. As then-Prime Minister Harold Wilson's defense secretary Minister Harold Wilson's detense secretary from 1964 to 1970, Healey presided over the deployment of the four Polaris submarines, with 64 missiles, that still form the backbone of the British nuclear arsenal.

Along with former U.S. Defense Secretary Robert MacNamara, Healey helped develop NATO's "for wire".

NATO's "trip-wire" strategy, the 1980s doctrine holding that early use of nuclear weapons was the best way to fight a war against the Soviets in Europe. In 1983, Healey and a fellow party "Atlanticist," former Prime Minister James Callaghan, drove two of the principle nails in Labor's electoral coffin when they publicly disagreed with the party's promise to unilatorally dismantle the Polaris system without first negotiating comparable weap-ons cuts with the Soviet Union.

Atlanticists, along with what one senior Labor defense analyst calls the "strong jingoistic tradition" of grass-roots support-ers in the trade-union movement, held the balance of party power against the "peaceniks," those who favored unilateral disarmament on moral grounds. In the early 1980s, however, following NATO's decision to deploy intermediate-range nuclear weap-ons in Western Europe, and a low ebb in U.S.-Soviet relations, the unilateralist voice became the loudest in the party. As Labornow acknowledges, however, its volume and stridency, combined with public evidence of dissension over defense questions within the conventional defense by canceling Trident, the £14 billion nuclear weapon submarine system Thatcher has ordered to replace the aging Polaris. Additional funds will come from money currently spent on Britain's "out-of-area" military commitments, which Labor also would cancel. After extensive internal debate with those who wanted all savings devoted to domestic social pro-grams, Labor now has pledged to use "a significant portion of the savings" to restore "the short-term sconomies in conventional defenses which the Conservatives will need defenses which the Conservatives will need to introduce to pay for Trident."

The country's third leading political force, the Liberal and Social Democratic alliance, as well as a majority of Britons, according to opinion polls, agree that Trident should be canceled as too expensive. Additionally, even many within the military are made transfertable by its resistance and research and research. uncomfortable by its multiple-warhead missiles, which could multiply Britain's nuclear arsenal up to 16 times over Polaris.

The proposal to scrap Polaris with no replacement at all, however, is a different still favor maintaining an independent nuclear deterrent — if only to lessen dependence on the U.S. nuclear umbrella, and to keep up with the French.

According to party documents, Labor colicy is to press the current government to phase out Polaris in international arms negotiations. If this is not done, "Labor will, ences with the unilateralists led by the powerful Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, Britain's largest peace organization.

to Deputy Prime Minister William Whitelaw — by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev during a Parliamentary visit. Party strategists hope that any internal disagreement over Polaris can be papered over during the electoral campaign, and are counting on Healey, who wants to become foreign secretary under the next Labor government, not to call attention to the issue. The party expects much more notice to be paid to its promise to "regularize" the presence of U.S. military forces here. "That means the bases, more than anything else," said the Labor defense analyst. It is a policy expected to meet with widespread public approval, particularly evident since Thatcher's highly unpopular decision last April to allow the U.S. raid on Libya to be launched from air bases in Britain.

"The Libyan bombing legitimized the debate" over the U.S. presence here, said
Robert Worcester of the Market Opinion and Research Institute. "Up to the day that happened," he said, "Labor defense policy had no credibility. It was not a subject of legitimate debate, and it was dismissed by both the pundits and the electorate."

U.S. diplomats tend to agree. "There is already an antipathy toward the Reagan administration" in Europe, said one. "That's where the Libya raid really hurt," by implying that the administration took no notice of European opinion, even while using European territory.

But although Labor documents call for "the unconditional removal of all U.S. nuclear weapons and nuclear bases from British soil and British waters," it remain unclear which U.S. installations here the party has in mind. Nuclear weapons are permanently based at only a handful of facilities — two bases where U.S. cruise missiles are deployed, five airfields with "nuclear capable" aircraft, and the Possidon submarine base located at Holy Lock Scotland. But there are as many as 100 installations with facilities related to the U.S. nuclear role in NATO, including communications and intelligence sites, weapons storage depots and other posts.

"Minimalists" in the party, such as Healey, interpret the policy as signaling the start of lengthy negotiations with the United States and the rest of NATO over the conditions and schedule for withdrawal But a substantial segment of "maximalists," said the Labor defense analyst, contend the policy means "everybody out . . . all bases with any nuclear-related function."

There is some hope among party moderates that success in ongoing U.S. Soviet arms reduction negotiations in Europe will begin to resolve many of Labor's disarmament dilemmas before the next election here. Concurrent with their campaign preparations, Labor leaders are working to solidify the party's links with Wostern Europe's other socialist and social democratic movements, in the belief that they are riding a political pendulum that gradually is swinging the entire region toward the nonnuclear left.

toward the nonnuclear left.

It is an assessment that many U.S. and other Western diplomats do not entirely dispute. Three years after NATO saw the first European deployments of U.S. cruise missiles as marking the beginning of the end of the disarmament movement, alliante doctrines are again being called into question, along with what is perceived so outdated U.S. dominance. "The preceived used to be generally agreed," said-see diplomat. "Now they aren't." The pre-NATO left and center in Europe are whether NATO's current strategy of maintaining the capability for a "fignile" taining the capability for a "fignile" tends. taining the capability for a "flexib conventional-nuclear response to an stack from the East, the policy successor to "tributing" has itself become outmodel "tripwire," has itself become outmoon.

Terms like "nonprovocative" and "defen sive" conventional defense have incressing

ly appeared in mainstream party platforms. Several reasons are given for the shift that on assuming office, decommission Polaris is beginning to be perceived in Europe. Writing momention of prior negotiations with the Russians, a prerequisite still held necessary by Atlanticiats such as Healey. Yet Healey said circumstances have resolved his differences with the unilateralists led by the powerful Campaign for Nuclear Disarmadissension over defense questions within the Labor leadership, amounted to electoral poison. Labor's traditional supporters within the patriotic working class voted in the patriotic working class voted in droves for Thatcher, who had just led Britain to victory in the Falklanda War.

Today, much of Thatcher's working-class support threatens to become a casualty of forces if we got rid of ours." Healey said this question of European defense has been largely exormake aquivalent outs in their strategic ed a seasoned alliance-watcher here forces if we got rid of ours." Healey said this question of European defense has been the high unemployment rates and decreas. Soviet commitment was made to him—and reopened." nuclear weapons reductions, a growing lar-of confidence in American decision-making

TORONTO - Prime Minister Brian Mulroney startled then riled many Canadians with his declaration last month that Canada is afflicted with a drug "epidemic".

The jeers were even louder when Mulroney volunteered to submit to a urinalysis, as Reagan had done and seemed to indicate that he favored mandatory drug to indicate that he favored mandatory drug testing for Canadian government employees, as had been advocated within the Reagan administration.

The leader of Canada's opposition Liberal Party, John Turner, said, "I can't help wondering if there is any bandwagon that goes by that Mr. Mulroney doesn't jump on."

Mulroney tried in vain to extricate himself from the controversy that followed his speech recently in Vancouver, where he himself from the controversy that followed his speech recently in Vancouver, where he promised new legislation to combat drug abuse. The problem, he said, "has become an epidemic which undermines our economic as well as our social fabric".

The prime minister indicated that it was mere coincidence that he had raised the alarm just as President and Mrs. Reagan were going on the air to launch their war on that they sometimes have difficulty distinguishing their own situation from the one south of the border.

Cartoon by Ed Franklin in the Toronto Globe and Mail

For example, teenagers arrested here who have been raised on a diet of American Norm Bolen, the executive producer of the CBC radio program that Mulroney had cited, said it "did not talk in any way about a drug epidemic in Canada". A follow-up aired later was devoted to discounting from a ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court, not Canada's.
Last fall, parents in Montreal followed

The ensuing flap appeared to illustrate two somewhat contradictory strands of Canadian thinking. On the one hand, Canadians are so influenced by American television programs, magazines and movies in Canadians are so influenced by American subsided once school officials assured the

Critics say Canada's Prime Minister found 'epidemic' by looking south, then imported remedy

Mulroney's 'Me-Tooism' Touches Canadians' Raw Nerve

By Herbert H. Denton

Quebec parents that, unlike in New York, no Montreal child had been diagnosed at that time as having the deadly disease.

On the other hand, Canadians like to think they have a distinct cultural identity that sets them apart from Americans. They react with fury when they perceive their leaders to be marching to a tune set in leaders to be marching to a tune set in Washington.

Turner had little opportunity to gloat about Mulroney's difficulties on this score. Later in the week, his former campaign manager, Keith Davey, said in excerpts from an upcoming book that in 1984 Turner, then prime minister, had backed away from an attack on U.S. nuclear policy after being so advised by his friend, Secretary of State George P. Shultz. The disclosure has touched off a major ruckus as Turner prepares for a possible challenge to his leadership of the Liberal Party at its convention in November. convention in November.
As Mulroney began backing off his initial expressions of support for drug testing, one of his ministers, Barbara McDougall, rejected the idea outright. "We don't live in a police state in Canada and we don't intend to create one," she said.

Later, neither the members of Mulroney's personal staff nor officials at the Health and Welfare Ministry had documentation of a weitare Ministry had documentation of a drug epidemic here.

Customs inspectors and Royal Canadian Mounted Police drug enforcement officers noted that Mulroney recently had cut back on the numbers of drug investigators and airport and border inspectors.

"Mr. Mulroney should put up or shut up; his attangents appears years, contradictors."

his statements appear very contradictory," said Mansel Legacy, president of the customs agents' union.

CBC producer Bolen said his program had discussed indications that a ring of Iranians was peddling a cheap grade of heroin in the contradictions of the customs of the contradictions of the customs of the c was pedding a cheap grade of heroin in video arcades and reggae clubs in Montreal but that experts had estimated heroin addicts thero numbered only about 5,000. In Toronto, Garth Martin, head of treat-ment services for the provincially run Addict Research Foundation, said of drug abuse in Ontario, "We have some reason to be optimistic even though we are seeing a modest increase in cocaine users". He said the increase was largely among those 30 to 45 years old and appeared to cut across all classes. Among teenagers, though, he said, there was at first a "plateauing", then a decline in overall drug abuse during the past five years.

"Alcohol is atill by for the biggest drug problem," he said.

If Mulroney's remarks touched off a political furor, they appeared to have accomplished little else. In a downtown Toronio strip, uniformed police officers appeared to be making no special effort to halt drug trafficking.

By 5:06 that Friday afternoon, the entire drug enforcement branch of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police unit in Toronto had cleared out for the weekend. Callers were advised to phone on Monday.

Thousands Still Homeless One Year After Mexico Earthquake

MEXICO CITY — More than 80,000 people are still living in temporary shelters in streets and parks one year after their homes were destroyed by the Mexico City earthquake, putting officials on the defensive about slow-moving reconstruction efforts.

Mulroney's comment.

drugs. Mulroney said his comments were prompted by a Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

prompted by a Canadian Broadcasting Corp. radio documentary that morning on drug abuse in Canada.

Editorial writers and cartoonists across the country lambasted Mulroney for what some described as his "me-tooism". Physicians, police and drug-abuse experts said that while drug abuse, particularly of cocaine, has been growing in Canada, the problem was far less serious than in the United States.

Norm Bolen, the executive producer of the

In the government's latest effort to show progress in its earthquake housing programs. President Miguel de la Madrid ceremonially presented diseaser victims with titles to 6,300 new federally built apartments last week, bringing to 23,600 the number of families said officially to have received permanent new homes.

The president proclaimed a day of national mourning on the first anniversary of the quake and all radio stations went silent for one radio stations went silent for one minute at 7:18 a.m., the hour the first of several quakes and a shortage of funds but by bureau.

aftershocks hit the city.

In all, officials estimated, the Sept. 19, 1985, earthquake left about 90,000 families in need of housing aid. Another 52,000 apartments are to be completed before the earthquake's second anniversary, according to administration officials. But two years after the disaster, they acknowledged, at least 10,000 families will probably remain unhoused.

Officials had originally promised to provide housing for all affected families by last Christmas. But while 12,500 unoccupied state housing units were quickly handed out to homeless government em-ployees, according to official ac-counts, construction of most new housing projects did not get under-way until Easter.

Cuauhtemoc Abarca, the coordinator of a combative coalition of organizations representing the homeless, led protest marches the homeless, led protest marches against the program's slow progress; bitterly criticizing the government's decision to spend international aid on the reconstruction of schools and hospitals instead of housing.

The 44,000 new center city apartment has consistent by tried to hide information and minimize the facts, "Abarca said, are tiny by middle-class Mexican In the anniversary week the standards, with barely 500 square feet of floor space. But for most again reported only that death certificates had been occupants, the new units are an improvement over their former, far from the ruins, declining to estimate the program's slow and the consistent by tried to hide information and minimize the facts, "Abarca said, In the anniversary week the government again reported only international feet of floor space. But for most instead of housing." government's decision to spend international aid on the recon-struction of schools and hospitals instead of housing. instead of housing.

shelter for the homeless and crimishelter for the homeless and criminal prosecution of officials responsible for allegedly faulty construction of government buildings. Hours earlier, in a much amaller rally, several thousand government supporters gathered government supporters gathered the latest and two children. "We have electricity and it is going."

cratic conflicts that have since been resolved, they contended.

"At first, there was a lot of confusion and a lack of organization," Gabino Fraga, deputy minister of ecology and urban development, said in an interview. "It took us six months to get a housing program together. But you have to appreciate the earth-strongest ever to occur in such a in time for the presidential ceredensely populated urban area."

Measuring 8:1 on the openended Richter scale, the eathquake caused more than $3.5 billion in the continuing antagonism between physical damage in the capital and took about 20,000 lives, according to foreign diplomatic analysts, United Nations researchers and independent Mexican experts. The government has been criticized for failing to prepare its own comprehensive damage and human down the disaster.

the people, the victims of the earthquake, and the government kept the money for itself," he complained in an interview.

On the anniversary, more than 10,000 earthquake victims and their supporters marched on Mearl. co City's main square to demand term, low-interest loans, with payments not to exceed 30 percent of

at the plaza to commemorate the we have electricity, and it is going to be ours."

anniversary.

Mexican officials vehemently defended their management of foreign disaster aid, noting the absence of substantial complaints to be ours."

Acutely sensitive to charges that it mishandled the disaster, the government aponsored a series of absence of substantial complaints

By William A. Orme Jr.

memorating the earthquake and publicizing its reconstruction efforts. Internationally renowned seismologists and structural engi-neers attended scientific seminars, while foreign reporters were treat-ed to a tour of rebuilt schools, hospitals and apartment buildings. Construction crews worked over-presenting many of the earthquake victims.

Some observers traced the gov-

"The government has consistently tried to hide information and minimize the facts," Abarca said.

versations with foreign reporters and diplomats that it had claimed 9,500 victims.

Fraga said the total number of victims could range from 10,000 to 15,000, but other officials immediately characterized his estimate as being "without basis".

The U.S. Embassy here, relying on its own investigations, Mexican military sources and other western governments, concluded in a published report that 20,000 to 30,000 people were killed in the disaster.

The death toll controversy reinforced skepticism about the gov-ernment's disaster aid efforts, observers say.

"When a society is confronted with a tragedy of such magnitude and the authorities are trying to minimize it, that creates all kinds of reason for suspicion," Adolfo Aguilar Zinsser, a political analyst at Mexico's Economic Research Center, said in an interview, Officials almost reflexively underestimated the death toll,

Aguilar said, because they feared the disaster "would damage the image of an omnipotent superstate capable of handling any problem". Another motive, critics charged, involved widespread accusations square feet of downtown office space destroyed by the temblor, about 12 million square feet belonged to the government, Fragasid. Among the wrecked buildings were the headquarters of four ported, most buildings of this size ministries and a 20-story federal and design in the downtown discourt center that was the Jölly major office tower in the city to be destroyed.

More seriously, the buildings tion technique that proved vulner-with the largest losses of life were the court center that was the Jölly which had also widely employed a lightweight waffle-slab construction.

mate the complete death toll. Yet one week after the quake, federal officials estimated in private conwhere 116 staff members and an estimated 200 patients died; the Juarez Hospital, where there were, by a medical association count, about 1,000 victims; and the Nuevo Leon apartment building, where the government acknow-ledged 289 deaths but tenants' groups said at least 600 residents were killed. The government has declined to respond publicly to the charges of corruption and negligence. Yet foreign and independent Mexican experts who studied the quake damage said in an interview that the widespread destruction of government buildings was prob-ably due to causes other than lax construction standards.

"You can't say that corruption was not a factor in some instances, but the percentage of damage attributable to corruption was probably very minimal," said Jorge Prince of the National University's Engineering Institute versity's Engineering Institute, one of a team of structural engineers now preparing a tougher, more detailed antiseismic building code for Mexico City.

Most of the earthquake's damage was provoked by the unusually prolonged, severe rocking of the boggy ancient lake bed beneath Mexico's capital, scientists say. For Overshadowing the government's efforts, however, was a allegedly corrupt construction more than two minutes, was a allegedly corrupt construction almost metronomic regularity, the soft center-city subsoil surged back projects.
Officials acknowledged that quake damage was concentrated disproportionately in public buildings from five to 15 stories buildings from five to 15 stories high - structures big enough to

7190 Tive Westington Post Co. All dolute rece

The Shot Heard Round The World

"THE TARGET IS DESTROYED". What

IT took three years and one of the nation's best reporters, but we finally have a carefully researched, reasonable, readable explanation of how Korean Air Lines Flight 007 came to be shot down over Soviet

Really Happened to Flight 007 and What

America Knew About it. By Seymour M.

Hersh. Random House. 282pp. $17.95.

What makes 'The Target Is Destroyed' so good is its sense of responsibility. Seymour M. Hersh, the Pulitzer prize-winning author, probably started where many did, suspecting some U.S. role in the bizarre route that found Flight 007 more than 300 miles off course and resulted in the deaths of all 269 people on board three years ago

September 1. Such a finding would have made an exciting book. The problem is, the evidence doesn't support that conclusion, despite the attempts of several lesser authors to point the finger in that direction.

The ultimate test for a reporter is whether he has the courage, after having spent hours, days or months on a story, to tell his editors and ultimately his readers that the most socko version of what might have happened is not the truth. To do so often means a collapse at the box office.

This book should not suffer that fate. It is a fascinating account of how the superpowers behave toward each other and of how intelligence is collected and abused as well as used. It offers a plausible, nonconspiracy theory for how the crewmembers of Flight 007 might have made the big navigational mistake that carried them off course on what should have been a routine flight from Anchorage to Seoul. And it offers a warning for the future of mankind: If we can't do better than we did after this tragic incident, there is the distinct possibility we will blow

News reports about Hersh's book and published excerpts have detailed the bottom ine: The Soviets made a mistake when they shot down the airliner. They confused Flight 007, a Boeing 747 jumbo, for a U.S. Air Force surveillance plane, a military

Illustration by Gary Viskupic for the Washington Post.

nodel of the Boeing 707, that just happened to be flying in the same general area as Flight 007 before the Korean plane crossed into Soviet territory.

Air Force intelligence was able to infer the mistake within hours of the shootdown, but kept much of its information to itself while the rest of the U.S. intelligence system droned to a conclusion that led to Secretary of State George Shultz's famous news conference where he announced the shootdown and denounced the Soviets for knowingly destroying a civilian aircraft.

It was days before the truth began to filter from the intelligence world to the world at large and by that time the truth was running counter to the hugely successful anti-Soviet campaign mounted by the Reagan administration, where hardness had been working for months before the had been worrying for months before the shootdown that the United States was going to drift too closely toward a new era of Soviet understanding.

There was no danger of that after the shootdown and no reason to give the Soviets the benefit of the doubt, despite a long record of U.S. overflights of Soviet airspace going back to the U-2 era (and repeated just a few months before Flight 007) and despite a continuing and aggressive U.S. surveil-lance-plane operation just outside Soviet

The campaign against the evil empire was just beginning. Remember the big production at the United Nations, where the Japanese intelligence tape recording of the Soviet fighter pilot's radio communications (and a highly biased translation) were played for the world?

It turns out the United States was willing to display the work of the Japanese, but not of its own forces. Hersh tells for the first time that a U.S. intelligence unit in Japan heard the Soviet fighter's radio communications as they occurred, something that many Western specialists have long sus-pected. If that was the case, why wasn't the plane warned?

By Douglas B. Feaver

Hersh explains that it was unclear to U.S. intelligence for several hours what all the commotion was about, only that the Soviets had fired an air-to-air missile. That fact aside, the standard State Department answer to how the United States knew 80 much about the shootdown was that the information was collected automatically then recovered. The possibility of "real time" monitoring was always denied, even though Soviet air defense activity against Flight 007 was observed hours before the

While the Reagan administration was pressing its propaganda advantage, the Soviets were trying to figure out how to deal with a disaster. Predictably they cried "spy" and denied any guilt in the matter, although, Hersh reports, they violated their own rules of engagement when Flight 007 was shot down without first being positively

"The shootdown had come full circle," Hersh writes. "Both sides believed the worst of each other and were falsely claiming that they could prove it. Both believed that only their version of reality was the truth."

Hersh's conclusion is a warning for the future: intelligence is only as good as the use to which it is put. The U.S. electronic intelligence services behaved splendidly only to be betrayed in the process of interpretation. "The NSA [National Security Agency], which knew better, chose not to tell others in the government what they didn't want to hear," writes Hersh.

Unless Flight 007's black boxes are someday recovered from the ocean floor, no one will be able to answer with certainty the question of how the plane flew so far o course. Hersh, helped by an airline pilo familiar with the North Pacific routes makes the best effort to date at explaining to the general reader how that coul happen.

"The Target Is Destroyed" is an effective effort to explain the shades of gray in a complex problem. It deserves a wide

Douglas B. Feaver covers transportation for the National staff of The Washington Post.

MAIL ORDER

Present Surpris

imagmation which show

THEV-I-D-E-O GALLER

Boswell Street.

Gifts of quality and

THE GUARDIAN, October 5, 1986 Ralph Whitlock

No Michaelmas goose for me

SORTING an old letter file I came for twenty-one days. Nowadays it across a letter, dated 1958, from an old colleague reminiscing about a mile or so from the town centre. his early days.

"Householders grew their own yearly supply of fruit and vegeta-bles," he reminded himself. "They were never bought. You either grew them or did without. During the past few years the cult of the can-opener has grown until today more vegetables are eaten from cans than are locally grown. Some households do not grow any vege-tables or fruit but rely entirely on cans from the grocer."

Such a short time agol What would be have made of our supermarkets, stocked not only with cans and packages of every con-ceivable food but also with fresh fruit and vegetables from half the countries of the world Mangoes, okra, passion fruit, guavas, avocadoes, lemon grass, white aubergines, eddoes, sweet potatoes, as well as strawberries in November, green beans in April and mushrooms all the year round.

While marvelling at my good fortune in living in an era and country where such a cornucopia is available to me every week, provided I have the necessary cash in my pocket, I confess to an old-fashioned preference for enjoying the fruits of the earth in their proper seasons. Strawberries are for eating in early July, green peas coincide with roast ducks, mush-rooms should be gathered from dew-saturated meadows shrouded in October mists, parsnips should never be eaten until they have been frozen in the soil. To my palate, the flavour of these homeproduced delicacies far surpasses that of the best offerings of cans, packets, and deep-freeze cabinets. What started this train of thought was a letter from a reader who has travelled from afar to what she hopes is a permanent home in Nottinghamshire and who asks, Why Nottingham Goose Fair? Although I haven't attended this lively event in recent years, I believe it is now predominantly a pleasure fair, held for three days beginning on the first Thursday of October. Centuries ago it went on ably represented) did not insist!

but its original site was Nottingham's spacious market place. condition by Michaelmas. And it was known as a Goose Fair Although geese refuse to extend for the logical reason that thousands upon thousands of geese were sold there.

And why, it may be asked, did so many geese change owners just at that date? Because it provides yet another example of enjoying things in their proper season. The proper season for fat geese is Michaelmas.

Geese are one of the few agricultural products (if you can refer to such individualistic creatures as a product) which have defied all attempts at mass production. Table chicken, turkeys, pigs, ducks Cherry Valley now exports them by the hundred thousand to China), beef cattle, battery hens, veal calves, all have yielded, but geese still resolutely refuse to be so exploited. They lay their eggs within well-defined calendar limits and then stop. Time-honoured country proverbs state just when:

On Valentine's Day A good goose will lay: If she be a good goose, Her dame well to pay. She will lay two eggs, before Valentine's Day. And then, a little later: Before St Chad,

Every goose lays, both good and bad. The inference is that after St Chad's Day (March 2) goose egg-laying may be expected to taper off, which it does, quite quickly. So that gives the laying season no more than about a month.

Incubation period for a goose egg is about a month, so by the time the goslings are ready to go foraging there is fresh spring grass for them to nibble. They grow apace through the summer, giving rise to yet another proverb, "Geese in the home pasture shows that the farmer's wife wears the trousers" With their droppings they foul a pasture to such an extent that no self-respecting farmer would ever have them about the place, if his

In August the goslings would be ready to go gleaning in the stub-ble-fields as soon as the harvest had been gathered. There they would grow fat and so be in ideal their egg-laying activities to cater for a year-round mechanised infor a year-round mechanised industry, they were popular in mediaeval England and were protected by sufficient numbers of farmers' wives to produce immense hordes of fat geese. From considerations they walked in the long Library of Trinity College, Dublin, at any one time: four pages of the 680, that is. A hundred thousand people came hordes of fat geese. From considerable distances they walked in great droves to the Michaelmas

> In the little Somerset town of Ilchester a saddler and harness-maker, Mr Fred Pim, used to do a thriving business making little boots of soft leather for geese walking from Devon to London. These flocks started from Devon around the end of August and, augmented at every fair and mar-ket en route, arrived in London in time for the Christmas trade. They travelled six or eight miles a day, feeding on stubble-fields.

Another record mentions an Aylesbury smith who shod Welsh geese en route for London. And some drovers made their geese pass three times through a mixture of sawdust, tar and sand, in order to form a pad on their feet before starting their journey.
A barbarous "sport" was a feature of Michaelmas fairs in Birmingham in the eighteenth century. High above a street a live goose would be suspended by its feet from a rope stretched across the thoroughfare. Horsemen at full gallop grabbed at the goose's head and tried to pull it off as they passed beneath.

Not only would I be unable to participate in such an outrage but would have hated now to have to kill a goose by any method. Well, the method we had to employ on the farm of my boyhood days was pretty barbarous. You stunned the goose by hitting his head with a hammer and then cut its jugular vein. But I have enjoyed the company of so many pet geese in my time and have found them so intelligent that I would feel like a man committing murder. No Mi-chaelmas goose for me, thank you.

Me and my 'displaced vertebrae'

Book of swells

THE Book of Kells, the most famous and maybe even the finest illuminated manuscript in the world, is to be made available to the man in the street. Not, admittedly, quite the ordinary man in the street: one with something approaching £8,000 to spend on one copy of a limited facsimile edition of 1,500.

Since its rebinding in 1958 the Book of Kells is in four volumes, last year to see the manuscript embellish the word of God. But the with its round thousand whirliging unanswerable questions for pragloriols, as H. C. Earwicker saw it matists who want a date and the scriptorium of Iona and brought to Kells when Viking fire became too hot in the islands of Argyll, it was composed by Irish monks from the church of Irish For what we are pleased to call of Kells; even if it was written in the Dark Ages was a time of free passage among men, with no let or passage among men, with he let or passport hindrance placed on the movement of Coptic influences from the monasteries of Egypt to the Celtic communities of Ireland or on the import of the lapis lazuli of Afghanistan for the manufacture of the heavenly blues to embellish the word of God. But the unanswerable questions for prag-

Michael McNay on how the Swiss are making a priceless Irish treasure available to the gnome on the street

all tiberiously antiembellishing the initials majuscule.

In his own write, James Joyce further declared: "It is the most further declared: "It is the most purely Irish thing we have and some of the big initial letters which swing right across a page have the essential quality of a chapter of Ulyssea." Which, given that the Book of Kells may have been inscribed on Iona, or even—like that other miraculously heaulike that other miraculously beautiful gospel book in the British Museum — at Lindisfarne, is a little like calling the Bayeux Tapestry French or General Motors British.

There have been reproductions of Kells before, but nothing, say Faksimile-Verlag of Lucerne, that can truly be called a facsimile. This firm, drawing on the legend-ary expertise of the Swiss in the craft of colour printing, has got its eye in on a couple of lesser medieval manuscipts together with Les Tres Riches Heures du Duc de Berry which, given its position straddling the medieval world and the Renaissance, is for some an even greater document than the Book of Kells.

But that is art-history speak. When all is zed and done, as Earwicker has it, no work can be more sublime than sublime. And art-historical quibbling to one side, Joyce was right about the mazily intricate illuminations of the Book all, when?

How? is the easiest question to answer. The Irish church developed along monastic lines away from the influence of Rome, its art a Christian reinterpretation of decorative themes found on weapons, tools, and jewellery of the Celtic tribes of Gaul, Britain, and Ireland itself.

The facsimile edition is the baby of Urs Duggelin of Faksimile Verlag. fic exchanged contracts with Trinity College two weeks ago, but first he had to convince the college authorities by inventing a machine that would hold the Book of Kells up to the camera without putting any strain on the 1,200-year-old vellum the best guess for when the manuscript was composed is around the late 8th or early 9th century). Faksimile-Verlag aim for publication in 1990. It will take maybe 50 return air trips between Lucerne and Dublin to compare the shade of paper with vellum, the colour of uncial character with uncial character, illumination with illumination. And the venture will devour the equivalent of maybe 40 years of a single craftsman's time to get it right - rather mates of the time it took the Celtic

CLASSIFIED

Woods of Reigsto are a tong-usrablished family company. Our struction triendly and it is good to ONE WAY RENTALS BETWEEN DEPOTS er Oues M =WOODS

Offices in: REIGATE.

GLASGOW, MANCHESTER

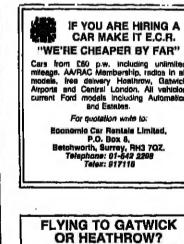

1212 STOCKPORT ROAD MANCHESTER, M19 2RA. Tel: 081-452 0664 Telez: 666614 TORTEC.Q.

LONDON HOTELS AND APARTMENTS

ELIZABETH HOTEL, London SW1. Ideal central quiet location nr. Belgravia. Sgl/Dbl/Twin/Family rms. Highly recommended, Engl. B/fast. Budget rates. Free brochure. 37 Eccleston Square, Victoria SW1V IBP. Tel: (01) 828 6812.

Leinster Gardens, W2. Moderate terms Private toilet, shower. Tel, 01-402 9062.

brochure. 37 Eccleston Square, Victoria SWIV IBP. Tel: (01) 828 6812.

LONDON — Heritage Hotel, 47/8

LONDON SWIP. Tel: 01-947 0578.

A bad back is essentially a working class condition. It comes Security Tribunal. "The appellant claimed that consequent upon his bad back, he was still unfit for

HAVE just been to the hospital rith my bad back. People with bad sacks talk like that for reasons which I intend to explain. It is not the pain that brings on the particular patois — although bad backs, as well as being one of the nest common complaints, are one of the most painful troubles from which it is possible to suffer. You will have noticed that the language remained consistent the language remained consistent throughout. Bad backs are combined in the limber muscles and described the affected organ and describe the nature of its malfunction. Bad backs are what Aunty Edith has backs are what Aunty Edith has a contact of the pain that brings on the particular patois — although bad back is the price of the trees. I hope that you are grateful. The cost can only be class are given precise scientific names which both stipulate the affected organ and describe the nature of its malfunction. Bad backs are what Aunty Edith has backs are what Aunty Edith has a contact of the pain that brings on the particular patois — although bad back is the price of the trees. I hope that you are grateful. The cost can only be class are given precise scientific names which both stipulate the affected organ and describe the nature of its malfunction. Bad backs are what Aunty Edith has backs are what Aunty Edith has a backs are what Aunty Edith has a backs are what Aunty Edith has backs are beginning to grind on each of the talk about it. Normally when people ask me "how are includi

Bad backs are also risible. As, last week, I walked into the directly from the minutes of a surgery speaking the immortal Department of Health and Social line, "Doctor, I've got a bad back." I felt that I had become a bit part player in a Bon Travers farce. The Crazy Gang had bad backs. Char-

By Roy Hattersley

whether or not these explanations of the cause of my condition makes work because he remained precluded from lifting heavy objects."

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did not confirm the diagnosis and sickness benefit was

Of course, the independent medical examination did no suspended. None of the Mitford gels had backs. No bulletin, where between haemorrhoids and gels had backs. No bulletin, gels had bad backs. No bulletin, hanging on the gates of Clarence House, ever described the latest news on the bad back which the Queen Mother endured.

The aristoratic and the heroic tennis elbow.

The aristoratic and the heroic tennis in Hillsborough think, that is what they described the shooting pains the think that is what they described the shooting pains that spread from the base of my least entitled to described the described the shooting pains the tornis in Hillsborough think, that is what they described the shooting pains the tornis in Hillsborough think, that is what they described the shooting pains the tornis in Hillsborough think, that is what they described the shooting pains the tornis in Hillsborough think, that is what they described the shooting pains the tornis in Hillsborough think, that is what they described the shooting pains the tornis in Hillsborough th ser-by (who thought he was offering a variation on "Good morning") has passed by. Last week, in the Reform Club, a erson whom I barely know said person whom I carely know that it was all to do with reflexes and that she could put me right by To be frank, I have no idea manipulating my feet. Other helpful suggestions have involved acupuncturists, osteopaths and hothe sarsaparilla shop to which I went for light refreshment after

I insist on being treated by a proper doctor . . . a superior sub-species of the human race which can be easily defined. Proper doc-tors are 55. Proper doctors wear tweed suits and are Scottish. They can produce an endless stream of reasuring cliches like "we'll get you right in no time," and they save no truck with fancy modern theories that require complicated and expensive equipment to be installed in their consulting room. No matter how great the emergency they are never asked to call lighted and the steps swept. They are only visited after the parts of the anatomy which they are to examine have been thoroughly washed and clean underwear has been put on. Proper doctors always ask if you want a sick note.

But they are careful not to write upon it, the dreadful diagnosis "bad back." For nobody takes bad backs seriously, It is the disease of malingerars, the condition of the work-shy, the affliction of the lazy. They write "trapped nerve" or "displaced vertebrae" and they smile comforting smiles. At least, l

the second states of a LD technic projection with mage

91585 The Washington Post Co. All rights reserved.

Sullow Budge, Neigate, Surrey RH2 8PF Int. Heigate (073 72) 40291. Telex 947064

TV: Nancy Banks-Smith goes round the world and into space to hear English as she is exported

IT IS in general a good idea when writing to throw away your first paragraph. This is because you have taken particular pains to write it beautifully. It is, in consequence, completely unintelligible. I became a TV critic somewhat suddenly when the former critic went off his head and the reason they noticed was not that his first par made no sense — that was to be expected — but neither did his second, his third or fourth.

The Story of English (BBC 2) adderoads while nobody was lockshould have thrown away the first three.

There was a strong temptation to wander off down secluded adderoads while nobody was locking. Who, for instance, were this

IT IS Zeffirelli's Otello. But it is posed extended forms too bulky and static for film: the music for both operas lasts two hours ten minutes, so sheer length was only a partial consideration since the film itself is over two hours.

Instead of sticking to the shapes and pace of the drama as Verdi programme. An English-Speaking World. I can't believe it won't get better now they have got that off their chest. It was like being a lady-in-waiting on some exhausting and eccentrically planned world tour. Russia, Barra, Ghana, Sierra Leone. "May I present William Saphire, America's most widely-read language guru?" "How do you do, language guru." "And the Prime Minister of Singapore" "How do you do Lee Kuan Yew." On, on, to California to meet Moon Zappa — "who flashed around the world" — and half a dozen West Coast kooks. On to Japan, China and the reaches of outermost space with Voyager. No wonder Prince Charles likes to sit in his arbour talking to the roses after one of prewar couple, both in evening dress, reading from an actionpacked script in cut-glass accents? "What's thet?" "It's gulls. We've disturbed them." "Better keep clear of the benks." At which a disturbed them." "Better keep clear of the benks." At which a little man in spectacles and evening dress did an impression of a seagull and the woman cred thrillingly, "He deserves to die."

Or the Notary in India offering "Affidavits, photos power of etter"

"Affidavits, photos, power of attorney, bond, hundies attested here." Hundies? You mean, er ladies hundies? Or the octogenarian former president of Slerra Leone who keeps a stuffed lioness in his study (and whose son when last heard of Brighton. "How far is Brighton?" asked one gloomily. "It's 85 kilometres away," said Francis Matthews. No-one hit him. "How repeated a young Chinese with the shining wonder of a child asking how many miles to Babylon. It is a pity a programme about English should be so badly written. By a Scotsman as it happens. And if English is so wonderful, why did everyone refer to it as a lingua franca?

It is faintly unfortunate that the was improving his English at Her Majesty's Pleasure). Or the little group of Chinese following, with touching attention, an English by television programme, Follow Me, which has the largest audience in the largest audience China. A group of middle-aged Private, In Public (ITN) thinks talk to themselves) I ha actors were discussing going to George III had many good points. a lonelier looking man.

The tree seconded that Alan J Lerner said he talked to the trees but complained that they didn't listen to him. Prince Charles however, says, "They respond,

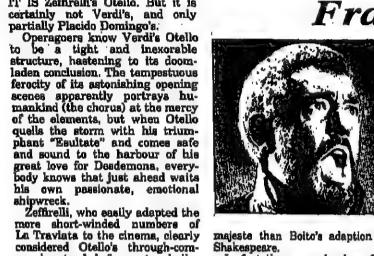

Gardeners' Question Time, con-sulted on this very issue, held that if plants benefit from being talked to, it is because you are in a better position to see that they are riddled with thrips, blight, moles, mould and the invisible worm that flies in the night. I find they respond well to threats of violence. This is known as the Princess Anne approach.

Anne approach.

The next question, and the pity of this programme is that no questions were asked, is what does he say to them?

In Private, In Public was inedvertently illuminating. Apart from round the world yachtsman (whe talk to themselves) I have not see maieste than Boito's adaption of Shakespeare.

Franco's wash-out

In fact the opera develops further the growing claustrophobia of the play, the sense not of opening up but of closing down, until the whole theatrical universe is the tragic i rony of that tangled couple on the bed. These things are hard to look upon, and what both play and opera suggest is the black gulf within the soul of man.

devised, Zeffirelli has pulled the thing apart and reconstituted it even to the extent of omitting entirely the Willow song from the The film naively persists in exploring the faces, and becomes last scene, and inserting extrane-ous dance music that Verdi wrote in the process one of the most revealing demonstrations of the revealing demonstrations of the limits of naturalism. Since a kind for Paris in 1896 on two occasions. In effect, Zeffirelli has divided of vulgar theatrical realism has Verdi's sustained operatic strucalways been Zeffirelli's tactic, this Otello film turns out to be his tures into bite-size chunks that can then be presented as visually diverse scenes.

But the idea of opening-up Otello with mobile camerawork so that there's no risk of the ennui of Water indeed is his downfall, from the very first moments. Verdi's opening metaphysical that there's no risk of the ennui of a static drama inevitably runs contrary to its theatrical reality. Zeffirelli claims that his treatment of the Verdi is no more lese-

Boito says it's a stormy night: Zeffirelli films a Mediterranean monsoon day. Everybody rushes around getting wetter and wetter, and Domingo launches into the Esultate from the side of his ship almost at the dockside.

Naturalism never extends to the musical performances; the voices overwhelm the orchestra, which is itself artificially distorted and re-balanced so that it approximates to film music (with expressionistic cellos accompanying Otello's jealous entry later on magnified to

Verdi and for us spectators that Otello and Desdemone's affair in the first act of the opera is flawless. Iago's aspersions are mere wishful thinking on his part.

But the film-maker can and does that the film-maker can and does his sense of perfect love, not lago's cynicism, is wishful thinking.

That, evidently, is why Prince

Urbano Barberini was cast in (but does not sing) the part of Cassio: a blonde Roman scion of an ancient aristocratic house. Barberini phys-ically resembles Katia Ricciarelli—and this, Zeffreeli feels, helps to explain Otello's so speedy suspiof artificiality. The conflict of emotions is dissipated in loose and flaccid byplay. It is typical, sadly, that such an important detail as Otello's mimicking of Iago early in the second act ("But what should I be thinking?") is out and that the great the assembled characters that scarcely fits the naturalistic tem of this film - though Zeffirelli allows himself plenty of romantic hyperbole in the presentation of various famous scenes.

Otello sweeps up and down long stairways: Iago declares his Creo into a vertiginous circular court-yard; the first love duet with Desdemona takes place in or on bed after an interpolated weddingfeast; the handkerchief dialogue involves much peering through s Moorish screen; Dasdemona make great play in the final act with her (recently used) wedding-dress pressing its whiteness to her face like a mother in a soap-powder at Most tastelessly of all, after the final chords of the opera, Zeffirell reprises the music for "one last kiss" as the end credits roll. Instead of the shock of Verdi's last word as written, we get a sort of dewy atmospheric romance. Musical merits are mixed li's hard to judge Maazel's work as he is not, in the film, conducting the opera Verdi wrote. Domingo sounds often magnificent, with the familiar richness of that superbinstrument: the highpoint, and the best filmed Domingo sequence, is Diol mi potevi scagliar. Justino Dion's force lacks guitable where Diaz's lago looks suitably urbane and sinister at the same time, and sounds appropriately dark — but does not terrify with his Credo. Katia Ricciarelli makes a visually charming Desdemona, but he singing is more husky than pure The rest of the singing, dubbed on to actors' performances, is ade-

But this is not the musical experience operagoers know. Whether it will thrill non-musical giant proportions). Rather more serious is Zeffirelli's interpretative distor-tion of the value of the central love relationship. The great duet, Gia nella notte dense, concluding with "Anora un baclo," means for shatter that confidence with a glance, before the duet, that tells us Otello is already jealous — that

Tom Sutcliffe on

Of course it also allows the filmmaker, in a cutaway during lago's description of Cassio's overhead "Dream" about Desdemona, to linger with carnal exaggeration over Barberini's naked torso. As so often in the film, one has the sense concluding concertato of act 3 is bowdlerised. It is, admittedly, a moment of suspended cogitation by

Michael Billington halls a dazzling new production by Trevor Nunn at Stratford's Swan Theatre

> instance, John Napier's dezign auddenly transforms the whole air by treating this act as pure pantomime with Joe Melia playing Swan stage into a ship; ropes are the King of Fez as a nerv the stage, a couple of canvassheets become two sails, benches and trestle-tables are arranged in

> > No masterpiece has been unveiled. But what Mr Nunn has done, with the help of Shaun Davey's score and excellent fight

Raising the Titanic again

oceanographers exploded the the-ory that the Titanic's flank was

THE TITANIC, by Michael Davie (Bodley Head, £12.95).

FEW can have had more right to say "I told you so" than the retired merchant navy officer who wrote a short story in 1898 about a huge liner called the Titan hitting an icaberg. The tale was a warning against the reckless contemporary dismissal of the unparalleled danger from ice at sea, rather than the hubris implicit in overstretching current technology. But life's uncannily detailed imitation of art when the Titanic struck an iceberg on her maiden voyage 14 years later is still the best-remembered single disaster of the Western world, with a permanent place in Anglo-Saxon culture as metaphor and myth.

Just as the ship seems set to sail over the horizon of folk-memory someone recalls it. There was Walter Lord's gripping 1955 book with its wondrously understated title, A Night to Remember; Lord Grade with his financial disaster movie Raise the Titanic, of which he ruefully said, "It would have been cheaper to lower the Atlantic;" or, more seriously, the recent American discovery of the ship's resting-place by today's advanced technology. There is also a Titanic Historical Society Inc., in Massachusetts, still publishing its quarterly.

Those familiar with Michael Davie's superior Sunday journalism will not be surprised that his book on the tragedy rends extremely well and is the product of thorough research into all aspects of the story, from the conception of the world's largest liner to the discovery of its grave three-quarters of a

the press when the American torn open for 300 of its 880 feet in the collision. The hull crumpled like the side of a car, it now appears, when the 46,000-ton ship side-swiped the great iceberg at upwards of 20 knots — bash, no gash. The story still has no tidy

She was not alone in having too few lifeboats and undersized watertight bulkheads. Contrary to one of the many legends which arose, neither her builders nor her owners claimed she was "unsink-

> Dan van der Vat on the myths and realities of a famous disester

But her master, Captain Ernest Smith, should not have pounded along at night after several radio warnings of icebergs, even though he altered course to the south. He also skipped the usual Sunday morning lifeboat drill, which might have ensured that such boats as existed were filled to capacity when launched.

Captain Stanley Lord (no relation) of the Californian, a British cargo-liner, sensibly hove to for the ontire night in the same area because of the ice. Inexplicably, however, he failed to respond until dawn to a series of distress rockets from the Titanic spotted by his crew. By the time he sailed for the scene, an hour or two away, the Curpathia (Captuin Arthur Rostroni had picked up the 705 survivors and 1,522 people were

Rostron became a hero, Lord was Mr Davie's book was already off execrated, although the case the press when the American against him would have drawn a

Mortal men By David McKle

THE OXFORD BOOK OF POLI-TICAL ANECDOTES, edited by Paul Johnson (OUP, £10.95).

THE ten ministers who lost their jobs in Mrs Thatcher's autumn clearance had every reason to feel sore about their fate. But at least they were spared the humilistions which sometimes attended such dismissals in the past. Lord North, for instance, sacked

Charles James Fox in 1774 with a letter which simply said: "His Majesty has thought proper to order a new Commission of the Treasury to be made out, in which I do not see your name"; an exercise in the heroically laconic which can rarely have been matched until the premiership of Attlee, who when asked by one of his victims why exactly he was to you're not up to it."

Even that seems positively kind compared with Lord Melbourne's response when the Lord Chancellor, Lord Brougham, challenged the decision to dispose of him (they did sometimes change Lord Chancellors in those days). "It would be difficult," Melbourne conceded "to point to any marked delinquency. I will, however, tell you that in my opinion, you domineered too much, you interfered too much with other departments, you encroached upon .

leagues . . . But he added that he hoped that this incident would in no way interfere with their friend-

Anecdotes is meant to be savoured ot leisure. But one test of any such enterprise is how often it comes up with apposite tales like these to adorn contemporary events. There are already abundant signs that the Oxford Book will be repeatedly and gleefully pillaged.

Take Mrs Thatcher's reported concern that the next major episco-pal appointment should do something to radress the effect of the choice that was made at Durham:
Mr Johnson won't let you down there either. Walpole, he records, would ask of a likely bishop not in Mrs Thatcher's favourite formunore prutatiy: other words, could he be bought? Lord Halsbury, Salisbury's Lord

Chancellor, often accused of misuse of patronage, was asked whether ceteris paribus, he'd appoint the best man available to some legal post: "Ceteris paribus be damned," he replied. "I'm going to appoint my nephew."

Adam Smith, according to John son, once went out into his garden in his dressing gown, set off down walked to Dunfermline, some 15 miles away. But even that cannot the provinces of the Prime Minister, you worked, as I believe, with the Press in a manner unbecoming presented him with a signed phototo the dignity of your station, and graph of himself - a signal honour you formed political views of your — Salisbury scrutinised it for a own and pursued them by means while, shook his head, and mourn-your which were unfair to your col-

verdict of Not Proven from a Scottish court, according to Mr

He casts strong doubt on many of the legends associated with the catastrophe. There was no man in drag who took advantage of the "women and children first" rule. The rich did not behave worse than the rest, nor were they favoured (except by their upper-deck cabins) in access to the boats.

But the ship's orchestra did play galiantly to the end, starting with ragtime and finishing with a hymn not "Nearer, my God, to Thee" as reported but probably "Autumn" - which opens with the no less fitting line, "God of mercy and compassion, look with pity on my To this day someone given a task

edoomed to failure is sardonically likened to the master for band-master), and irrelevant activity to rearranging the deckchairs, on the

More usefully, the loss of the Titanic led to tighter shipbuilding standards and safety regulations, and to the foundation of the International Ice Patrol, which still functions. Not even the fate of her transatluntic rival, the smaller but much faster Lusitania, sunk by a U-boat, can rival the eternal allure of the Titanic tragedy.

She is as deeply embedded in languages and lore as she is in the bottom of the North Atlantic — the grentest ship ever to be lost in peacetime and a symbol of the finally lost in the first world war. ily expect an unswer. For Mr contemporary taste.

The world of Jane Austen

By Christopher Driver

(Athlone Press, £29.50).

IT IS a rash man who describes affinity between Jane Austen and Mozart these days, unless it is for a bout of lese-majeste a la Amis. It may still be worth wondering what it is in our own perceptions that gives us an inexhaustible appetite for the fates and trivia of both; not just the dark period of neglect that followed their early deaths nor the happier survival of consistently amusing letters to read against the works; but chiefly the curious internal smile that steals up on an admirer who has read and re-road, heard and re-heard, enough to call up at will a delightfully turned phrase from a megabyte memory.

But even the most capacious memory needs help, and here are 500 pages of "handbook" to Jane Austen. Subtract 100 for Abigail Bok's painstaking concordance of proper names throughout the whole Austen corpus, from Volume the First to Persuasion, and we are still left with 64 essays of uneven length and merit, solicited by the and dilettantl on both sides of the Atlantic.

Have you wondered whother June's letters were more or less efficiently delivered than our own.

THE JANE AUSTEN HAND-BOOK, edited by J. David Grey

Athlers Bross 200 501 in the special part of the great spread themselves and to let the small or the busy get away with little more than long footnotes on their chosen topics.

The first half of this policy works better than might be feared. David Lodge (on Form and Structure) and John Bayley (on Characterisation) show again how hard they find it to be boring or unoriginal. And though feminist criticism has certainly brought new life into Austen studies, Edward Copeland's piece on the "consumer revolution" of her time does more, with dowries and settlements and purchases of carriages or pianos, to bring out the countermasculine opportunity (or the other way around). It all makes the sex war of the 1800s not less cruel, but certainly more intelligible, than it was.

In case you ask, the Food and Drink essay knows what white soup is but cannot rise to the ten hoists in this language. On Music, Patrick Piggott reminds us (American) editor from scholars that although she was fluent on the pinneforte, she possessed no Mozart and very little Haydn. This would only be surprising if we favourite present-day female novpeacetime and a symbol of the or how to play Speculation? In clists would appear to better ad-blind faith in progress which was quire within, but do not necessur- vantage, either for facility or

f you are interested in books and commenary on books, if you enjoy lively debate about colitics, society and the arts, if you value close and careful analysis that takes you beneath the surfaces of things – then you will enjoy the LONDON REVIEW OF BOOKS.

And you can enjoy six issues of this unusual fortnightly paper free, whether or not you decide to continue vith your subscription. means you will enjoy writers and aubiects as iverse as. John Kenneth Galbraith on Truman, Angela Carter on Cluttony, Julian Barnes on Flaubert, Alan Bennott on Auden in Love, John B. y' ayon Toistoy, Kazuo Ishiguro on Yukio Mishima, pocias by Tony Harrison, Ted Hughes, Craig Raine, Flong Pitt-Kethley, stories by Martin Amis, Emma Fennant. Dan Jacobson, digries by Lord Goodman, A.J.P. Taylor, Ian Hamilton

most powerful and original writers. 'More to the point', John Ryle remarks in the Sunday Times, 'they are writing at their best.' As Clive James puts it: 'When a paper is as good as this one, it hurts to throw old copies A recent BBC Arts Review commented: 'It's not just

On every subject LRB commands the talents of the about books, it's about politics - a very good arena.' And the New Statesman praised 'the clear and contral lines of debate maintained by the LONDON REVIEW OF BOOKS over the miners' strike and the sinking of the

Try the LRB for yourself by completing the coupon

London Review

1 Add Liediniovii.
ه بدانته مسدا الحدار والحد الحدد الحدد الخيرة ويجهد عشدة المدور ويجهر محدار ويجهر اسطار سجوا	نجست المتناو مستري واستهر المتناط بيوم البيدي مشيرة ويسيع بمشتر ويستد وتبينا
FREEPOST, LRB Ltd, Tavistock House	Name
Taylstock Square, LONDON WC1H 9BR	A ddwgga

YES, I'd like to accept your trial offer and a Mr. a to the to becape your tribe one, and receive six free issues. Please enter subscription(s) to the LRB for 15 months.
£23 (UK) £32 (oversens), *
and the state of t

I understand that if, after three mon don't want to continue to subscribe cancel my subscription and get a full refu

l		••••			•••••	••••	. 1	na.	tee	ula.	•	••••	•		••••
		l o pa	nci yal	080 Sle	e a lo	ch LR	eq B	ue Lito	ſυr I.	£.,	••••	•••••		1
1		Pl	ear	e d	labi	t n	w	Ac	ces	vs// Vis	lm un /	eri Acc	en r	nt	No
	Г	Τ,	Π	1	T	Т	T	T	Τ	T	Т	ין־	T	Т	Т	٦

The best of the West

Ark have gone into partnership; and Trevor Nunn's stunning production both uses the versatility of the Swan to the full and signals his return to the theatre of humanity after his adventures amongst chanistic West End musicals.

It would be a brave man who tried to summarise Heywood's bulging, picaresque plot. But the focus of the evening is the love of Bess Bridges, a Plymouth barmaid and Somerset tanner's daughter, for the dashing Captain Spencer: a love that survives separation and Essex's 1597 raid on the Azores, ship and sail there to redeem his body.

how they and their followers make their escape, with the aid of a Moorish Bashaw, is best left to the

We are not dealing here with, as you may have gathered, an imperishable masterpiece but with an exotic piece of pop-theatre about female fidelity, gang-loyalty and English adventuring. Heywood was a master-hack but the keyword in his two plays is "ecstasy"; and Nunn seizes on that to give us an ecatatic form of rough theatre in which the emphasis is on narrative speed, the trans-formation of simple propa through imaginative belief and the use of music to heighten emotion rather than as aural wallpaper.

THE final production at Stratford-on-Avon's Swan Theatre this season is a conflation of the two parts of Thomas Heywood's The Fair Maid of the West. It emerges as a rip-roaring piece of popular enter-tainment suggesting Dick Whit-how and their followers make

An irreverent tone is established from the start when Joe Melia steps before us to announce "O, for instead 'In Troy there lies the scene," and is greeted with rotten apples and cries of "Give us The Fair Maid"; at this point Imelda Staunton stops serving at table and bravely agrees to play Bess Bridges from memory.

This immediately establishes the play's element of wish-fulfilment (it's a tavern-girl's dream) and its contemporary popularity while hinting at the way the company will be deployed through-out the building as spectators, barrackers and rumbling, chauvinstep-formation to suggest multi-levelled decks. It is infinitely more exciting than multi-million pound hi-tech design because it involves the spectator in an act of imaginative participation; and, when Bess's ship grapples with a Spanish galleon, a handful of muskets fired into the Swan galleries and one actor swinging across the stage on a rope instantly convinces us we are in the midst of a sea-battle. You can hear Heywood's own invention flagging in the second half, set largely in the Moroccan court; and, once Bess and Spencer He cannot disguise a wilting But why the production works is have been re-united, there is an air that it uses a good deal of sophistication to create simple-seeming effects. When Bess takes to sea, for the use of the bed-trick. But Nunn keeps the ball is the > despot constantly upstaged by he band and his two Bashaws. Donal McBride as Bess's Buttons ik servant even leads us in an aud ence-participation number, and Imelda Staunton, whose Bass is a lovely study in downright affection, and Sean Bean as her Fabbanks-like lover, hit the right nota of careless rapture. (In Mr Bean case, shipping down a rupe, it's case, shinning down a rope, it's almost careless rupture.)

by Malcolm Rangon, is to result from the shadows a piece that show just how much went out of our theatrs when it became pulls, genteel and middledass.

A COUNTRY DIARY

LOCHINVER: I am still not sure why I stopped the car near the birch woodland --- perhaps I did see something or was it a feeling that something was there. Even then I could see nothing until I looked through binoculars and gradually it took shape. There was part of an ear, half an antier, a lover interest and are and not of a lower jaw, an eye and part of a neck with the rest hidden by birch leaves and bracken. It was a deer — a sika stag — and despite the fact that it was only 15 yards from me I could only see it through the glasses. We stared at each other for minutes and then I did see some movement but for a while the movement was unexplained as the stag was still motionless. Then at last I realised that it was a pair of great tits foraging for food over the neck, head and antiers of the stag.

These sika deer are now common in these northern birchwoods that span the Ross-shire/Sutherland border on the west coast. They originated by escapes in 1949 from a great deer park at Rosehall some 30 miles to the east. The first stags reached Lochinver in 1972 and at first — as on many other Highland estates — they were velcome with their shrill whistles echoing through the trees. Now these hybrids are so widespread that in certain areas the situation is out of hand. Indeed, pessimists say that if the spread of sika hybridisation continues the only pure strain of red deer will be on islands. One of the problems of containing the sika is that they are woodland animals and when they are found in the open they are always on the move. Thus the traditional red deer stalking method is of little use. Could it be possible that the days of the "Monarch of the Glen" are num-

Ray Collier

EXPATRIATE

INVESTOR

The E.D.N. Overseas Services Group are one of the UK's leading firms of independent investment brokers managing in excess of £150 million on behalf

+51·3%

The secret? There isn't one! We suggest that clients use only major more importantly have ongoing advice on IF, WHEN and WHERE to switch

We publish quarterly probably the most authoritative and most understandable

To: E.D.N. Overseas Services Group, 4 Lynedoch Place, Glasgow, United

i am particularly interested in Lump Sum/Monthly Savings (delete

This is the performance of our clients' investments over the last year.

investment publication — THE EXPATRIATE INVESTOR.

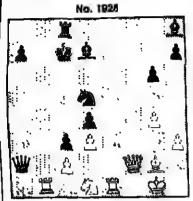

If you would like a complimentary copy return the coupon below.

of clients in every corner of the world.

funds at a later date — if needs bel-

Kingdom, Tel: 041-332 0482.

Chess

and pawn for rook. Britain's younge winner of the Sokolov v Yusupo

QM Artur Yusupov 1 P-K4 P-K3 2 P-Q4 P-Q4

4 P-K5 N-K2 8 ... B-R3 10 O-O N-QN1

D. R. Norwood v M. L. Hebden, Nat West Young Masters 1986, Black's queen has just captured White's ORP, and he seems to have compensation for his slight material deficit of bishop IM, 18-year-old David Norwood or Bolton had seen further and forced a quick win which gave him shared first prize. What did White play?

White K at QN8, Q at Q5, N at K2, F at QB5. Black K at KR8, Ps at QN2, Q2, K4, K84, KN5 and KN7. Male In

1 K-R7, zugzwang. Black has to allow the white queen to mate: 1 ... P N4 2 Q-QR8 and 3 Q-KR8, or 1 Q3 2 QxNP, or P-K5 2 Q-Q4, or P-B5 2 Q-K4, or P-N6 2 Q-B3.

should be K v Y. The loser of the current series, is now paired with the candidates final. Yusupov, a 26-year old huge shaggy bear of a man, leads his younger opponent by 31/2-11/2 in the best of 14 series and will probably win the match.

GM Andrei Sokolov — (3rd match game 1986)

By Leonard Barden

5 P-QR3 BxN ch 6 PxB P-QB4 7 N-B3 P-QN3 8 P-QR4 In the first game of the match, Yusupov met White's 8 B-N5 ch by an unorthodox, Nimzowitschian style queen manoeuvre: 8 . . . B-Q2 9 B-Q3 B-R5 10 P-KR4 P-KR3 11 P-R5 QN-B3 12 R-R4 P-B5 13 B-K2 K-Q217 14 B-K3 Q-KN1 15 Q-Q2 Q-R2, Black pawn roller and broke through to win a long end game in 72 moves. 9 BxB NxB 11 PxP?

A tame Idea which concedes the Initiative. Theory recommends 11 P-R5 PxRP 12 B-R3, 12 P-B4 O-O 14 Q-Q3 P-KR3 16 Q-K4 N-Q2 11 ...PxP 13 PxP NxP

Missing a concealed tactical blow;

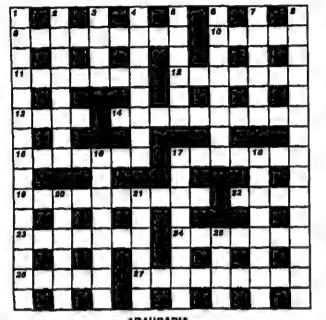

better 18 Q-B2 at once, when Black continues N-QN3 or QR-N1 with good 9 O-B2 NKPI

18 . . . QR-Q1 This virtually finishes the game. White can avoid 21 QxQ?? RxR ch but he loses a clear pawn and Yusupov's efficient technique ensures the full

21 Q-K2 QxN 23 Q-B3 AxR ch 25 BxN PxB 27 P-N3 Q-QB4 29 R-R1 P-QR4 31 R-N1 QxRP 33 K-B2 Q-R7 ch 22 B-K3 N-B4 24 RxR N-Q8 25 Q-Q3 R-Q1 28 P-B4 Q-N5 30 P-R4 P-R4 32 R-N5 P-N3 34 K-B3 P-R5 38 R-N1 K-N1 38 K-K2 P-R5 35 R-NS K-N2 37 R-NS Q-RS 38 R-R8 Q-N7 ch 40 Q-Q2 P-Q8 ch

If 41 K-K1 Q-Q5 42 K-B1 R-QN1 soon males or wins the quesn.

ACROSS A day gels Archer's character right out of R.S.A. (9) Way that sounds radical (5)

Bags draw fruit (7) Footwear without number for school subject? (7)

13. Nurse with a number of old coins?

14. A longbow do mischief? You'll need an ambulance (5-5)

15. Rock music? (7) 17. Aerial salute to insect that's extinct

19. New ground for girls' lamps? (6, 4) 22. Swarm requires silence at home 21. (4) 23. Plain and healthy (as "mens") without transport (7) student on leave (7)

28. Beginning where film people act

27. A dish, or a ship that passes in the

1. Wire box I can believe lost? (5, 10) New or old or otherwise ailing (8)
 Bird put into joint, one might say

5. Magically fast, North End's left town (6) Not the strait and narrow in New York or the Cotswolds (8) Horse, perhaps, about to ruin retriever? (3, 3) 8. General advantages of gum? (10,

16. Clay eaten by mistake will cause 17. Cow due in marsh (8)

Untidy heap borne by beast away from the sun (8) 20. Parson is English: make some changes (6)

Pole in disreputable surroundings has a drink (6) 25, Roundhead? A favour may follow!

100 B	Ali	110	0	0	R /	A) H	I	A	÷
8 0 U	٠E		R	7	3	r L	N a	Z	DR	an.
T & 8		I A	A	1	A	3 5	1	V	A	l,
ABT
FEL	Ш	l N	0	şΤ	И	Δ.	Ш	1	0	L
		ΝМ			 	5	7	10		Į
SHR	UK	Щ	Ţ	Ш	М		47	I P	ш	L
U 1440
RIC	H	A	-	12	쓴	a.	-		4	۲
I A A	묽	26.	H		÷	Ħ	٠,	+		۲
O M	۲	-	Œ	镀	H	×		i i	Ü
NAI
204.17		£ is	Ŧ	12	8		T	1	t la	Ü
BB	N	8 6	IA	C	T	R	=	6 8	1

CLASSIFIED

EDUCATION

CITY & GUILDS OF LONDON ART SCHOOL Principal: Roger de Grey, P.R.A.
Full-time: tyr foundation course, 3yr diploma courses in Painting, illustrative Aris, Sculpture, Sculpture Carving in Stone & Wood, and Restoration of Wood, Stone & Polychrome Fritabes, Decorative Aris BTEC diploma courses in Restoration. Carving & Polychrome: 2-year general and 2-year higher. 2-year diploma courses in Lettering, and Woodcarving & Gidling, Fees £2,300 per annum. £2,300 per annum. £2,300 per annum. $AE to: The Secretary, 124 Kennington Park Road, London 8£15, England.

IUC SVENDBORG INTERNATIONAL BACCALAUREATE 2 year boarding school programm taught in English.

ILLC International Education Centre Vestergrade 45 PO Box 150

pplications for 87-88 scademic year

low invited. Phone or write for furthe countries.

SIXTY-SIX thousand pairs in 82 differ.

ent countries sat down at the bridge table to play in the first Epaon one session Simultaneous Pairs World Championship. As one might expect there were some remarkable access. and the leading places were: 1, F. Fraisnals and V. Bouteille (France) 78.80 par cent; 2, A. Pennington and H. Gerrard (Wiltshire, England) 77.53 per cent; 3, Mmes Dunmorier and Thouzeller (France) 77.70 per cent.

which helped us on our way.
Dealer Weat; North-South vulner

NORTH ♠ 8
♥ KJ864 ◆ Q1096 💠 J 10 6 WEST ♠ KJ92 ♦ A52 ♣ A9832 SOUTH A 10 6 4 3 ♥ Q ♦ 874 ♣ KQ54

The bidding: Marque Dblet 11 NB

diamonds and spades.

♠ A3 ♥ AK4 ♣ J8764 . Q9 SOUTH ♥ Q 10 9 8 7 · ♦ 542 45 K 10

Michael Wolach played in 48 km the South hand, and he got of 5 3 good start when West's opening the lead was taken by the lack in the lead hand. However, the hand creating the lead careful timing.

A trump to dummy revealed the break, but declarer was able to insee the ten of hearts, draw East's remaining turns and cross back to denote with the ace of spades in order to as the time three established dub tricks. This is the three established dub tricks.

Bridge By Rixi Markus®

I played with Michael Wolach, and our 67 per cent gave us 16th piece in Britain, out of 1,413 pairs, and 1686 place overall. Here are two hands

Q75 A 10 9752

WEST NORTH EAST SOUTH

(1) I have always been very aware of the points which can be won by will judged penalty doubles, even at low levels. This is the main reason why i am not a supporter of the currently fashionable negative doubles which inevitably deprive the opening side of a large number of panelty double situations. It seemed to me that my hand was ideally suited for a penalty double trump holding, the singleton in par-ner's sult and the two sidesuit aces were all bad news for declarer.

As it happened, Michael Wolach's hand also contained good defensive values, and we were able to restrict the unfortunate declarer to just three tricks. That gave us a penalty of +1,100 on a board on which East-West had no makeable game contract, in spile of the favourable distributions in both

The match-point awards for the various results on each board ware pre-determined and this added to the excitement of the event by enabling the competitors to calculate their exec score within minutes of finishing play. My partner brought us in 85 points of of 100 by making twelve tricks on the closed hand. However, the required careful timing. December crossed to dummy with a hear and played a club to the ten, losely and played a club to the ten, losely diamond, and my partner went to the dummy's ace and played a club to the clummy's ace and played a club to the king, bringing down East's doubled provided discards for two denumbers and one spade, and South had go aged to restrict himeelf to one loss the ace of clubs.

1054 J832 Q 10 87

THE GUARDIAN, October 5, 1986

Luton win Thatcher's support in anti-hooligan campaign

A RADICAL scheme to tackle teams. She hopes that the League hooliganism at soccer matches by will use "latitude and flexibility barring supporters of visiting and say 'all right, Luton have done in a semi-final of the Skol Cup. In issed top of the Yorkshire times.

8,114 runs for England. He hit 161 missed, even though Boycott was last discontinuous and say 'all right, Luton have done in a semi-final of the Skol Cup. In issed top of the Yorkshire times. teams last week placed Luton

Town high on the political agenda in England. The Frime Minister,

Mrs Thatcher, was among those who condemned a decision by the English Football League to ban

Luton from the Littlewoods. The Scotland of the Skol Cup. In the Yorkshire the Scotland, let's give the final Rangers will meet their championship averages last season city rivals, Celtic.

No English club, nor some in Scotland, can claim to be free of the hooligan problem in varying degrees of seriousness. At its worst the Littlewoods Cup. In the Yorkshire championship averages last season city rivals, Celtic.

No English club, nor some in Scotland, can claim to be free of the hooligan problem in varying degrees of seriousness. At its worst last week with the decision not the place filled top of the Yorkshire championship averages last season city rivals, Celtic.

No English club, nor some in Scotland, can claim to be free of the hooligan problem in varying degrees of seriousness. At its worst with the decision not the skol Cup. In the top of the Yorkshire championship averages last season city rivals, Celtic.

No English club, nor some in Scotland, can claim to be free of the hooligan problem in varying degrees of seriousness. At its worst with the decision problem in the skol Cup. In the final Rangers will meet their championship averages last season city rivals, Celtic.

No English club, nor some in Scotland, can claim to be free of the hooligan problem in varying degrees of seriousness at its chance."

AN era in Yorkshire cricket ended the hooligan problem in varying degrees of seriousness at its chance." Luton from the Littlewoods Cup, once known as the League Cup, because the competition rules state that 25 per cent of match tickets must go to the visiting club supporters. No such ruling exists in normal League soccer.

Now, in response to the public debate over the scheme, the chairmen of the League's 92 clubs will vote on October 6 whether Luton should be reinstated into the cup competition. But there are still many people within the game who are worried over the principle of Luton's scheme in league or cup soccer. Robert Chase, chairman of the Norwich City club, said that it was unfair, while Gordon Taylor, secretary of the Professi Footballers' Association, said: "It could be argued that Luton are behaving in exactly the same way as the hooligans in trying to impose their anarchical rule on

The scheme followed the anguished public reaction last year to the tragedies at soccer grounds, dominated by the deaths at the European Cup final in Brussels. Mrs Thatcher was among those who suggested that clubs begin membership schemes, obliging spectators to carry special cards when attending matches. Most clubs, while acknowledging some merit in the idea, shied away from the administrative upheaval. Luton, whose chairman, David Evans, is a political supporter of Mrs Thatcher, decided this season to restrict home matches to members of the club's membership scheme. In part this followed crowd trouble at Luton over recent seasons, in the main involving visiting supporters. Evans has since indicated that next season they may consider extending the scheme to include away team supporters who are members of their clubs or sesson ticket holders. "But I cannot have any upset this season," he says. "No away fans will come to Luton Town this Mrs Thatcher would like to see the scheme widened to other clubs and she also supports the idea that matches could be televised live for screening at the grounds of away factory week for Rangers. Earlier

GOLF: David Davies at St Andrews Norman's men triumph

IT only took a relatively modest westerly, a steady 20mph and gusting, to destroy the scoring and Japan's chances in the Dunhill Nations Cup at St Andrews on Sunday. Australia, for the second time, won, and with Scotland question whether the American this state of the second time. taking the third place play-off, team, runners-up last year, is the best available. None of the avail-America were relegated to fourth able criteria, either the US money The margin was 3-0 to the list or the Sony world rankings, Australians, with Rodger Davis would have come up with anything (76) beating Jet Ozaki (81); David like the team at St Andrews. In Graham (81) beating Joe Ozaki the money list Floyd was 15th, (82) and Greg Norman (73) beating O'Meara 21 and Wadkins 23. In Tommy Nakajima (76).

The best scoring in the second match on a difficult day came from Sand Lyle and Raymond Floyd, both round in 73, one over par in beating respectively Lanny the strongest nation, in depth, in Wadkins and Sam Torrance (both the world in the final there was a Wadkins and Sam Torrance (both 78). In the third game of that match Gordon Brand Jnr. was three over in beating Mark O'Mears, who was six over.

The result confirms that the Australians, when a team of only three is required, are currently the best in the world. Whether they people are killed — a Glasgow Rangers supporter died last week offer another contract to Geoffrey when a stone was thrown through Boycott, for 24 years the county's the window of a bus carrying match supporters — but even at hooliganism contributes to a con-tinuing drift away of spectators from the game. Hooliganism doesn't always in-clude violence, of course. An example was widely televised on Sunday when Manchester United fell to their sixth defest of the season in losing before an audience of millions, 1-0 to Chelsen. Unhapplly the sound effects microphones picked up the gutter chanting of some sections of the crowd — and both clubs are infested with some arrival as manager of Billy

McNeill, from Manchester City. For Liverpool the game was in frustrating contrast to their 10-0 win in midweek over Third Division Fulham in the Littlewoods goalscoring form — they have twice scored six goals — came to a halt last week, but not their winning form in the First Division.

In midweek they shared a goalless match with Brighton in the Littlewoods Cup, then beat Arsenal 1-0 in the League at the weekend. The only undefeated record in the First Division ended when Everton lost 2-0 at Tottenscored his first goal for Glesgow Rangers since joining them as player manager in the close season. It came in their 2-0 win over

Aberdeen and rounded off a satis-

the rankings both Hal Sutton and.

Curtis Strange come before

Wadkins and no fewer than nine

Amoricans are shead of Floyd. Without 'what is undoubtedly ham Hotspur. In Scotland Graeme

Nottingham Forest's rampant

the trivial level the continuing will not include Boycott. of the game's ugliest characters. United, meanwhile, continue to suffer on the pitch. They foll behind to a goal from Dixon after two minutes, then later saw the Chelses goalkeeper, Godden, twice save penalty kicks. It all leaves United second from the bottom of the First Division, sharing four points with that other once famous club, Aston Villa. At least Villa saw some improvement in their form at the weekend when they drew 3-3 at mighty Liverpool, their first taste of hope since the THIRD DIVISION: Bournemouth 2, Bristol City 0, Bristol R 2, Brischpool 2, Bury 4, Newbort 3, Certiella 1, Molte C 2, Datington 1, Chester 6, Doncaster 3, York 1, Fulham 2, Middlesbrough 2; Giffingham 2, Brenford 0; Port Vale 4, Walsall 1; Swindon 2, Rotherham 0 Leading positions: 1, Middlesbrough (p7, pts15); 2, Bournemouth (p7, pts15); 3, Giffingham (p6, pss14).

Alan Dunn's DIARY

last week with the decision not to by the battery of talented players we have at our disposal, particularly among the young batamen.".

The range of feelings over Boycott, particularly over what some saw as a private obsession with runmaking possibly against the interests of the team were perhaps brilliant and controversial opening summed up in two contrasting bataman. The decision by the comments from a former club's general committee also endteammate, Fred Trueman, the ed speculation that had ranged from Boycott being offered the England pace bowler. In 1976 Trueman said at one stage: "Boycounty captaincy again to his cott must not only return as opener resignation from the committee. but he should take over as England captain." Six years later he said: "Yorkshiro should have Neither happened, with Boycott staying a committee member and said:

the club postponing a decision on the captaincy, whilch obviously sacked Boycott 10 years ago." Now 45, Boycott has had a rill not include Boycott. prolific career, In 1,014 innings he There was no repeat, however, of has hit 48,426 runs at an overall Reform Group campaign of average of 56.83, with a record

SOCCER RESULTS

FOOTBALL LEAGUE — FIRST DIVISION: Coven-by 1, Watlord 0; Liverpool 3, Aston Vills 3; Luton 1, Manchester C 0, Norwich 2, Newcaste 0; Noting-ham F 1, Arsenal 0; Oxford United 3, Charlon 2; QPR 0, Leicester 1; Sheffield W 2, West Ham 2; Tottenham 2, Everton 0, Wimbledon 2, Southamp-on 2 Pleyed Sundey; Manchester U 0, Chalses 1, Leading positions: 1, Nottingham F (p8, pts19); 2, Norwich (p8, pts17); 3, Everton (p8, pts15).

BECOND DIVISION: Birmingham 2, Ipswich 2: Crystal Palace 1, Reading 3; Grimsby 0, Barnsley 1: (Leeds 3, Hull 0; Milwell 2, Blackburn 2, Oldham 1, Brighton 1; Portsmouth 1, Huddersfield 0, Shriwssbury 0, Bradford C 1, Sunderland 2, Sloke 0, WBA 2, Dorby 0, Postponed; Plymouth w Shaffield Leading positions: 1, Oldham (p8, ps17); 2, Portsmouth (p7, pts15), 3, Crystal Palace (p8, pts15)

POURTH DIVISION; Aldershol 0, Transmere 2; Burnley 3, Halifax 0; Cambridge U 1, Lincoln 1; Cardiff 4, Herelord 1; Colchester 1, Poterborough 3; Crawe 1, Swanses 1; Northampton 2, Wolvenhampton 1; Ortent 2, Henlepool 0; Preston 1, Torquay 1; Wreshern 6, Eceter 0. Leading positions: 1, Northampton (p7, pts 18); 2, Swanses (p7, pts 14); 3, Southend (p7, pts 18); FINE FARE SCOTTISH LEAGUE - PREMIER

Pinks PARK SCOTTISM LEAGUE — PREMIC DIVISION: Qundes 0, Hearls 0, Fallux 0, Celtic Hibernian 1, Dundes United 1, Motherwall (Clydebank 1; Rangers 2, Aberdeen 0, 8M Minren: Hemilton 1, Leading positions: 1, Dundes Utd (pt pts15), 2, Celtic (p9, pts14); 3, Hearts (p9, pts14). SCOTTISH FIRST DIVISION: Dumberton 2, East Fite 1; Dunfermine 0, Ahdrie 0; Fortar 2, Morton 2; Kilmarmock 0 Clyde 0; Kontrose 3, Queen of South 4, Partick 1, Brechin 0 Leeding positions: 1, Airdise (p10, ps16), 2, Dunfermine (p10, pts16); 3, Queen of South (p10, pts13)

☆ ☆ ☆

BOYCOTT'S departure came in a week that saw a rare cricketing event, a tied Test match. It came in the opening match of the Test series between India and Australia in Madras when Maninder Singh was out lbw to Matthews off the penultimate ball of the match with the acores level. India at one stage needed only 18 runs from the last five overs with four wickets in hand. Details: Australia, 674 for seven dec, and 170 for five dec.; India 397 and 347.

☆ ☆ ☆

JAPAN'S touring rugby union team suffered two defeats in Scotland last week but continued to show the sort of improvement in their game that could eventually make them a problem in the inaugural World Cup next year. In midweek the stronger finishing of an Edinburgh side overwhelmed the Japanese 26-14 after the tour-ists had led 10-7 at halftime. But in the tougher arena of interna-tional rugby they again lacked weight and height in losing 33-18 to Scotland at Murrayfield. But they did score three tries, all directly from scrums through clean handling and swift passing.

* * *

ANOTHER Welsh union player, Ray Giles, captain of Aberavon, is set to join the professional ranks of rugby league. Four clubs have offered him terms with a fee of £50,000. The English game has acottish second division: Albion 3. Ayr 2: Alboo 15. Mesdowbank 2. Beawick 1, Albo 2: East String 0. Reim 6: St. Johnstone 3. Queen's Park 0: String 1. Stenhousemult 0: Strantser 1, Cowdenbeath 1. Leading positions: 1. Albo (p8, pis15): 2, Reith (p8, pis12); 3. Mesdowbank (p8, pis12).

BOXING: W. J. Weatherby sees the welterweight title change hands in Atlantic City

Honeyghan rules three worlds

BRITAIN'S Lloyd Honeyghan on Sunday became the undisputed welterweight champion when he forced the American, Donald Curry to retire with a badly cut see at the end of the sixth round of their scheduled 12round fight in Atlantic City.

The unbeaten Honeyghan, 26, was a 6-1 underdog against the previously unbeaten Curry, who is a year younger, but at a stroke the British, European, and Common-wealth champion demolished Curry, became Britain's second current world champion, and one of only two undisputed world champions, the other being the middleweight Marvellous Marvin Hagler.

The Jamaican-born 'Londoner had been regarded as a lamb to the slaughter, but by the time he forced Curry to retire the American had a long, deep cut under his left eyebrow and returned to his corner with his face a mask of blood. The referee, Octavio out audience in Caesar's Casino Meyram, of Mexico, called in two Hotel to realise that Honeyghan doctors to examine Curry's eye, was not only holding his own and they decided at once that he against Curry but was dominating could not go on fighting.

When Honeyghan was announced the winner by a technical knockout, he danced round the When Honeyghan was announced the winner by a technical knockout, he danced round the ring, rolled on the canvas, and hugged his manager, Mickey Duff, and his trainer Bobby Neil. Curry left the ring immediately for the Atlantic City medical centre to have his eye examined. There was a suggestion that Curry's cut was caused by an accidental butt, but of the six rounds they fought Honeyghan won four and Curry two according another of his fighters, Cornelius Boza-Edwards, who had lost early one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to Curry and one even according to two judges, and four rounds with one to two judges, and four rounds

Boxing Council, World Boxing Association and the International Boxing Federation.

"That should put me in the Guinness Book of Records," said the excited new champion. "I achieved the goal I set for myself when I was 12 years old. My manager said he would make me a millionaire if I won tonight." Duff, sitting beside him, beamed and said: "And I will."

Honeyghan added: "I wanted to come over here and get the respect of the American people. I fought a couple of times in America before and looked real lousy. I guess that's one reason they made the fight. Who would take me serious-

Curry had been so boosted by the American media as the best fighter pound-for-pound in the world that it took some time for the sellthe fight.

There was a suggestion that well as the three he arrived with, the undisputed title he won from the champion atumbling about the Curry combined those of the World ring and holding on. He never allowed Curry to dominate, ever in the clinches, where the American can be a master of destructive body abots.

Curry caught the challenger with a hard right in the fourth round, and as Honeyghan clinched to clear his head the champion's worried corner-men howled for their man to finish off the impertinent Briton.

But Honeyghan punched his way out of trouble, and in the fifth round had the champion stumbling backwards across the ring. By now Curry's corner had lost its confi-

In the middle of the sixth round to the ringside crying "the cham-pion's cut" as he saw his multi-million-dollar plans for future fights beginning to vanish. Honeyghan was punching Curry almost at will, and the champion was half-blinded by his own blood against Curry but was dominating that aplashed on to the Briton's

Shearwater

Furniss of Cornwall Cherry Choclet Biscuits, 7th 42

Walter's Duradge Cake, 12 oz. Epicure Rose and Lemon Turkish Delight, 7 az. Pescy Dalton's Peanuts and Balsins, 3'n oz.

Country Way Black Cherry Jum with Eirsch, Beg Bertaford traditional Christman Pudding, 2 in Furniss of Commall Butter & Spice Biscuits, 77/a

Epicure Honeyed Dessert Figs, 8½ 02 Epicure Pacific Sueset Mix, 3½ 02

Victory

Walker > Shortbread Fingers 5 oz

Wall et a Gentia Cake, 12 oz Sea King Thailand Seatood Cock lail, 7 oz

Epicure Pear Halves, 1 lb

Country Way Seville Orange Marmalade, 8 oz

Marthew Walker Mincemeat with Brandy, 12 or

Basters Madras Hot Curry Cook in Sauce 15 of

Baylers Tarturi Highlanders Broth 15 or laceson's Earl Grey Ten 10 bag-

Shansood Patatoudle 15 52

Yarktown

Fortass of Cormwall Lemonies Biscoits 3

Plasten Associati Continental Checolares 10 Los

Nea Rang Macherel in topiato 1 oz Epicure Aprico - talves in natural juice, 7% oz

Downer Dutch Jurkey Roll, Jose

Michaeleau Creme de Lass de Valadis, 2 am

Epicare be useds and Rusius 3 , 02 outside Way Knot Little and Letting Jam 8 or

Matthew Walker Municipaed with Braudy 12 A

Formes of Convent Wholesteel & Billion

Wallber's Germa Cake, 12 60

Providy Fudge, 5 oz Epicure Pacific Suriset Alfa 3' . oz

Country Way Seville Orange Marmalade, 8 oz Matthew Welker Lakhamai Christmas Pudding 8 oz

Furniss of Cormwell Gingerbread Biscuts, 7% of Bendicks Alter Dinner Mons, 5 oz

A Sharwood Apple and Sago Jelly, 6 ez

See King Portuguese Sardines in oil, 37/10/ Epicuse Potatoes, 1 lb Epicuse Peach Slices in natural juice, 7 % oz

Derwent Chicken with Mushmoons in Souce, 70 Baders' Stremberry Jun. 12 oz. Baxters' White Wine Cook-in-Sauce. 15 oz.

BaxLers' Cream of Mushroom Soup, 15 62 Epicure Topastoes, 8 oz

Gray Poupon Dijon Mustard, 5 oz Derwent Houn, 7 oz.

Pointer

Furniss of Comwall Gingerbread Biscuits, 71/1

Epicure Apple Sauce, a oz

Epicture Red Sockeye Salmon, 31/4 nz

I A Sharwood Melon Cubes, 1 lb. 3 oz.

2 jars Micouleau Crème de Foje de Voldilla

Bertsford traditional Christmas Pudding, I lb Basters' Burgundy Wine Cook-in-Sauce, 15 62-

21/4 oz. each Country Way Lenson Cheese with Dry Sherry. SX date Parlant old Fashloned Orange and rate: Poopen Dued Mustard Sign

A Sharwood Pheasant Páté veith White Work

went furkey Strogonoff 15 oz

Kinnock kicks Labour into line

IF party unity could win elections, to, some of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the last. The Houston of the last of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the last of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the last of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the last of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the last of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Houston of the last of the contents of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last.

MYFRENDEIKE

appoint Mr Marmaduke Hussey to be the new chairman of the BBC. Mrs Thatcher is convinced that the oration is in the hands of a ties, too.

TRABONI.

Vol. 135 No. 15 Week ending October 12, 1986

Information from

THE US Administration, caught out by Bob Woodward of The Washington Post in lying to the media about supposed plans to attack Libya's Gadafy (see page 17), is to set up an office to expose Soviet efforts to mislead world opinion about American foreign policy. Some people might say, having read the Post story, that the White House and State Department were quite capable of misleading the world about American foreign poli cy in their own right. But, in any case, will anybody now believe what the new Office of Disinformation, Analysis and

The Washington Post

Caught Out In Lying

ALMOST ALL of government public information is an attempt not just to tell people objectively what is going on, but to make people believe one thing or another. This is an accepted form of government activity in the public arena — a way of bargaining, vying for advantage, putting a certain face on things, trying to work your will. Bluff, threat and "psychological war" are staples of both domestic politics and foreign policy. Journalists know it, expect it, deal with it every day by their attitude of skepticism and their techniques of inquiry and pursuit. They pride themselves on their ability to They pride themselves on their ability to this year, the Tories are gradually strength inside. That the Thatcher revolution break through the government's masks and ening in the polls at the expense of the become an unguided missile, abandon pretenses and to keep themselves from Alliance. That 38 per cent poll rating (with water privatisation and diluting social

So what is different about the Reagan administration's effort revealed on page 17 to use the American press to destabilize the Libyan regime of Moammar Gadhafi? The word "disinformation" was used in a White House memo outlining the strategy, and in some newspapers last August there ap-peared stories taking at face value private official reports that opposition to Col.
Gadhafi was brewing and a second American attack was in the works. Almost immediately, however, some press skepti-cism was evident. The Post, for instance, noted that there was "some suggestion that the United States was "some suggestion that the United States is trying to psyche out the Libyan strongman by fomenting anxiety about what this country is planning." In any event, nothing in particular happened. Continued on page 10

the disinformers

Response actually says?

While House press spokesman Larry Speakes — "forked tongue".

The Labour Party will fight the next election on a platform of unliateral nuclear disarmament, it decided last week, an issue that helped it to lose the last election. (Reports, pages 3, 4, 5.)

THE CONSERVATIVES have the means, Ther electoral machine is in lair snape.

They start with the enormous advantage of a huge majority to defend. They can choose the date of the next election. They have the great asset of government, which means they can dictate the political agenda. The motive? Mrs Thatcher wants the elusive hat-trick. She may even believe the current conceit that here is a three-term revolution Certainly, a third Thatcher term would give her the chance to leave a more indelible Thatcherite imprint than has yet been achieved. What's more, it could spell an end to Labour hopes of winning an outright majority in the foreseeable future. And the opportunity? Look no further than the latast Observer/Harris poll, confirming that in spite of all that has gone wrong for them on the outside when they ought to be on the nicely to be going on with.

The Tories could still win

The Blackpool tea party

There is, of course, a less complacent case to be made. That the revival is illusory, because it understates the Alliance's electoral base. Wait for the wounds of Eastbourne to heal and the softness of the Tory the motive, and the opportunity to win themselves a third election. The means?

Their electoral machine is in fair shape.

They start with the enormous advantage of winner once again. That Mrs Thatcher, for

> Bomb disposal problem for Labour . . . page 4

with marginalia. That the party workers around the land are uneasy and critical. That the best talents (Messers Heseltine, Brittan, Parkinson, Prior) and some pretty inside. That the Thatcher revolution has about the political contest of the next eighteen months that impose agnostic caution. Nobody yet knows how defence is going to impact upon British politics in that period, especially as the trail winds on from Reykjavik. But it is at least a respectable empirical thought that the combination of Labour's non-nuclear stance and the divisions of the SDP-Liberal Alliance may work to the Tories' political advantage. It is at least arguable that a society in which millions flock to the share issues of privatised industries, and in which millions more are doing nicely out of the current pay surge is not going to be a society which cheers to the echo every social ownership pledge or redistributive tax plan. And it is always worth reminding yourself, after a weekend of spending announcements and hints, just how much more quickly a government can take a political initiative than any opposition. There are problems at Bournemouth, yes. But plenty of opportuni security reform, but fixated suddenly and arbitrarily on football hooliganism, drugs, or books showing men in bed together. In Well, maybe it has. We certainly hope so

But there are certain stubborn realities short, that its hour has gone.

INSIDE

Syrla said to back El-Al bombing.

Reagan-Gorbachev summit hopes...... 6, 15

Attempt to kill Rajiv Gandhi US now committed to sanctions 8, 10, 16

Terry Coleman on the Commonwealth 9

Soviet missile sub sinks. ... 10, 15 the second of the Pretoria's stranglehold on neighbours16 US disinformation on Libya.....

'Duke' Hussey to run BBC.....

TRENCHERMAN HAMPERS

Niersteiner Gütes Dömtal. 1984/5, 1 holtle Cotes du Rhône. 1 bottle

Martial Fino Sherry, Valdespino, i bottle Côtes du Rhône Blanc, Ponnelle, i bottle

Furniss of Cornwall Cingerbread Biscuits, 10% oz William Lusty Rich Frun Cake with Tia Maria, 2 (b

Crystallised Australian Siem Gurger, 3% oz [A. Sharwood Mutt Sauce, 140 m] Epicura Red Soci èyè Salmon, 3% oz

Epicure Mandarin Segments, 11 oz Derwent Corned Beef, 12 oz.

Percy Dalton's Dry Roasted Poanuts, 5 oz Micouleau Mousse de Viande d'Oie, 10% oz Baxters' Rhubarb and Gurger (am. 12 oz latthew Walker Mincomeat with Brandy, 12 oz Baxters' Sweet and Sour Cook-in Sauce, 15 oz.

Baxters' Tarian Cream of Chicken Soup. 15 oz

Epicure Instant Coffee, 37/2 02 Epicure Flageoles Beans, 1 lb Furniss of Cornwall Shorties Biscuits, 107/2 02

Bendicks Bitter Mocha Chocolates, 7 oz

Country Way Damson Jam with Madeira Wine. 8 oz

Baxlers' Tarran Scotch Vegetable Soup. 15 oz

Epicure Pineapple Slices, 12 oz

Epicure Leaf Spinach, 1 lb

Furnise of Cornwall Cherry Choclet Biscuite, 10% of

William Lusty Rich Fruit Cake with Hine, 2 lb

Bendicks Chocolate and Equeur Associed Chocolates, 87, 02 I A Sharwood Plum Chutney, 10 oz.

Australian Set Hosley, 1 lb

Epicure French Glace Clementines, 10%, oz Epicure Redcurrant Jelly, 12 oz

Le Courmet Cascon Quenelles de Brochet

Sauce Naniua, 131/2 oz

Epicure Green Figs. 1 lb

Banters' Cog av Vin 12 oz

Percy Dallon's Salled Macadamia Nots, 5 no

Baxlers' Rowan Jelly, 12 oz

Matthew Walker Mince Fig. 14 oz

Barders' Provencale Cook-m-Sauce 15 oz

Baxters' Vichysoisse Soup, 15 oz

Rodney

Walker's Chocolate Chip Biscuits, 5 oz.

Walker's Rich Fruit Cake, 14 oz

ndicks Crème de Menthe Chocolates, 7 o:

dexters Whole Fruit Cranberry Sauce. 5 oz

Epicure Skipjack Tuna Fish in oil. 31 oz

Epicure Pink Guavas, 1 lb Derwent Hans, 1 lb

Epicure Petit Pois l'Etuves. 1 lb Percy Dalton's Safted Mixed Nuts, 374 oc

I A Sharwood Pork and Duck Liver Pale

with Port . 6 oz

Baxlers' Black current fam. 12 oz

Berisland traditional Christmas Pudding, 1 F Baxlers' Provencale Cool-in-Sauce, 15 oz

Baxiers' Cream of Scampi Soup. 15 oz. Epicure Poietoes. 1 Ib

Uganda 11200

urniss of Contwall Shortles Biscuits, 7% oz

Bendicks After Dinner Mints, 5 oz

Sea king Thailand Shrimpa at brine, 4 oz Epicure Pineapple Slices, 12 oz Baxters' Scotch Mince with Beel

Epicure Peach Stices in natural juice, 7% oz

Walrers Hazelnut Biscutts, 5 oz

Epicwe Rose and Lemon Turkish Delight, 7 oz.

I A. Sharwood Mango Sikes, 15 oz. Mkouleau Cassoulet with Fork, 1371 oz Percy Dahon's Assorted Nuts & Fruit, 8 oz.

Australian Set Honey, I Ib. Matthew Walker Mince Pie, 14 oz

J.A. Sharwood Seafood Dressing, 140 ml Baxters' Tarton Cream of Chicken Soup, 15 oz.

Epicure Peth Pois l'Etuves, 1 B Walker's Almond Shortcake Rings, 5 oz. Bendicks Victorian Orange Chocolates, 8 oz. Baxters' Cream of Phassaru Soup, 15 oz

A Sharwood Mire Sauce 140 ml

Epicure Smoked Oysters, 3% oz

Epicure Apricot Halves in natural page, 7% p.:

Derwent Dutch Turkey Roll, 7 oz.
Baxters' Respherry Jane, 12 oz.
Baxters' Cream of Mushroom Soup, 15 oz.

Epiture Potatoes, 1 lb

furnise of Cornwall Gingerbread Biscuits, 10% o

Bendicks Chocolate and Liqueur Assorted

Chocolates, 81/2 oz

I A Sharwood Apple and Sage Jelly, 6 oz

See King Thailand Crab in brine. 4 oz

Epicure Plat Guavas, 1 lb

Derwent Corned Beet, 12 oz Percy Dahon's Smoked Almonds, 5 oz

Bassets' Wild Bramble Jam, 12 oz.

Basters' Tarran Highlanders broth 15 oz LA Sharwood Red Kidney Beans, 15 uz lutines of Come of Laring Product 7 in.

Walker Children Cook 12 ex

Fudge 5 ...

Epicine Apple sauce ones

icu ning South American Pilchards in tomato 15 o Epicure Fruit Cocktail in natural puce 7 + 62

Epicure Yoghurt Coared Raisus 2 oz Bauters Rhubarb and Ginger Jun. 12 oz

Basters' Sweet and Sour Cook in-Sauce, 15 oz

Baxters Tortan Scotch Vegerable Soup. 15 oz.

Oberon 124 to

Walker's Almond Shortcube Rings, 5 az

William Lusty Rich Dundee Cake, 1 . In

Bendicks Chocolate Assortment 7 oz : A Sharwood Peach Chuldrey, 11 oz

ulean Harcots aux Saucisses de ercy Dallon's Saked Cashew Note 3 . oz

atthew Walfer Mincement with Brandy, 12 oz

I A Sharwood Sealgod Dressing 140 ml Baxters' Scoub Salmon Bisque 15 oz

Epicure Courgettes in Tomato, 13 oz Chocometz Liqueur Chocotates, 11. oz Bensford traditional Christmas Pudding, 2 th

Quiberon e20 00

Chocolete Parlatt Old Fashtoned Chocolete

Fudge, 5 oz Percy Dalton's Assorted Nuts & Fruit, 6 oz. Bacters' Wild Bramble Jans, 12 oz

Matthew Walker Mince Pie. 14 oz

acksons Lapsang Southong Tea. 4 oz Walker's Ostmaai Honey Biscuits, 5 oz

Country Way Blackberry last with Port

For use Smoked Cod's Roe. 3

sford traditional Christmas Pudding, 1 lb

Epicitre Flageolei Beans, 1 lb netz Assorred Lapueur Chocolates, 1 - oz

horolate Patter Old Fishioned Chacolate

William Lusty Rich Dundee Cale, 1% b.

Epicure Redcurrant fally, 12 oz icure Skipjack Tuna Fish in ost, 3½ oz

Soave, italian White, 1 bottle Valpolicella, Italian Red. 1 bottle Muscadet de Sévre et Maine, Loire White, 1 bottle Côres du Rhône, Rhône Red, 1 bottle Martial fine Sherry from Valdespine, 1 bottle Smith Woodhouse Late Bottled Vintage Port.

) bottle Walker's Shortbreed Fingers, 5 oz. Walker's Sultona Cake, 12 oz. sendicks Cocoa Dusted Almonds, 7 or Epicure Apple Sauce, 6 oz Saa King Thailand Shrimps in brine, 7 oz Epicure Peach Slices in natural fuice. 7% o: Derwent Turkey Strogonoff, 15 oz.
Percy Dalion's Dry Roasted Peamuts, 5 oz
[A Sharwood Poyk and Duck Liver Pate with Port, 6 oz

Baxiers' Raspberry Jam. 12 oz Matthew Walker Mincemeat with Brandy, 12 oz I A Sharwood Seafood Dressing, 140 ml Le Gourmet Cascon Tourain Gascon Soup (concentrated, serves 4), 14 oz jacksons Lapsang Souchong Tea, 4 oz Epicure Tomatoes, 8 oz Furniss of Cornwall Lemontes Biscuits, 101/2 oz

Bendicks Biller Mocha Chocolates, 7 oz Grey Poupon Dijon Mustard, 5 02 Le Gourmet Gascon Creme d'Asperges Soup (concentrated, serves 4), 14 oz Furniss of Comwall Shorties Biscuits, 107, oz Rialso Hazelnut Praimes, 5 oz Sharwood Tomato and Chilli Chutney 10 oz Sea king Portuguese Sardines in oil. 31. oz Derwent Ox Tongue 7 oz

Epicure Flageolet Beans 11b
Furniss of Cornwall Cherry Choclet Biscuits 10% oz Epicure Chocolaty Brazils, 7 oz Micouleau Boenf en Danke 13 voz Bendicks Classic Plain Chocolide Assortment.

8' . 02 Baxters Biligundy Wine Cook in Saice 15 oz Malker's Dundee Cake, 14 oz Epicure Franch Glace Clementines 10%, or Baxteia Aprikol fam 12 oz Epicure Polatoes, 1 lb picure Ratalias, 15 pieces

Faugler Maitons Glace, 5 oz it Sea King South American Pilchaids in tomato, 15 oz Epicure Pear Halves, 1 lb. Le Courmet Gascon Bisque de Homard Concentrated serves 4), 14 oz. William Lusty Rich Fruit Cake with Hime Cognac, 2 lb Epicure Assorted French Glace Fruits, 1014-02

Percy Dalton's Pistachio Nuls. 5 oz Country Way Black Cherry Jam with Kirsch. 8 oz Epicuse Instant Coffee 377 oz Furniss Gingerbread and Butter & Spice Biscuits, 14 OF LID Chocometz Assorted Liqueur Chocolates, 95. oz Walker's Highland Oatcakes, 14 oz tin

William Lusty Rich Fruit Cale with Scotch Whisky 2 lb
Bendicks Grapes in Brandy Chocolates, 7 oz vood Peach Chutney, 1177 oz Sea King Thealand Seafood Cocktail 7 p dicouleau Poulaid Farcis à l'Ancienne, 13%, o Fercy Dalton's Smoked Almonds, 5 oz A Sharwood Liver Paré with Green Peppercorns 6 oz Baxters' Rowan Jelly, 12 oz Matthew Walker Mince Pre, 14 oz Basters' Sweet and Sour Cook In-Sauce, 15 oz Le Gourmet Cascon Soupe de Posssons

(concentrated serves 4) 14 0z I.A. Sharwood Amichoke Hearts, 14 az Epicure Pelit Fours, 15 pieces Bendicks Bitterminis 14 oz A Sharwood Bengal Hot Chutney, 12 1, o. Epicure Smoked Oysleis. 3'. oz A Sharwood Black Chernes. 15 oz 1A Shanwood Pheasant Pate with White Wine, 6 02

Surcouf

1 bottle Bollinger Special Cuyêc Champagne

Full name of the cardholder

Country Way Birter Grange Marmalade with Part Malt Whisky 8 oz Berislord traditional Christmas Pudding 2 lb

Furniss of Comwall Fairing Biscults, 71/2 oz Walker's Genga Cake, 12 oz Chocolate Parlait Old Fashloried Orange and Brandy Fudge, 5 oz. Epicure Pacific Sunsei Mix, 31/2 oz Baxters' Strawberry Jam, 12 oz Matthew Walker Mincemeat with Brandy, 12 oz Epicure Honeyed Dessert Figs. 81/2 oz Epicture Rose and Lemon Turkish Delight, 7 oz Berteford traditional Christmas Pudding, 1 ib Furniss of Corowall Lemontes Biscuits, 7½ oz Crystallised Australian Stem Cinger, 31/2 oz Walker's Sultana Cake, 12 oz. Chocometa Assorted Liqueur Chocolates, 1 % oz Percy Dalton's Salled Mixed Nuts, 3% oz Baxters' Blackcurrant Jam, 12 oz. Furnies of Comwall Shortles Biscuits, 71/2 oz Walker's Dundee Cake, 12 oz Bendicks After Dinner Mints, 5 oz Percy Dalton's Dry Roasted Peenuts, 5 oz

Nelson

Furniss of Conswall Fairing Bisculis, 25: az Bendicks Cieme de Menthe Chocolates 🕈 oz I A Sharwood Mint Sauce, 140 ml Epicure Skipjack Tuna Fish in oil, 314 oz Epicure Fruit Cocktail in natural juice 7 to 01 Derwent Turkey Strogonoff 15 oz Percy Dalton's Assorted Note & Front. 8 oz A. Sharwood Pheasant Pate with White Wine o oz Duntry Way Buter Orange Marinalade with Pure Mali Whisky & oz

Country Way Seville Orange Marmalade, 8 oz

Matthew Walker traditional Christmas Pudding 8 da Baxters' Sweet and Sone Cook-in Sauce, 15 of Bexters' Tattan Cream of Chicken Soup, 15 oz Epicule Potatoca i ib Epiciare Ratalias 15 pieces William Lusty Stem Ginger Cake with Ginger Wine 1 % lb Prasten Assorted Continental Chocolate > 10 . oz (A Sharwood Plum Churney, 10 oz Epicure Pink Guayas 1 lb Derwent Ham, 7 oz

Exeter (5).00

Matthew Walker Mince Pie, 14 oz

Furruss of Cornwall Gingerbread Biscuits, 71/2 oz Bendicks Cocoa Dusted Almonds, 7 oz Epicure Apple Sauce, 6 oz Sea king Portuguese Sardines in oil, 3½ oz Epicure Strawbornes, 15 oz Derwent Turkey Strogonoff, 15 oz Percy Dalton's Dry Roasted Peanuts, 5 oz Baxters Rhubarb and Gurger Jam, 12 oz Le Gourmet Gascon Tourain Cas (concentrated, serves 4), 14 oz Furniss of Cornwall Lemontes Biscurts, 10% oz Country Way Black Cherry Jam with Kirsch. 8 oz n Associad Continental Chocolates, 10°/, oz Sea King Mackerel in Iomato, 7 oz I A Shanwood Mango Silces, 15 oz Detwent Corned Beef, 12 oz

Striton Cheese, 2 -- 16

Smith Woodhouse Late Bot

These prices apply to the Christmas 1986 season. Deliveries begin in October. Prices include carriage within the United Kingdom mainland. Orders must reach us by December 8th to ensure delivery by Christmas.

We can accept Diners Club, Visa/Trust and Access credit card payments, providing that the following details are included:

Credit Card account number
 Signature of the cardholder

Billing address of the cardholder
 Expiry Date of the credit card

Epicure Ratafias, 15 pieces William Lusty Rich Fruit Calc with Hine Cognac. 2 lb Bendicks Grapes in Brandy Chocolates, 7 oz Epicure Redovirant Jelly, 12 oz Sea King Thadand Shrimps in brine 7 oz Epicure Green Figs, 1 lb Micouleau Hancots aux Saucisses de Toulouse, 137, oz

and Vegetables, 15% oz Percy Dalton's Salted Mixed Nuts, 3% oz A Sharwood Liver Pare with Green Percy Dalton's Pistachio Nuts, 5 oz Peppercoins, 6 oz Country Way Seville Orange Marmalade, 8 oz Matihew Walker traditional Christmas Pudding, 8 oz Micouleau Mousse de Vlande d'Ole. 10% oz. Australian Set Honey, 1 lb Matthew Walker Mince Pie 14 o.: Bakters' Tarlan Cream of Toniato Soup. 15 oz e Courmet Gascon Bisque de Homer iecksons Earl Grey Tea. 20 bags IA Sharwood Whole Kernel Sweetcorn. 15 oz (concentrated, serves 4), 14 oz lacksons Lapsang Souchong Tea, 4 oz Furniss of Cornwall Wholemeal & Bran Biscuits, 71/2 pz

Wild Scottish Smoked Salmon, 1 lb hand-sixed

Biblio Hazelnul Philines, 5 oz Country Way Bilter Orange Marmelade with Melt Whisky, 8 oz Berisford Iraditional Christmas Pudding, 2 lb Plasten Continental Chocolates, 10% or Walker's Stem Ginger Biscults, 5 oc Walker's Rich Frunt Calle, 14 oz. Muscadei de Sèvre et Maine sur lie. 1 bottle

Bauters' Cream of Leek Soup, 15 02. Faugher Chestnut Perse, 151/2 02. 3. Please include your own card if you would like your personal grostings to be sent with the hamper. In the case of a multiple order, do make sure that you tell us which card is to go with which percet. If you would like us to send one of our own cards, please tell us the message that you would like us to write.

We will replace, free of charge, any liem which is lost, or damaged to an unusable degree, in transit. Your notification of such loss or damage must be given within seven days of receipt of the parcel if replacement (or refund) is to be considered. Whilst every effort will be made to supply the exact goods, we have to reserve the right to make substitutions of similar or higher quality goods in the event of an unexpected supply fallors conflicting with requirements of expected supply fallors.

6. Our prices are inclusive of all current United Kingdom domestic taxes and duty.

Payment may also be made by cheque or money order if payment is made in a FOREIGNCURRENCY or with a cheque bearing NO BRITISH ADDRESS. £5.00 must be added to cover bank clearance charges. TRENCHERMAN HAMPERS · Hurst House · Hurst · Reading · Berkshire RG10 OSH · U.K. Telephone: (0734) 342116 · Telex: 858893 FLETEL G (Attn. Trench)

Bankers: Barclays Bank, 29-30 High Street, Windsor, Berkshire, SL4 1PG - Sort Code: 20-97-09 - A/C: Trencherman Hampers No. 30897558

Soaye, liaken White, I bottle 'algoitesta, Italian Red. I house Muscadet de Sêvre et Maine, Loire White, 1 bottle Côres du Rhône, Rhône Red, 1 bottle Martial Fino Sherry from Valdes Smkh Woodhouse Late Bottled Vintage Port,

. د و د

1 boule vintage ru Walker's Shortbread Fingers, 5 oz. Walker's Suklana Cake, 12 oz. Bendicks Gooo Busted Aimonds, 7 oz. Epicure Apple Sauce, 6 oz Sea King Thailand Shrimps in brine, 7 oz. Epicure Peach Stices in natural juke, 7% oz Derwart Turkey Strogonoff, 15 az. Percy Dalton's Dzy Roasted Peanuts, 5 oz A Sharwood Pork and Duck Liver Patr with Pon, 6 oz

Baxters Raspberry Jam, 12 oz

Matthew Welker Mincement with Brandy, 12 oz

JA Sharwood Seafood Dressing, 140 ml Le Gourmai Cascon Tourain Gas (concentrated, serves 4), 14 oz. jacksons Lapsang Southong Tea, 4 oz. Epicure Tomatoes, 8 oz

Furness of Cornwall Lemonies Biscuits, 10% or Bendicks Bitter Mocha Chocolates, 7 oz Grey Poupon Dijon Mustard 5 oz Le Gourmet Gascon Creme d'Asperges Sou (concentrated, serves 4), 14 oz Furniss of Comwall Shortles Biscuits, 10'/2 02 Rialto Hazelnut Prailines 5 oz A Sharwood Tomato and Chilli Chritiev, 10 oz Sea King Portuguese Sardines in oil, 3%, oz Derwent Ox Tonque, 7 02

Epicure Flageolot Bears, 1 lb Furniss of Cornwall Cherry Chocket Biscoits. 10'1 oz Epicnie Chocolnie Brazils, 7 oz Micouleau Boont en Daube 13 : ov.

Bendicks Classic Plain Chocolate Assortment 8 . . 02 Basters Burgundy Wine Cook in Sauce, 15 oz Walker's Dundee Cake 14 oz Enicure French Glace Clementines, 10% oz Sea king Mackerel in tomato. 7 02 Baxters Application 12 oz Epicure Potatoes, 1 lb Epicure Ratellos, 15 pieces Faugler Marrons Glace. 5 oz tin Sea King South American Pilchards in romato, 15 oz

Epicure Pear Halves, 1 th Le Gourmet Cascon Bisque de Hornard (concentrated serves 4), 14 oz William Lusty Rich Fruit Cake with Hine Cognac. 2 lb Epicure Assorted French Glace Fruits, 10% oz Percy Dalton's Pistachio Kuts, 5 oz. Country Way Black Cherry Jam with Kirsch, 8 pz.

Epicure Instant Coffee, 3½ oz Furntss Gurgerbread and Butter & Spice Biscuris, 14 oz. tm Chocometz Assorted Liqueur Chocolates 91 oz Walker's Highland Oatcakes, 14 oz inn with Scotch Whisky, 2 lb Bendicks Grapes in Brandy Chocolates, 7 A Shanwood Peach Chutney, 11% oz Sea King Thadand Sealood Cockied 7 of

arwood Mango Sikes, 15 oz Micoulesu Poulaid Farcie à l'Ancienne, 13 / 104 Percy Dalton's Smoked Almonds, 5 oz Sharwood Liner Patë with Green Peppercorns e az Baxters Rowan Jelly, 12 az Matthew Walker Mince Pre. 14 or Bacters' Sweet and Sour Cook in Sauce 15 oz Le Gourmet Gascon Soupe de Poissons iconcentrated, serves 4), 14 oz | A Sharwood Arischoke Hearts, 14 oz picure Petit Fours. 15 pieces Bendicks Bitlermints, 14 oz A Sharwood Bengal Hot Chulney, 12 .. o:

Epicure Smoked Oysters, 37, oz A Sharwood Bisck Cherries, 15 oz I A Sharwood Pheasant Pare with White Wine & oz Country Way Bitter Grange Marmalade with Pure Mair Whisky Rioz Pensiord traditional Christmas Pudding 2 lb

Surcout

1 bottle Boilinger Special Curve Champagne

Full name of the cardholder

Furnist of Comwall Fairing Biscuits, 71/2 02. Walker's Genoa Cake, 12 oz. Chocolate Parfait Old Fashioned Orange and Brandy Fudge, 5 oz Epicure Pacific Sunset Mix, 31/1 oz. Baxlers' Strawberry Jam. 12 oz.

Matthew Walker Mucemean with Brandy, 12 oz

Epicure Honeyed Dessert Figs. 8½ oz

Jacksons Earl Grey Tee, 20 bags Epicure Rose and Lemon Turkish Delight, 7 oz Berisford traditional Christmas Pudding, 1 jb Furmas of Comwall Lemonies Biscuits, 7½ oz Crystallised Australian Stem Ginger, 31/4 oz Welker's Sultana Cake, 12 pz Chocometz Assorted Liqueur Chocolates, 1 1/4 oz Percy Dalton's Salred Mixed Nuts, 3% oz Baxters' Blackcurrant Jam. 12 oz. Furniss of Cornwell Shortes Biscuhs, 7% oz Walker's Dundee Cake, 12 oz

Nelson e28 00

Bendicks Alter Dinner Mints, 5 oz

Percy Dalton's Dry Roasted Peanuls, 5 oz

Furniss of Cornwall Fairing Biscuits, 7% oz Bendicks Crème de Mentha Chocolates, 7 oz I A Sharwood Mint Sauce T40 ml Epicure Skrpjack Tuna Fish in oil. 31/2 oz Epicure Frant Cocktail in natural laice. - - oz Derwent Turkey Stroganott 15 az Percy Dalton's Assorted Note & Fruit 8 oz A Sharwood Pheasant Pite with White Wine 6 Country Way Bitter Orange Marmalade with Pure

Malt Whisky 8 oz Matthew Walker traditional Christmas Pudding 8 oz Basters' Sweet and Sour Cook in Sauce, 15 oz. Ranters Tarian Cream of Chicken Soup. 15 oz Epicure Potatoes, 1 (b Enrouse Ratation 15 pieces William Litsty Stem Ginger Cake with Ginger Wine 1 -, lb

Plasten Assorted Continental Chocolates 10 JA Sharwood Plum Churney 10 oz

Epicute Pink Guavas 1 lb

Derwent Ham, 7 pz Matthew Walker Mince Pre. 14 oz

Furntss of Conwall Gingerbread Biscuits, 71/2 oz. Bendicks Cocoa Dusted Almonds, 7 oz. Epicure Apple Sauce, 6 oz Sea King Portuguese Sardines in oil. 31/4 oz Epicure Strawberries, 15 oz Derwent Turkey Strogonofi, 15 oz Percy Dalton's Dry Roasted Pennuts, 5 oz Baxters' Rhubarb and Ginger Jam, 12 oz. Le Gourmet Cascon Tourain Gascon (concentrated, serves 4), 14 oz Furniss of Comwall Lemonies Biscuits, 10% oz Country Way Black Charry Jam with kirsch, 8 or Assorted Continental Chocolates, 10 % oz Ses King Mackerel in tomato. 2 oz Sharwood Mango Stices, 15 oz Derwent Corned Beef, 12 oz Epicure Ratalias, 15 pieces

Vullare Lusty Rich Frun Cake with Hine Cognac, 2 ib Bendicks Grapes in Brandy Chocol Epicure Redcurrant Jelly, 12 oz. Sea King Thadand Shurups in brine, 7 oz Epicure Green Figs, 1 lb. Foulouse, 13% oz.
Percy Dalton's Pistachio Nuis. 5 oz. Australian Set Honey, 1 lb

Micouleau Mousse de Viando d'Ore. 10% oz Matthew Walker Mince Pie. 14 oz Le Gourmet Gascon Bisque de Homard. (concernirated, serves 4), 14 oz. lacksons Lapsang Souchong Tea, 4 oz

These prices apply to the Christmas 1986 season. Deliveries begin in October. Prices include carriage within the United Kingdom mainland. Orders must reach us by December 8th to ensure delivery by Christmas.

We can accept Dinera Club, Visa/Trust and Access credit card payments, providing that the following details

Payment may also be made by cheque or money order, if payment is made in a FOREIGN CURRENCY or with a cheque bearing NO BRITISH ADDRESS, 25,00 must be added to cover bank clearance charges.

Billing address of the cardholder
 Expiry Date of the credit card

Stulion Cheese, 2 1 lb Smith Woodhouse Late Bottled Vi

iner Güres Dömtal. 1984/5. I bottle Côtes du Rhône. 1 bottle Martial Fino Sherry, Valdespino. 1 bottle Côtes du Rhône Blanc. Ponnelle. 1 bottle Furniss of Cornwell Gingerbread Biscuits, 10% oz William Lusiy Rich Fruit Cake with Tla Maria, 2 lb Crystallised Australian Stem Ginger, 31/4 oz LA. Sharwood Must Sauce, 140 ml. Epicure Red Socreye Salmon, 31/2 oz Epicure Mandans Segmenta 11 oz. Darweni Corned Beef, 12 oz. Percy Dalton's Dry Roasted Peanuts, 5 oz Micouleau Mousse de Vlande d'Ole. 10% oz

Baxters' Rhubarb and Ginger Jam. 12 oz Matthew Walker Mincemeat with Brandy, 12 oz Baxters' Sweet and Sour Cook-in Sauce, 15 oz Baxiers' Tarian Croem of Chicken Soup, 15 oz Epicure Instant Coffee 31/4 oz Epicure Flageolet Beans. 1 |b Furniss of Cornwall Shortes Biscults. 10% oz Bendicks Bitter Mocha Chocolaies, 7 oz Epicure Peach Slices in natural juice, 7% oz Country Way Damson Jam with Madeira Wine, & oz Baxiers: Tarian Scotch Vegelable Soup, 15 oz

Epicure Pineapple Slices, 12 oz Epicure Leai Spinach, 1 lb Furniss of Cornwall Cherry Choclet Biscuits, 10 🛷 William Eusty Rich Front Cake with Hine. 2 lb Bendicks Chocolate and Liqueur Assorted Chocolates, 81/2 oz I A Sharwood Plum Chuiney, 10 oz

Epicure Strawberries, 15 oz Avstralian Sel Honey, 1 ib Epicure French Glace Clementines, 10% oz Le Gourniet Gascon Quenelles de Brochet. Sauce Naniue, 13% oa Epicure Green Figs. 1 lb Baxters Coq au Vin. 12 oz Percy Dalton's Salted Macadamia Nuts, 5 oz Baxters' Rowan felly, 12 us Baxters Provencule Cook in Sauce, 15 or Baxters' Vichysolsse Soup, 15 oz A Sharwood Ratatouille, 13 oz.

Rodney

Walker's Chocolate Chip Biscuits, 5 oz Walker's Rich Fruit Cake, 14 oa Bendicks Crème de Menthe Chocolates, 7 az Saxiers: Whole Fruit Cranberry Sauce, 5 oz Epicure Skipjack Tuija Fish in Oil, 31/202 Epicure Pini Guavas, I lib Derwent Ham. 1 lb. Epicure Petit Pols i Etuves, 1 lb Percy Dalton's Salted Mitted Nuts, 31/c or

A Sharwood Pork and Duck Liver Pare with Port . 6 oz Baxters' Black current Jam. 12 oz visiord traditional Christmas Pudding, 1 Ib Baxiers' Provencale Cook-in Sauce, 15 oz. Baxters' Cream of Scampi Soup, 15 oz

Uganda E1800

Furniss of Cornwall Shorties Biscuits, 7% oz Bendicks After Dinner Minis, 5 oz Sea King Thailand Shrimps in brine, 4 az Epicuse Pineapple Sices, 12 oz Baxiers' Scotch Mince with Beef and Vegetables, 15% oz Percy Dalton & Salted Mixed Nuts, 3% oz A Sharwood Liver Pate with Green

Peppercoms, e oz Country Way Seville Orange Marmalade, 8 oz latthew Walker traditional Christmas Pudding & oz Baxters' Tarian Cream of Tomato Spup. 15 oz Jacksons Earl Grey Tee, 20 bags |A Sharwood Whole Kernel Sweetcorn, 15 oz Furniss of Comwali Wholemeal & Bran Bistuits, 7% oz

Wild Scottish Smoked Salmon, 1 Ib hand sliced

Walker's Hazelnia Biscutts, 5 pz Epicure Ross and Lemon Turkish Delight, 7 oz. Epicure Redcurrant Jelly, 12 oz ure Skipjack Tuna Flah in oil, 3½ oz. LA. Sharwood Mango Slices. 15 ez Micouleau Cassoulet with Pork. 137/2 ez Percy Dalton's Assorted Nuts & Fruit, 8 ez. Australian Set Honey, 1 lb. tthew Walker Mince Pie, 14 oz A. Sharwood Seafood Dressing, 140 ml Baxters' Tartan Cream of Chicken Soup, 15 oz.

Epicare Petit Pois l'Etuves, 1 lb Walker's Almond Shortcake Rings-5 oz. Bendicks Victorian Orange Chocolates. & oz. Baxters' Cream of Pheasant Soup, 15 oz I A Sharwood Mint Sauce, 140 ml Epicure Smoked Dysters, 37/102 Epicure Apricot Halves in natural juice, 71/102 Derwent Dutch Turkey Roll 7 pz.

Baxters' Respherry Jam., 12 oz Baxters' Cream of Mushroom Soup, 15 oz Epicure Polatices, 1 Ib urnies of Comwall Gingerbread Biscure, 10½ oz. William Lusty Rich Dundee Coke, 1½ Ib Bendicks Chocolate and Liqueur Assorted Chocolates, 81/2 02 A Sharwood Apple and Sage Jelly, 6 oz. Sea King Thailand Crab in brine 4 oz

Epicure Pink Guavas, 1 (b) Derwert Coined Beel, 12 oz Percy Dalton's Smoked Almonds 5 oz Baxters: Wild Bramble Jant, 12 oz

Thunderer

Furnish of Conneall Fairing Biscotts (7) and Walker's Sulfamuric dec. 12 oz. Chocolate Parlan Old Fashroned Chocolate Findge Sing Epiciale Apple Sauce Acco

Sea king South American Pilchards in Iouiato 15 nz Epicure Fruit Cock tail in notural juice, 7% oz Epicure Yoghun Coared Raisnes, 2'- oz Bauers, Rhubarb and Ginger Jam, 12 oz Beristord maditional Christmas Pudding 1 R Baxters' Sweet and Sout Cook in Sauce, 15 oz Baxlers' Tation Scotch Vegetable Soup, 15 oz Epicure Flagcolet Ruans, 1 lb Chocomerz Assorted Liqueur Chocolates 1

Oberon 134.50

Walker's Almond Shortcake Birres 5 oc william Listy Rick Dundee Cake. 1 . Ib Bendicks Chocolate Assortment 7 az A Sharwood Feach Chutney, 11 . 0 Epirore Smoked Cod's Roe. 1 az Micouleau Harmots aux Saucisses di

Toulouse, 13.1, oz Percy Dalton's Salted Cashew Nuts 3.1 oz Country Way Blackberry Jam with Port and Brandy, 8 oz Matthew Walker Mincement with Brandy. 12 oz) A Sharwood Seafood Dressing 140 mi Baxters' Scotch Salmon Bisque 15 oz

Epicure Courgettes an Tomato, 13 62 Chocometz Liqueur Chocolates, 1 · oz enstord traditional Christmas Pudding, 2 lb Quiberon E10 00

Chocolete Pariell Old Fashioned Chocolete Fudge, 5 oz Percy Dahon's Assorted Nuts & Fruit, 8 oz. Baxters' Wild Bramble Jam, 12 oz. jacksons Lapsang Southong Tea. 4 oz.

Rialio Hazelmit Pralines, 5 oz Country Way Bitter Grange Marmalad with Malt Whisky, 8 oz. with root vinisky, a uz. Berisland Iraditional Christmas Pudding, 2 lb. Plasten Continental Chocolates, 10% oz Walker's Stem Ginger Biscuits, 5 oz Walker's Rich Fruit Cake, 14 oz.

6. Our prices are inclusive of all current United Kingdom domestic taxes and duty.

3. Please include your own card if you would like your personal grayings to be sent with the hamper. In the case of a multiple order, do make sure that you tell us which card is to go with which parcel. If you would like us to send one of our own cards, please tell us the message that you would like us to write.

We will replace, free of charge, any item which is lost, or demaged to an unusable degree, in kansit. Your notification of such loss or damage must be given within seven days of receipt of the parcel if replacement (or refund) is to be considered.

White every effort will be made to supply the exact goods, we have to reserve the right to make substitutions of similar or higher quality goods in the event of an unexpected supply fallure contacting with requirements of

THE GUARDIAN, October 5, 1988

Furniss of Comwall Cherry Choclet Biscuits, 7/2 or Walker's Dundee Cake, 12 oz. Epicure Rose and Lemon Turkish Debgie, 7 oz. Percy Dalton's Pearests and Raisins, 3% or ountry way Black Cherry Jam with Kirsch, 8 oz Berisford traditional Christmas Pudding, 2 h. Furnisa of Conneal Butter & Spice Biscotts, 77, oz. Epicure Pacific Sunset Min. 374 oz.

Victory

Epicure Pear Halves 1 lb Denvent Turkey Strogonoff, 15 oz. Country Way Seville Orange Marmalade, 8 oz Basters Tartan Highlanders Proth 15 or

Grey Poupon Lujon Atusted 5 oz Nea King Mackerel in romary 7 oz Epicure Apricol Halves in natural mice, 7% is Derwent Dutch Turkey Roll 7 oz Epicure Perusits and Raisins, 3., 42 Micouleau Ciénie de Foie de Volade 2 - o Country Way knot From and Lemon Jam 8 of Matthew Walker Minuelmeat with Brandy, 12 or

> Furniss of Commeal Wholemas & Bran Piscults 71/2 02 Walter's Genoa Cake, 12 0: lare Parteit Old Fashtoned Orange 🖴 Brandy Fudge, 5 oz Epicine Pocific Sunset Mb. 3% oz

Pointer

Furniss of Cornwall Gingerbread Biscuits, 7% or William Lusty Rich Fruit Coke with Tia Maria 20 Epicure Apple Sauce, 6 oz Stiarwood Green Label Margo Chuiney, 1 Epicure Red Sockeye Salmon, 3 /s 04 A Shawood Melan Cubes, I lb 3 of 'ercy Dallon's Tropical Fruit & Not Miz. 186 2 jors Micouleau Crême de Fois de Volalia 21/4 Oz each Country Way Lemon Cheese with Dry Sharp & De Bettalord Ludillored Christmas Pudding. 1 b

Walker's Shortbread Engers 5 oz Walker's Genon Cake, 12 oz Sea King Thailand Seafcod Cockand 7 oz

A Sharwood Pheasant Pâté with White Wine 6 ez Marthew Wolker Marcemeat with Brandy 12 oz. Sauters Madras Hot Curry Cook in Sauce 15 oz LA Starwood Ratatouille 11 oz

Furniss of Cormual Lemonics Biscuits, 7' , or lasten Assored Continental Chocolates 10 a or larders' Tartan Cream, of Chicken Soup, 15 or Country Way Seville Orange Marmalade, 8 o. Matthew Walker traditional Christmas Pudding, 8 o Furnss of Communi Geograficand Biscutts, 7% or

i A. Sharwood Apple and Sage Jelly, 6 ex

Son Ring Portuguese Sardines in oil, 3½ oz Epicure Polatoes, 1 lb Epicure Peach Silces in natural juice, 7% ex Banters' Strawberry Jam, 12 oz. Saxiers' White Wine Cook-in-Saxce, 15 cs.
Baxiers' Cream of Mushroom Sovp. 15 cs. Epicure Tomatoss, 8 oz. Grey Poupon Dijon Mustard, 5 oz. Derwent Ham, 7 oz.

Baxters' Burguady Wine Cock-in-Sauce, 15 62 Baxters' Cream of Leek Soup, 15 62 Faugier Chestruit Purée. 15% oz.

THE US Administration, caught out by Bob Woodward of The Washington Post in lying to the media about supposed plans to attack Libys's Gadafy (see page 17), is to set up an office to expose Soviet efforts to mislead world opinion about

Information from

the disinformers

American foreign policy. Some people might say, having read the Post story, that the White House and State Department were quite capable of misleading the world about American foreign policy in their own right. But, in any case, will anybody now believe what the new Office of Disinformation, Analysis and Response actually says?

White House press spokesman Larry Speakes — "forked tongue".

The Washington Post

Caught Out In Lying

ALMOST ALL of government public informetion is an attempt not just to tell people objectively what is going on, but to make people believe one thing or another. This is an accepted form of government activity in the public arena — a way of bargaining, the public arena — a way of bargaining, vying for advantage, putting a certain face on things, trying to work your will. Bluff, threat and "psychological war" are staples of both domestic politics and foreign policy. Journalists know it, expect it, deal with it every day by their attitude of skepticism and their techniques of inquiry and pursuit. They pride themselves on their ability to break through the government's masks and pretenses and to keep themselves from

So what is different about the Reagan administration's effort revealed on page 17 to use the American press to destabilize the Libyan regime of Moammar Gadhafi? The word "disinformation" was used in a White House memo outlining the strategy, and in House memo outlining the atrategy, and in some newspapers last August there appeared stories taking at face value private official reports that opposition to Col. Gadhafi was brewing and a second American attack was in the works. Almost immediately, however, some press akepticism was evident. The Post, for instance, and that the take was a suggestion that noted that there was "some suggestion that the United States is trying to psyche out the Libyan strongman by fomenting anxiety about what this country is planning. In any event, nothing in particular happened. Continued on page 10 Vol. 135 No. 15 Week ending October 12, 1986

The Blackpool tea party

The Tories could still win

The Labour Party will fight the next election on a platform of unilateral nuclear disarmament, it decided last week, an issue that helped it to lose the last election. (Reports, pages 3, 4, 5.) THE CONSERVATIVES have the means, hat-trick. She may even believe the current conceit that hers is a three-term revolution. Certainly, a third Thatcher term would give her the chance to leave a more indelible Thatcherite imprint than has yet been achieved. What's more, it could spell an end to Labour hopes of winning an outright majority in the foreseeable future. And the opportunity? Look no further than the latast Observer/Harris poll, confirming that in spite of all that has gone wrong for them this year, the Tories are gradually strengthering in the polls at the expense of the Alliance. That 38 per cent poll rating (with nicely to be going on with.

There is, of course, a less complacent case to be made. That the revival is illusory, because it understates the Alliance's electoral base. Wait for the wounds of Eastbourne to heal and the softness of the Tory the motive, and the opportunity to win themselves a third election. The means? Their electoral machine is in fair shape. They start with the enormous advantage of the source again. That the Source and the sources of the lorger to hear and the lorger to hear an a huge majority to defend. They can choose the date of the next election. They have the great asset of government, which means a liability. That the party itself is tired of the party itself is the p they can dictate the political agenda. The government and increasingly preoccupie motive? Mrs Thatcher wants the clusive with marginalia. That the party workers around the land are uneasy and critical.

> Bomb disposal problem for Labour . . . page 4

That the best talents (Messers Heseltine; security reform, but fixated suddenly and arbitrarily on football hooliganism, drugs, or books showing men in bed together. In short, that its hour has gone. Well, maybe it has. We certainly hope so But there are certain stubborn realities about the political contest of the next eighteen months that impose agnostic caution. Nobody yet knows how defence is going to impact upon British politics in that period, especially as the trail winds on from Reykjavik. But it is at least a respectable empirical thought that the combination of Labour's non-nuclear stance and the divi-sions of the SDP-Liberal Alliance may work to the Tories' political advantage. It is at least arguable that a society in which millions flock to the share issues of privatised industries, and in which millions more are doing nicely out of the current pay surge is not going to be a society which cheers to the echo every social ownership pledge or redistributive tax plan. And it is always worth reminding yourself, after s weekend of spending announcements and hints, just how much more quickly a government can take a political initiative than any opposition. There are problems at Bournemouth, yes. But plenty of or ties, too.

INSIDE

Syria said to back El-Al bombing.....

Reagan-Gorbachev summit hopes 6, 15

Attempt to kill Rajiv Gandhi7 US now committed to sanctions 8, 10, 16

Terry Coleman on the Commonwealth 9

Soviet missile sub sinks......10, 15

Pretoria's stranglehold on neighbours16

US disinformation on Libya.....

'Duke' Hussey to run BBC.....19

Guardian Publications Ltd. 1988. Published by Guardian Publications Ltd., 184 Deanagate, Manchester, M60 2RR., for and on behalf of The Guardian and Manchester Evening News P.L.C., 164 Deanagate, Manchester M60 2RR. 184 Deanagate, M60 2RR. 184 Deana

Bankers: Barclays Bank, 29-30 High Street, Windsor, Berkshire, SL4 1PG · Sort Code: 20-97-09 · A/C: Trencherman Hampers No. 30897558

TRENCHERMAN HAMPERS · Hurst House · Hurst · Reading · Berkshire RG10 OSH · U.K.

Telephone: (0734) 342116 · Telex: 858893 FLETEL G (Attn. Trench)

of Edwina

Mrs Edwina Currio's latest outburst is a disgrace for a health minister. Patronisingly she tells Northerners that "their relatively poor health was due in part t

First, it is simply wrong

auggest that higher sickness and death rates have nothing to do with poverty and involuntary unemployment. There is a wealth of research which shows causal relationships. In day-to-day clinical and lay experience, health professionals, relatives and neighbour witness, for example, how unamployment can lead to serious depression, or how poverty can led to hypothermia, malnutrition and

Second, where Mrs Curris gets something right — yes, we de spend too much on alcohol and crisps — she evades her minister-al responsibilities. Preventing scidents and sickness would be greatly helped if Mrs Currie and her colleagues tackled the quite unethical promotion of tobsem,

Mrs Currie and her colleagues

daily seek to impress the electorate with the propaganda that the NHS is treating more patients than ever. The truth is that NHS staff are having to treat many patients who have accidents or result of government policies. Those policies have massively increased unemployment, poverty and homelessness, they have sale-

taged health and safety regul tions and resources, and they have failed to curb physical and psycho-

On August 9, the British Med-

cal Journal published an editorial entitled "The need for a public health alliance." One of the main arguments advanced was that "there are issues on which the health message does not come through nearly as strongly as it should. These include poverty, un-

The biggost obstacle to the re-invention of public health in Brit-

Perhaps Mrs Currie will take comfort from the fact that while the undeserving poor are always with us, they don't live as long.

employment, housing,

(Dr) Peter Draper,

London SE10.

N. Saunders,

Ashburnham Grove,

logical pollution.

ain is money.

lineases largely or wholly as a alcohol and junk food.

their own ignorance".

Syrian diplomat 'aided El Al terrorist'

By a Staff Reporter

Czechoslovakia.

THE Syrian ambassador to Britain tried to help the escape of a handed the case when he stayed Jordanian terrorist in London who with Syrian Arab Airlines emhad tried to place a bomb on board an Israeli jet at Heathrow Airport last April, an Old Bailey jury was old on Monday.

Prosecuting counsel, Mr Roy Amlot, said that Nezar Hindawi, who was working for Syrian intelligence, was "warmly greeted" by the ambassador, Dr Loutof Allah Haydar, shortly after Mr Hindawi duped his girlfriend into attempt ing to carry a bomb made of powerful military explosives on to he plane. The bomb was primed to explode when the plane was flying 39,000 fact over Austria, on route to Tel Aviv. Had it gone off, all 375 people on board would almost certainly have died.

Details of the attempted bombing emerged during the opening day of Hindawi's trial at the Old Bailey. Mr Hindawi, a 35-year-old Jordanian, has denied attempting to blow up an El Al jumbo jet on April 18. He has also pleaded not guilty to possession of a Browning pistol and 25 bullets.

Opening the prosecution case, Mr Amlot said that there was convincing evidence that Mr Hindawi was acting in concert and on behalf of a group called the Jordanian Ravolutionary Movement.

Mr Hindawi is alleged to have duped his Irish-born girlfriend. Miss Ann Murphy, aged 32, who was pregnant, into carrying the bomb. It was discovered in the bomb. It was discovered in bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of a case Mr Hindawi Shair which contained a special bottom of the case of the c Al staff at Heathrow.

Libyan air link to end

services agreement between the two countries expires on October

By Alan Travis

THE Government has decided to two countries to continue." The air end all direct flights between Libya and Britain, following evi-dence given in an Old Bailey trial 31 and will not be renewed. Ten last week that a man in Libyan Arab Airlines uniform had taken likely to be expelled as a result.

grenades to Heathrow airport.

Mr John Moore, the Transport

Secretary, said: "The involvement of Libyan Arab Airlines in support of Libyan Arab Airlines in support of the of terrorist activity makes it inappropriate, in the Government's view, for air services between the airline's knowledge.

The route has proved lucrative for B-Cal and the airline had hoped to resume flights shortly,

New paper launched

By Patrick Wintour

THE NEW quality newspaper, The Independent, went on sale on Tuesday with a print run of roughly 600,000 — some 50,000 fewer than planned — because of problems at one of the four region-

The menaging director, Mr Douglas Long, said that technical difficulties at the plant in Sittingbourne in Kent were largely being overcome by extra production to the other presses in Portation at the other presses in Portsmouth, Bradford and .. Peterborough, but there was a shortfall It is the first up-market daily national newspaper to be launched in Britain since the Daily Telegraph and Courier 131 years ago. Mr Long sald the target circulation was 375,000. Thirty dummy issues of the paper have already been produced with a print run of 580,000 in a distribution dress rehearsal.

The paper is being directly input by journalists, bypassing the tradi-tional role of the NGA typesetter. THE WEEK IN BRITAIN

Kinnock kicks Labour into line

IF party unity could win elections, Mr Neil Kinnock would undoubtedly be the next Labour occupant of 10 Downing Street. Even the party's opponents were of one voice in agreeing that last week's Labour conference, beneath the Mr Hindawi is said to have been pinky-red rose emblem and with background strains of Brahms, ployees at the Royal Garden Hotel in Kensington a few days earlier.

Mr Amlot said that the bomb was far and away the most harmo-nious since Mrs Thatcher took contained just over three pounds of plastic explosive manufactured in office in 1979.

Mr Amlot said that Miss Mur-phy was "no suicide bomber" but rather a "simple Irish girl". She had begun an affair with Mr Hindawi shortly after her arrival in London in the autumn of 1984. She worked as a chambermaid at the Park Lane Hilton Hotel. She became pregnant by Mr Hindawi who eventually agreed to marry her. In April, she said he made plans for them to fly to Israel for a wedding in the Holy Land. When the discovery of the bomb at 9.10am was publicised, Mr Hindawi sought refuge in the Syrian embassy, Mr Amlot said. After contacting Damascus, the ambassador arranged for him to hide in a safe house in west London. He was to have his hair dyed there and, the following day, make his way back to the embassy. However, Mr Hindawi is said to have panicked and gone instead to the London Visitor's Hotel in Holland Road, where he was recog-

When he was arrested, Mr Hindawi had a Syrian passport, "nor-mally issued to government officials," in the name of Issam route in July after a former B-Cal jet was resold to Libya in defiance of European sanctions, without the

but the end of the agreement wil mean they have no legal basis to fly into Tripoli. Libyan Arab Airlines has two flights a week between Tripoli and Heathrow. Security at Heathrow will be increased until the agreement ex-

EXCHANGES

2.2502-2.2700 20.13-20,18 59.42-59.53 1.9909-1.9937 10.78-10.80 9.37-9.39 2.6929-2.5870 11.21-11.32 1.0516-1.0526 1.980-1.985 221, 80-221,57 2.21,50-221,57 2.21,50-221,57 2.2352-2.2396

.208,58-210.17 189,52-189.80

1.3749-1.3766

FT 30 Share Index 1251-2 Gold $438-50

Provious Cleaing ficies

2.2670-2.271 20.21-20.24 60.45-65 86

1.8956-1.999 - 10.65-10.68 - 9.40-9.42 - 2.87-2.68 - 11.20-11-21

1,20-11 21 1,0550-1,057 1,957-1,992 221,55-222 0 3,24-3,26 10,62-10,67

210.76-212.33 190.28-190.58 9.85-9.87 2.332-2.336 4.4405-1.4415

FOREIGN-

Not a voice was raised against the scrapping of nuclear weapons and the closing of American nuc-lear bases. Or against the new concept of social ownership, which the party hopes will be electorally less unpopular than nationalisation but which, none-theless, offends against the allimportant clause 4 of Labour's constitution, There was some dispute about scrapping the nuclear energy programme, but the confer-ence agreed that this could take as long as twenty years to accom-plish. Since this presupposes four successive Labour governments opponents of the policy — mainly those working in the industry — went away feeling that their jobs are safe. Partly, at least, the Labour hierarchy achieved its objective of outward unity by keeping boatrockers well away from the rostrum. And those Atlanticists who, a few months ago, might have voiced some misgivings about the threat posed to Nato by the antinuclear policy were reduced to silence by the anti-Americans whose arguments have been greatly strengthened by the raids on Libya mounted from US bases in Defence, however, has always been an issue on which the electorate tends to side with the Tory position, and Mrs Thatcher and her Ministers were expected to launch a vigorous attack on Labour's unliateralist stance at the Conservative conference which opened in Bournemouth this week. Dr John Gilbert, a former Labour defence minister, paved the way with a warning that Mr Kinnock would be leaving the country naked to nuclear blackmail. Libyan airline staff based here are

The commitment to throw out all American nuclear bases "within a year," as Mr Kinnock promised, produced a volume of barbed questions from military strategists who wanted to know whether Labour had given any serious thought to the practical difficulties of bringing this about. Service chiefs also expressed anxieties. The chief of the defence staff, Admiral Lord Lewin, said that if an incoming Labour government rejected the service chiefs' advice, it was possible that some or all of them might feel obliged to resign. The next Conservative manifesto, some of the contents of which emerged this week, is likely to be a continuation of the last. The Housing Minister, Mr John Patten, set owners (most of them tenants encouraged to buy their their council homes) in five years. There will be more privatisation, more trade union "reform" and a contin-ued commitment to reduce direct taxation. There is even a proposa to offer tax relief to people who pay for their own health care, though this does not enjoy unanimous Cabinet approval.

The threat to sterling, however, cast an ominous shadow over the conference. The "non-intervention-ist" Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr Nigel Lawson, ordered the Bank of England to block a threatened rise of one to two per cent in interest rates. But Mr Lawson's relations with the bank are poor, and it was thought that the intense pressure on the pound could not be resisted indefinitely however embarrassing a rise interest rates might be to the

Though Tory leaders went around saying that a general elections is more likely to be in 1988 than next year, the party clearly accords unusual importance to this year's conference and would certainly not want the event upstaged by the Reagannot by Downing Street — to accede to the Russians' desire to hold the conference in London rather than conference in London rather than

was Mrs Thatcher's decision to appoint Mr Marmaduke Hussey t be the new chairman of the BBC Mrs Thatcher is convinced that the corporation is in the hands of a Marxist mafia and her party chairman, Mr Norman Tebbitt, has set up a monitoring unit to assemble supporting evidence. "Duke' Hussey, a supposed union-basher as managing director of Times Newspapers, was never thought of as a runner for the BBC job and his brief, according to Conserva-tive Central Office, was to "get in there and make it bloody clear in days and not months - that things have got to change."

An inquiry into the pay of Scottish teachers recommended that they should be given a rise of 16.4 per cent over the next 18 months, which is nearly four times what the Government reckons should be the norm for public sector pay. The disruptive 18-month dispute over teachers pay has been particularly damaging in Scotland and the Government is thought to be prepared quite a heavy price for a permanent and to the troubles in schools. Any pay deal, however, would still have to be accompanied by binding contracts, setting out teachers' duties, which the profession might be unwilling to accept.
The jobs of British Acrospace workers were guaranteed for at least two years by an order, placed by Northwest Airlines of America, for up to a hundred A320 Airbus airliners. The aircraft is built by the European Airbus Industric consortium, in which BAe has a 20 per cent stake. The order, worth £2.3 billion, will thus be worth at least £400 million to the British

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr Robert Runcie, said he was dismayed at a clear disregard of church regulations by a woman priest who celebrated Holy Communion in defiance of church law. The offender was the Rev Joyce Bennett, who was ordained priest in Hong Kong and who held the service at Church House, Westminster, in the presence of a bishop, a dean and more than 30 other clergymen, after a meeting of the Movement for the Ordina tion of Women. The Archbishop, who was in the United States on a lecture tour when he heard of the infringement, ordered an immediate inqui ry into how it came about. The Bishop of Kingston, the Rt Rev Peter Selby, who was present at Gorbachev meeting. This was thought to explain the refusal confirmed by Washington, though would make it even more clear that "the rule (banning the cele

Dealer makes quick £1,366,000 profit on 'Titian

AN old master which was sold at old masters. This one appeared on and the other dealers did not think AN old master which was sold at old masters. The old documentation it was by Titian. Sotheby's in April for £33,000 has the market without documentation it was by Titian. Sotheby's in April for £33,000 has the only bidder which counts been resold to the Kimbell art about its history, which counts museum, Fort Worth, Texas, for almost $2 million (about £1.4 million).

The painting is of the Madonna and Child with St Catherine and the infant St John the Baptist. Sotheby's catalogued it as by the "studio of Titian," which means that in Sotheby's opinion it is by an unknown hand in the studio of Titlan and might or might not have been painted under Titlan's direction.

But the dealer who bought it at a Sotheby's, Mr Piero Corsini of New York, believes that it is by Titian himself. The price he paid is in the opinion of a leading London dealer, too little for a genuine Titian and too much for a studio work.

But attributions belevil many against it to some extent.

On the other hand, X-rays have revealed that the figure of St John was originally on the left but was painted over and put instead on the right. This auggests that the

By Donald Wintersqill

painting is not a straightforward copy, although it may still be by a follower of Titian.

Mr Eric Turquin, of Sotheby's old master department, said: "I believe it is a studio painting but I am open to change my mind.

"We showed it to an expert on Titian, Mr Charles Hope of the Warburg Institute, who thought it a studio work. The painting was in But attributions bedevil many an important sale of old masters but has weak passages. Mr Corsini has been brilliant if he has bought a Titian so cheaply. Other versions of the Madonna and Child with the two saints are known. One is in the National Gallery and there have never been doubts that it is a Titian. It has Si John the Baptist on the left the reserve price. The picture is definitely of the mid-16th century and he secured ine

"Studio" versions are also known. An observer of the art market said: "The painting sold at Sotheby's may be accepted by scholars as a Titian but it wil never be a great painting. Vor few paintings by him can be described as poor, unless they have been damaged or re-painted."

and rrench and uerican warships, assembl Sydney harbour for this occasion. thoroughly vindicated. At my Some of these warships, probably six, will be armed with grammar school one was taught nuclear weapons, a fact conceded by Rear Admiral David Martin, clearly to distinguish between the by Rear Admiral David Martin, Flag Officer, Navai Support Com-mand, who in a recent broadcast personality of a writer and the writing persona which emerged from the pages. stated that "inevitably some of Any attack on the former was dismissed as being ad hominem and as such unworthy of the name of criticism. The personality of Mr Waugh need be of little concern to his reading public. The question whether or not he has stopped beating his wife is something best left to the competent authorities; likewise the question of whether or not he is "seedy" is something best left to his wife. As for the latter, the persona, (that's Latin for "mask", Polly) from the moment of publication it ceases to be the writer's exclusive property but is rather a mirror-held up to society, and what society makes of it is just as much a reflection of and on that society. Of course the mirror may have defects, both accidental and deliberate; it may be the fairground type that twists its image into a grotesque caricature. Such ques-tions are legitimate material for Quite without any guidance from Toynbes or Waugh, one had come to see Auberon Waugh qua persona as the thinking man's Alf Garnet. The message, in so far as there had to be one, was the time-honoured maxim: Learn how to behave from those who cannot. The analogy certainly extends to the social impact which both char-acters have had. As the creator of Alf discovered to his horror, many of his most devoted viewers took him completely at face value — a fate which, as Toynbee notes (and unwittingly exemplifies), is also overtaking our Auberon. I suspect it is this coarseness of perception, more than anything else, which has led him to despair of the products of our contemporary education system. One final thought: if it is true that Waugh is 'rather thin skinned," it must surely point to courage, rather than cowardice. that he writes the way he does.

D. L. Pendlebury,

9

I read with great dismay recentnews of current attempts to troduce student loans yet again. Make no mistake about it, if loans are introduced, those from poor and humble backgrounds will simply not go to university.'

It works like this: a schoolchild's concept of the value of money is directly related to parental income. What may seem a small amount of money to borrow to a rich child may seem a fortune to a poor child who will further know that Daddy cannot ball him or her out in case of difficulties. I myself was lucky, and had a full grant to go to university, but I' would not have taken a loan. This sure knowledge does not stem from a political belief or a cloth-cap and boots approach to borrowed Tory money, but the sheer size of the loan necessary would have fright-ened the pants off me, and this combined with the strong protestant belief of never borrowing money would have ensured that I wouldn't have had a hope in hell of ever going to university. And what government today can assure even a graduate of a job with which to pay back a loan? No, the argument is as true today as ever — if a student loan today as ever — if a student loan system is introduced, poor kids will not go to university, it's as simple as that.

(Dr) Christopher Green, Mafeking Terrace,

Boston, Lines.

British Airways has an excellent record of air safety and would be well placed to begin such a turning on and France.

New Zealand's Wellington Harbour, however small scale, is an indication that a country might go

People in Britain should recognize that visits by their nuclear armed warships are not welcome in Australian porta and we do not believe these visits are an Assistant Secretary, Eastern Suburbs Nuclear Disarmament Group.

100,000 hours of flight".

to these lengths.

expression of goodwill. Janet Fischer,

The bombing of Greenpeace in

We are greatly encouraged that ourselves, who have flown many thousands of intercontinental unfortunate and tragic loss of 55 miles, know that as long as the souls at Manchester will initiate a long overdue turning point in allows itself to be side-tracked by point in passenger safety consider-stion. Would they also please reinstate the two emergency exits which they somewhat arbitrarily deleted from their Boeing 747s in 1985, against the advice of the FAA and against the operational practice of all other major airlines ying the 747?.

Keith Partington, Lynne Marie Partington, lished at a Senate hearing on the Treaty, in which Senator Percy asked why the United States had accepted Article VI "which prohib its the future deployment in third countries of early warning radars". Ambassador Smith, the chief US negotiator, replied that neither side "believed that it is necessary to deploy future radars for early warning of strategic ballistic mis sile attack in third countries . .

Therefore . . . the sides agreed to prohibit such deployments".

tions and the European Joint Airworthiness Regulations which refer to "remote" failures being Students of sirline safety like Treaty infringement that shows up on radar

The British government contends that a new American early-warning radar at Fylingdales Moor will be "legal" under the 1972 ABM Treaty. To date, however, neither ministers norjournalists with access to Whitehall reasoning have been able to explain convincingly how this can these ships will be carrying nuclong overdue turning point in international air safety. We are, nowever, somewhat sceptical.

well documented body of evidence, concerning the irrefutable risks to passengers from the continued widespread use of toxic materials in aircraft cabins. For purely Radars forming part of permitted missile-interception sys-tems, known as "ABM raders," can indeed be modernised under Article VII of the treaty. However, this cannot apply to Fylingdales because, on the US side of the treaty, any such "modernisable" radar must be sited within 150 kilometres of Grand Forks, North Dakota. The primary function of both attack. The United States and Soviet Union have expressly agreed, under Article VI (b), that "future radars" for that purpose must be "at locations along the periphery of national territory and oriented outwards."

protestor was brave enough to ride his surfboard to the prow of the Illustrious and to hang on to the prow for five minutes as it sailed into the harbour. Only by bashing

His protest is supported by many people here who believe that bringing warships with nuclear weapons into the heart of our harbour threatens the security of the advertising gimmicks of air-lines rather than concerned by economies of operation will always count in preference to consider ations of passenger safety. Sadly, it takes a "aurvivable" catastrophe to point this out to us yet one more

Plane-makers must build-in safety

his fingers with a pole and ram-ming his board could the Water

Police dislodge him.

lear weapons".

HMS Illustrious is a British the millions of people whose homes light aircraft carrier which prob-

Since the 1960s there has grown a illegitimate safety hazards, the economic reasons the continued use of these synthetic and highly dangerous substances has continued all over the globs, encouraged by both sirines and by manufactures. Here the substances has continued all over the globs, encouraged by both sirines and by manufactures and the European Joint the Eu

The treaty and its supporting ocuments contain no provisions that geographical restriction to be relaxed in the case of new earlywarning radars built at existing aites, as it is now intended to do at Fylingdales.

This point was clearly estab-Restrictive

The Soviet Union has already complained to the United States that the Fylingdales radar devel-opment would be in breach of the student loans Treaty, and that she has stated her intention of raising the issue at the joint Standing Consultative Com-mission in Geneva, which has the unenviable task of resolving such saues between the parties.

Rip Bulkeley, Lonsdale Road, Oxford.

Indignities Luton inflicts on law-abiding fans

With all the press and Govern-atmosphere of the football ground the potential destruction of the Saturday entertainment of many families and individuals alike: nor of the mass stigmatising of thou-sands of innocent football support-ers. Nor has anyone highlighted the indignities suffered by the Luton football public.

They are already grossly over-charged for entry and programme, they are now subject to saturation policing, identity checks and lice costs were cited as a reason for Curtailments of civil liberties in one area of society will before long be applied elsewhere. The pro-lems of violence are not solved by turning football grounds into may police atates; at best this may per the violence back into the bone ment abuse heaped on the Football League for excluding Luton Town from the Littlewoods Cup, could I, as a Luton member and supporter, express my delight at the decision! The Luton ban on away support. the violence back into the ers has been dishonestly presented threat to Government bluster. as an operation to cut out the hooligan element and leave all else untouched. Little has been said about the death of the traditional camera surveillance. Yet high po-

Paul B. Rose King's Bench Walk,

Edmund Horton. Arcadia Gardens, Oakington, Cambs. While I sympathise with Lutor

Town in respect of past experiences, their predicament position of supporters of football itself Some of us actually go to enjoy our national winter sport without being "fans" of the particular clubs. Like the Alliance in politics, do we fall foul of an adversarial system epitomised by the layout of the House of Commons and its attendant moronic behaviour.

Temple, London EG4

past and proposed radars at Fylingdales is stated to be that of providing early warning of missile 23000 Dungun, Terengganu, Malaysia. THE GUARDIAN WEEKLY Copyright  1986 by Guardian Publications Ltd., (16 Famingdon Road, London, England, All rights reserved. Letters to the Editor and other editorial correspondence to: The Guardian Westly, P.O. Box: 15, Cheedle, Cheshire, SKS 100, England.
Buberription enquiries to the Circutation Manager, The Guardian Westly, 164 Detnegate, blanchester, N60 28R, England.
Advertisement anguiries to the Advertisement Manager, The Guardian Westly, 114 Farringdon Road, London, England. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES PAYABLE IN ADVANCE United Kingdom £29.00, Eire £31.50 IR EDITION: Europe, Middle East, North Africa £33.00; mericas, Africa (except North), Asia, Malaysia, Indonesia £35.50; Australesia, Far East, Pacific £36.50. Let us send a Gift Subscription to your friend — and a Gift Card with your best wisher To: Circulation Manager, The Guardian Weekly, 184 Deansgale, Manchester M60 2RR, England Please mail The Guardian Weekly for one year lo: MasterCard, and American rican Express basic ability to make nuclear bombs. It is the question, among others, of whether Aldermaston

Nuclear scientists argue that design teams, once dispersed, would be impossible to replace at a later date; so given the possibility of a future government re-instat-

ing nuclear weapons, to shut down

Aldermaston would be irresponsi

what "shut down" means: in the eyes of the Ministry of Defence

there is doubt whether it could ever, be shut down. The time-scale is certainly very long. The question arises as to whether Britain would also get rid of nuclear powered submarines — perceived as a major conventional capability

by all parties. If Aldermaston i not shut down, as long as plutonium stocks last and fissile material fabrication facilities remain in Britain, other nations will not re-

There is a further twist in the tail: verification of nuclear capability shut down would require international inspection. This would lead to dissemination of US

data, which the UK agreed not to do under the 1958 Bilateral Agreement with the US; the agreement gives the US power of veto of

None of these problems is insur-mountable. The boldness and conviction required to make major changes in governing Britain has been a quality of the Labour Party.

But to make changes as major as this, robust assertions of nation sovereignty and governmental power when in office will not be know that detailed and exacting preparation is necessary. First,

there must be recognition of the scale and extent of the changes

Second, ways must be designed and mechanisms built for the lumbered forward, gaining weight,

There is no department within the Ministry of Defence which is equipped to do this; no studies have been made within the Ministry as to how a non-nuclear policy for Britain could be made to work.

And preparations must be made to withstand the extraordinary pres sures to which a British government under such circumstances

Scilla McLean is research direct tor of the Oxford Research Group, which has spent the last four years examining nuclear weapon desi-sion-making in the US, the USSR

China and Europe, The Group and has made its research findings available

available to all British politics parties. The report summarit

here was commissioned by the Labour shadow cabinet in Deco ber last year, and delivered to the party in January this year.

Who decides? an ORG study

British nuclear weapon decision-making is available (price £2.50) from the Group at 1 High Street, Woodstock, Oxon, OX7 1TE...

Reach 380,000

readers through

The Guardian

Weekly

Contact:

Howard Greader, Advertisement Manager,

The Guardian Weekly, 119 Farringdon Road, London

ECIR 3ER, England. Telephone: 01-278 2332

reversal of a policy which over 40 years.

international inspection.

gard us as non-nuclear.

should be shut down.

A party seeking power will need to analyse in advance the kind of opposition to its policies which may be expected, both before and

ment, but a dozen establishments strongly opposed to some aspects of after an election.

The Oxford Research Group was asked by the Opposition Front Bench to do a preliminary study of the problems of implementation of Labour's defence policy. The study sets out the issues in Labour's defence policy in order of the defence policy, in order of the depth of opposition which they are likely to provoke, starting with the least contentious - the cancella-

TRIDENT: The warhead programme for Trident is already far advanced, and has necessitated the building of a £300 million new facility at Aldermaston: There will certainly be irritation within the Procurement Executive of the Ministry of Defence and the Strategic Systems Executive; but in fact, since Tri-altering the substructure of nuc-lear defence and could, under certain circumstances, be reintroduced after five years, the opposition from those areas would

More opposition could be expected from the Office of Management and Budget within the Ministry of Defence, because of the costs and waste involved in cancellation. US opposition to Trident cancellation vill be quite mild, no more severe than would be expected with the loss of a client state for missiles: the number of warheads contributed to Nato's overall nuclear capability is not significent in Pentagon terms.

The US nuclear bases: The second issue is the removal all nuclear weapons from bases Britain, while maintaining the US bases themselves. National Security Council in Washington will take this more seriously, but it remains in the nature of an inconvenience as long as delivery systems remain in place: in time of international tension the warheads can be flown tion. It is not a base, but a support ship moored in British waters. While not needed for US Trident submarines, it may be essential for sea-launched cruise missiles. The and tax in the Channel Islands.

(You don't pay tax in the Channel Islands.)

would therefore make every effort to negotiate a special case for Holy Removing cruise: The removal of cruise missiles, the third issue in order of likely opposition, is viewed with much more seriousness by Nato. As perceived by the Nato Nuclear Planning Group, it could be the death-blow to the entire troublesome strategy of placing intermediate range missiles in Europe. If Britain won't have cruise, why should Italy and Germany have cruise and Pershing II? The fragile Dutch and Belgian decision to station missiles would almost cartainly collapse. If this part of a Labour, government, policy, and

Labour government policy appeared likely to become a reality, pressure on Britain's representa-tives within Nato both before and after an election would be very substantial. [The Iceland summit this weekend, however, is likely to consider the future of missiles in The removal of British officers from senior Nato command posi-tions could be proposed, the with-drawal of US troops from Europe would be threatened, diplomatic cooperation in some areas could be withdrawn by the State Departbecome a real possibility.

The fourth issue is the phase-out

Pentagon and State Department of Polaris and withdrawal of Brit-

A high interest British bank account that pays gas bills in Chester

Their reaction would not mark time until the results of an election: the British press would be assiduously persuaded of the folly of such actions. Arm twisting within Nato has not infrequently in the past overcome consideration of the reservations of the electorate on much less fundamental account with a major UK, bank. What's more, by maintaining the minimum balance of $1,000, you enjoy a high rate of interest, and tax is not deducted at source in the Channel You'll receive a cheque book and cheque card, and you can arrange standing orders and direct debits. Unlike many others there are no minimum withdrawals and no bank charges. You can make as many transactions as you like and receive regular monthly statements. (We even offer a personal banking advisory service for the expatriate.)

With a Standard Chartered Extra

Value Deposit Account expatriates

enioy all the benefits of a current

To find out more, simply clip the coupon and return to:

Mr. Gordon Wylie, Standard Chartered Bank (C.I.) Ltd, Standard Chartered House, PO Box 89, Conway Street, St. Helier, 46/J, Jersey, C.1.

If will be so fulfill that the store state

Please send me details of your high interest cheque account.
Name	N
Address	M
	į.
	(C
NDA	100
60	I
2 20	18
PATER	.10
Standard & Chartered	1
One of Britain's major	F.
One of Britain's major international banks	26
The Pool's Front Mark white still a single	. 10

Scilla McLean on the tricky diplomacy of unliateral nuclear disarmament ish tactical nuclear weapons. The not much aired even in Labour Foreign Office, if it perceived this circles. That is the question of as becoming a reality, would be Britain's nuclear structure — our fraught, in the words of one senior official, by "frantic diplomatic anxieties." France would become the only European power with nuclear weapons. West Germany might be pulled into an exclusive pro-French orientation.

The Chiefs of Staff would react to this issue on more specific grounds: they would fear a crucial loss of confidence between US and UK services, especially between the Royal Navy and the US Navy. where there is a vibrant mutual loyalty. In the deeper recesses of the Ministry of Defence the much praised and much prized Strategic ystems executive, which has managed the British side of the missile and submarine collaboration with great efficiency, would not fail to point out that in 1984 the pivotal mutual defence agreement between Britain and the US was updated and extended for 10

The key question is whether the National Atomic Coordinating Offices, and Joint Working Groups would be disbanded. These transatlantic groups of civil servants are the lynchpin of nuclear devel-opment between Britain and the US, and have functioned quietly and efficiently out of the public eye for 25 years.

Nato's Nuclear Planning Group, vhich brings together ministers of defence of Nato nations, and more importantly Nato's High Level Group, which is chaired by Mr Richard Perle, will see the phase out of Polaris as a withdrawal of UK commitments under the Brus-

Should all US bases go?
If Labour's plans ultimately extend as far as the removal of US bases from Britain, in the eyes of the US National Security Council this would be tantamount to British departure from Nato. It would mean the loss of an essential intermediary with Europe, not to mention the strategic blow of the loss of forward bases. If this move were to include the intelligence gathering facilities, it would mean the end of US/UK intelligence links, upon which the Ministry of Defence relies for a host of easen-tial targeting information, as well as the basis for its estimate of Russian threat.

US intelligence services have had substantial numbers of staff based in Britain since 1950. The US reaction to New Zealand's port ban on nuclear-armed ships — the removal of the entire structure of US/New Zealand defence cooperation, including all intelligence indication of the acope of US reaction to this move — at least 100 times as important in US eyes.

That there would be economic reprisals seems highly likely. Neil Kinnock's protestations of sovereignty would ring hollow over an empty pound. US cooperation could be withdrawn, not only in the area if intelligence but in all geo-strategic areas of the globe.
For example, the British situation in the Falklands could become intensible. In precise transe the untenable. In precise terms, the US could refuse to continue to supply the highly enriched uranium upon which our nuclearpowered submarines (which Labour would maintain) depend.

The bottom-line of Labour fence policy is an issue that is THE Labour Party voted over-whelmingly last week to pursue its non-nuclear defence strategy in-side Nato and Mr Neil Kinnock

THE GUARDIAN, October 12, 1986

pledged that he would not allow allies in Washington or Europe to deflect him from that course. A Labour Government would take seriously opposition from other members of Nato and discuss policy with them. "That does not mean a change of course," said Mr

He was speaking on television shortly after the party conference voted by an enormous margin to from Britain and to follow a nonnuclear defence policy at home. It voted by equal margins against removing conventional American bases and intelligence facilities and withdrawal from Nato.

Asked if, as Prime Minister, he would treat "with the utmost gravity" opposition from Washing-ton, Mr Kinnock replied: "Yes, but without any deference." On defence, as on economic policy, his government would not be blown off ourse. "We will stick to it and not

He dismissed predictions of an immediate Nato crisis after the election of a Labour government and said he could not accept the suggestion that the United States would start withdrawing troops from Europe to increase pressure. "Such speculation is in the realms of political science fiction."

He said he would talk to the Americans and European governthat Britain would be non-nuclear. "We wouldn't have nuclear arms carried or stockpiled in Britain, he said.

There was overwhelming port in the defence debate for Mr Kinnock's strategy. Speeches from the constituency section showed deep hostility to Nato and the United States — more strongly expressed than perhaps the leadership would have liked - but union block votes ensured that commitment to the Atlantic Alliance was

Mr Denis Healey had earlier been quick to recast his interpretation of Labour's commitment to a non-nuclear Britain, saying that in the light of "bullying and black-mail" from Washington he would no longer say that it was conceivable that US nuclear weapons could stay in Britain. The affair therefore subsided quickly, but left some senior party figures keenly aware of their difficulties in presenting a policy which has required such manoeuvres between right and left inside the party.
Urging delegates to demand the removal of all American bases in Britain as a pre-requisite of Labour's non-nuclear defence poli-cy, Mr John Owen Jones (Cardiff Central) said in the debate that there were 113 such bases in the country along with 5,000 person-nel and a third of the US Air Force bases abroad. "How have we allowed our soversignty to be prostituted in this manner?" he asked.

A US President was not going to consult with a British Prime Minister on the use of those bases, he claimed, Mr Jones said a reverse American soil, would be unthinkable in the USA and regarded as a slur to the country's pride. "It is a relationship of master and servent," he added. "There is nothing special about servility."
Mr Bill Miller (Glasgow

Cathcart) said that, contrary to the Catheart said that, contrary to the Nato Treaty, US F-111s were used to kill and injure innocent men, women and children in Libya, while turning Britain into an agent of American foreign policy to the extent that it was now the "51st state of America". But this position would not be stopped by Labour's non-nuclear defence policy, he worned, because US bases would remain.

Anne 'Lemon' (Bristol West)

called for a campaign against Nato

Kinnock warns Nato allies

be pushing for it in the place it would have most effect - in Nato."

Mr Denzil Davies, the shadow

membership and the US military presence in Europe and demanded that the next Labour Government should remove all US bases -nuclear or otherwise - from Britain as the first step towards a Euorpean nuclear free zone.

While Nato was supposed to protect Europe from the dreaded Soviet machine, she asked: "Can you believe in this day and age the course over to invade Britain . . ?" She said Nato's function was purely to link British and European foreign policy with the USA.

Mr Bill Jordan, president of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, outraged some delegates by a strong defence of Nato. Moving another motion, which called for reaffirmation of Labour defence policy in supporting Nato, he said that 20 million people had died in armed conflicts over the world since 1945 . . . "But none of them morally right and in the countries protected by Nato to see it through."

because its strength has kept the peace — that is the truth whether Earlier in the week Mr Kinnock had laid claim to a moral majority for Labour's values and its policies in challenging Thatcherism, and confidently told his party that its vou like it or not.' Recalling the Hungarian upris-ing, Mr Jordan asked if the USSR was so peace-loving why were 9,000 nuclear wareheads pointing at Britain? "I have heard the cry duty now was to prepare for government. The Labour leader's speech was long, highly emotional, and an exhibition of confidence. The centrepiece of the speech disarm and trust," he added. "As a trade unionist I put this question to every trade unionist in the hall. Are you saying that the people who crushed trade unions in Poland . . . could offer us a strike-free deal? It is we who are savage years" of Mrs Thatcher's government, "I look at all that and I ask myself — just where do they get their idea of morality?" committed to peace and we should have a policy which makes military sense, a policy which is There was, he claimed, a great grouping that opposed the "malice and meanness" of Toryism. "There morally right and we have the will is in this country a moral majority. It is not a narrow, bigoted, self-righteous grouping. It is a broad-minded and compassionate grouping of people." It was sentimental, but realistic.

The social effects of Mrs Thatcher's policies had shown that she neither saw nor felt their consequences. "I suppose that the pious sermons and self-righteous homdefence secretary, said the party had a sensible defence policy which was one of the most radical ilies from Mrs Thatcher and Mr Tebbit are easier than facing the real problems or answering the put before the British people. "We real questions."

The attack on Thatcherism was linked with an eloquent section on international affairs in which he won his loudest and most sustained applause for an attack on American policy in Nicaragua. He said its people must wonder how a great country born in revolution could finance "the evil people who gua."

His attack on Washington was balanced by a reaffirmation of his commitment to Nato, but only with a non-nuclear policy. There were many non-nuclear American facilities in Britain which Labour would protect, and he could not believe the Americans would wish that co-operation to be put at risk. "It does domonstrate that we play, and will continue to play, our part in providing security for the American people and no US government is going to sacrificathat essential link in our security."

11-37% p.a. for UK non-residents.

Thanks to new tax regulations, Bristol & West, one of Britain's biggest building societies, can now offer U.K. non-residents a very desirable investment scheme. It's called the Bristol Overseas Investors Bond, the benefits of which are numerous.

Apart from knowing that your money is totally secure, you get an astonishing 11.37% interest on your investment.

But the good news doesn't stop there. You'll get paid that amount without deduction of U.K. tax.

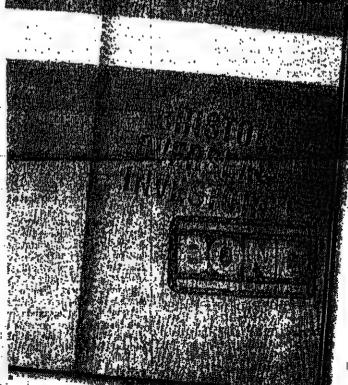

To open an account all you'll need is a minimum of £1,000.

Your interest is paid once a year and there's a three month withdrawal notice.

Should you at some stage wish to return to the U.K. you'll be extremely comforted to know that the Bond carries a mortgage priority for the sum of five times the investment balance.

HOW TO APPLY: Send off the coupon and we'll tell you more about how much you can make by sending your money back home. The only condition you need to qualify for this outstanding offer is to be an individual classed by the inland Revenue as not ordinarily resident in the U.K.

Bet you never thought of the UK as a tax shelter.

Please send i Overseas invest			Bristo
Name	· .	•	·
Addiess

Please send coupon in an envelope addressed to Bristol & West Building Society, Broad Quay, Bristol, BS99 7AX, England.

> Bristol & West Building society

iels exceed £2400 million. Authorised for Investment by Trustees. Membe Building Societies Association and Investors Protection Scheme: It rates and terms may vary, but are current at time of going to press

CHALLENGER Anatoly Karpov gave up his fight to regain the World Chess Championship on Monday in Leningrad, offering a draw that clinched the championship for Gary Kasparov.

After playing 95 games through three matches since September 1984, the two sie separated by only one point in their cumulative score. But after 10 weeks of a seesaw contest that included some brilliant plays, this match ended quietly: Kasparov was uffatage when Karpov made his 20nd move in the 23nd match game, olcking offetage when Karpey made his 19nd move in the 23rd match game, picking off a bishop in front of his opponent's king. When Kasperov returned, Karpov looked up and stretched out his hand to shake, offering the draw.

Karpov has the right to inelat on playing Game 24, and that game will be played later this week, but it will not affact the result.

ISRAELI jets attacked a Palestinian base near the Lebanese city of Tripoli, the furtheat north the Israelis have ever resched in what they described as a "routine and continuing policy of striking at guerrilia targets".

The target, a two-storey building 12 miles north-east of Tripoli, gave rise to speculation that it was intentionally directed at the Syrian-controlled area directed at the Syrian-controlled area where the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Fraction, thought to have carried out last month's bomb outages in Paris, has its main support.

THE Pope travelled to the small town of Ars during his visit to France to celebrate the 200th anniversary of St Jean-Marie Vianney, the 19th century curé of Ara. Addressing a gathering of nearly 6,000 priests and seminarists from all over the world the Pope expressed deep concern over the decline in religious practice. (Le Monde, page 11.) Monde, page 11.)

THE director-general of Unesco, Amadou M'Bow, is stepping down next year in hopes of ending a continuing crisis within the organisation.

The announcement by the Senegalese-born educator that he would not seek the description.

seek a third term as head of the Parisbased organisation was a surprise. Both the United States and Britain have withdrawn from Unesco over the past two years after accusing it of persistent anti-Western bias and stray-

SEVERE restrictions on ownership of French media outlets have been rushed through the French Cabinet in the hope of stemming an invasion of foreign capital, as the state broadcasting monopoly breaks up with the privatisation of TF1 and the opening up of a series of satellite and cable

No single communications firm will be allowed to own more than 25 per cent of a national TV station, or more than 30 per cent of the national press.

SOVIET and British scientists have algaed a protocol for joint space research, leading to the possible launching of an unmanned satellite in

The protocol was signed by the Soviet institute for Space Studies and delegates from the British National Space Centre during a visit to Moscow. It did not include immediate plans to send a Briton into space.

THE Russian translator for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in Mos-cow was arrested and briefly detained by Soviet plainciothes police last week, in what its correspondent, Mr Mike McIver, claimed was "an attempt ing to the Western press corps in Moscow," Mr McIver said. "They are telling us, just because Nick Daniloff went free, don't think the pressure is him requesting a meeting "somewhere quiet". Mr McIver invited him into the quiet". Mr Molver invited him into the CBC office in one of the compounds where foreigners live. As his Russian translator met the man they were surrounded by security police. CANADA has reasserted its claim of sovereignty over the Northwest Pas-sage, which the United States consid-

in a speech to the opening session of Parliament on behalf of the government by Governor-General Mrs Jeanne Sauve, the administration of Prime Minister Mr Brian Mulroney also toned down its push for a free-trade agree-ment with the United States.

Reagan plays down Iceland hopes

By Alex Brummer in Washington and Helia Pick in London

THE White House stressed this week that it wanted the Reykjavik summit at the weekend to be largely a private affair dominated hy. "fare to fare" meetings between President Beagan and the cover leader, Mr Mikhael Gorbachev on the lines of the fireside chats in Geneva just over a year ago.

Although it is dampening hopes for an arms-control deal in Iceland, the Reagan Administration left open the possibility of an accord on cool to suggestions from Moscow that a ban on underground nuclear testing could be agreed.

The President said that Iceland was not intended to be a signing ceremony, or a media event, although it has clearly become one.

While the emphasis would be on planning and preparation, said Mr Reagan, discussion would not be limited to arms proposals but would also encompass Soviet

Under him, the US was talking to the Kremlin with no illusions: "It was talking, not just about the prevention of war, but the spread of freedom; and America was now economically and militarily resurgent. It was our understanding that this meeting was to be brief, a limited number of people travel-ling. It was to be business, straightforward business, with very little social activity," the presidential spokesman told corre-spondents when asked about Mrs Gorbachev's decision to accompany her husband to Reykjavik. The two superpowers had sprung their most dramatic surprise in years on an unsuspecting world last week when they announced that President Reagan and Mr Gorbachev would try to engineer a breakthrough in arms control negotiations at a preparatory "working meeting" in Iceland over the weekend of October 11-12.

In a potentially historic switch the once-obdurate US President finally placed his authority behind his more conciliatory advisers, led by the Secretary of State, Mr George Shultz, and almost certain-ly alarmed the Defence Secretary,

Mr Caspar Weinberger.
America's allies in Europe are confident that the Reykjavik meeting will produce the green light for an agreement for radical reductions of cruise and Pershing II missiles on terms that will not prejudice their security - and will, very likely, reinforce the standing of Mrs Thatcher and Chancellor Kohl as they approach

In Reykjavik, the two leaders will confront these issues: I Arms control and security:

1. An agreement to destroy virtually all medium range cruise, Pershing II and SS20 medium range missiles, leaving the two superpowers with no more than zub-zub-zub- on each side. To and the for Mr Gorbachev's visit to the United States. But an agreement, although very close, still requires some significant concessions, especially from the Soviet side.

2. The negotiations on strategic nuclear arms and space weapons are no longer deadlocked. But it requires major decisions by both leaders before there can be any real progress towards their goal of an intermediate agreement to re-duce strategic nuclear arsenals by 30 per cent — the target on which they are already agreed. Key decisions to be taken in this context involve the duration of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty, and whether the development of space weapons should be allowed under the terms of the treaty.

3. A nuclear test-ban. Mr Gorbachev will seek a US commitment to negotiate a comprehensive test ban. But at best, Mr Reagan, in Iceland, will undertake to submit the still unratified Threshold test ban treaty, and the companion treaty on Peaceful Nuclear Explo-sions (concluded in 1974) for approval by the US Senate.

4. Chemical Weapons ban - the two leaders may try to narrow differences over verification, signalling their hope that a formal treaty will be negotiated next

5. Conventional arms: Mr Gorbachev is expected to sugest that the Vienna MBFR talks, deadlocked for 13 years, should be wound up with a symbolic withdrawal of a few thousand troops by the US and the Soviet Union, and that a force reduction in Europe should be negotiated by the 35-nation Stockholm forum, which has just successfully negotiated an agreement on military confidencelding measures.

II Regional Issues: President Reagan will seek to convince the Soviet leader that progress on arms control is not enough unless Third World issues can also be resolved. The US priority is for Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, and a halt to subversive activities in Central America and Angola.

III Human rights: President Reagan will seek a commitment from the Soviet Union to increase the flow of emigration rights activists like Professor

France appeals to Syria

By Campbell Page in Paris

FRANCE has asked Syria for information and support in curbing the activities of terrorist groups in Lebanon and the Middle East, the Prime Minister, Mr Jacques Chirac, said on Monday. The Prime Minister followed the Government's policy of not accus-ing Syria of involvement in recent terrorist activities in France, but of pointing the finger at the Armed Revolutionary Lebanese Faction (Farl), which is based in north Lebanon and is assumed to have Syrian links. In essence Mr Chirac's message, in a radio interview, implied that if Syria was not part of the problem, then it should be part of the solution.

The Prime Minister attacked

terrorists as "profoundly immoral". Only by refusing such policies and by standing firm could terrorism be brought under control, he said.

The pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad increased its pressure on France by distributing pleas from three weary French hostages in Lebanon and by insisting that France should secure the release of 17 ferrollets imprisoned in Variety terrorists imprisoned in Kuwait and transforms its Middle East

Islamic Jihad said the video cassette was being made public at the request of the hostages, who were eager that the French people and the French Government The Prime Minister attacked should not forget their plight and, negotiation or compromise with their 500 days of detention.

Orlov pledge to fight on

THE Soviet dissident, Dr Yuri Orlov (above), expelled from the Soviet Union after release from Siberia as part of the Daniloff-Zakharov deal, arrived to a tumultuous welcome in New York at the weekend. "I plan not only to continue my scientific research, but will go on defending human rights for the people of the Soviet Union," the 62-year-old physicist said through an interpreter. "I will apply my effort to gain release of those still in Soviet prisons."

Dr Orlov, his once-bright red hair now tinged with grey, said his health, a source of concern to friends in the West, has begun to improve lately. His wife, who had not travelled outside her improve lately. His wife, who had not travelled outside her homeland before, looked confused and dispirited as she arrived. Asked how she felt to be leaving the Soviet Union, she replied: "It's hard." Dr Orlov was stripped of his Soviet citizenship before

The dark years

By Helia Pick

harsh imprisonment and exile in an expert on particle acceleration. Siberia for his human rights ac-Siberia for his human rights activities, looks old far beyond his 62 years. The third man in the US-Soviet deal on Nicholas Daniloff will certainly need a period of recovery to decide whether to return to his profession or to devote himself full-time to the sor Andrei Sakharov residence and cause of fellow human rights activists still in Soviet gaols and labour

Dr Orlov, although not as well known in the West as Anatoly Shcharansky, was the founder and first chairman of the unofficial Helsinki Monitoring Group, which tried to report systematically to the outside world on how Moscow was handling the human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki Declaration.

Such work was virtually guaranteed to lead to confrontation with the authorities, and imprisonment. Perhaps the only surprise was that he was left at liberty for more than a year, until February, 1977. By then, Dr Orlov had already established himself as a human rights

They successed in accuracy monitoring groups in several parts of the Soviet Union, with the Moscow group itself succeeding in compiling 18 reports on Soviet violations. All reached the West afterwards secured a place at tried in May 1978 for anti-Soviet agitation.

During the early years, following the early years, following graduated with a physics degree in Dr Orlov's arrest, his plight made after the Soviet party's twentieth congress, where Krushchev denounced Stalin.

from the Moscow Olympics.

But Dr Orlov, who is not Juneyer attracted the huge came cue for proposing more democratic party practices, but he had misjudged the political climate: within days he lost his job, and was syncled from the party.

DR ORLOV, after nine years of obtained a doctorate and became human rights convictions, and soon sent him back on to a collision course with authority. Within six months he again lost his job, but retained his liberty. The Holsinki Declaration, with its human rights "basket", carried the promise of greater individual freedom and East-West contacts. But Dr Orlov and his friends, who by now included Dr Shcharansky and other Jewish refusniks, had few illusions that their efforts to monitor Soviet compliance would be tolerated for long.

They succeeded in setting up activist.

Born into a working-class family, he served in the Red Army during the second world war, and arrested in February, 1977, and headlines. Mrs Thatcher threat-His subsequent work at the ened to boycott the Moscow 1980 Clympic Games on his behalf, wall perimental Physics marked him before the Soviet intervention in perimental Physics marked him out for a distinguished career. But it came to an abrupt halt in 1956 call on its Nato allies to stay away

But Dr Orlov, who is not Jewish. never attracted the huge campaign Dr Orlov interpreted this as a to free him that developed grou expelled from the party.

Shcharansky has also used his considerable influence to make the republic of Armenia, where he case of Dr Orlov's freedom.

THE GUARDIAN, October 12, 1986

Daniloff deal swayed by CIA blunder

By Roy Gutman in Washington

THE US was eager to have opened it in his presence. It Nicholas Daniloff freed from a Soviet prison in part because of CIA mishandling of a contact the director, Mr William Casey. Soviet prison in part because of CIA mishandling of a contact the agency had with him last year, US officials said. The officials said that the Reagan Administration feared that the CIA had inadvertently implicated the American reporter in a way that could have caused him serious trouble under prolonged questioning by the Soviet Union and could have embarrassed the Administration and extended the confrontation. The contact involved a communication that the US News and World Report correspondent delivered from a Soviet itizen to the US embassy in

The incident that occurred near the beginning of 1985 involved a self-styled priest who sought out Mr Daniloff with purported information about Soviet youth organisations. A few days after the priest, who called himself Father Roman, had promised to drop off a packet of material on religious subjects, Mr Daniloff found an envelope left for him outside his flat and addressed to the US

Sources close to Mr Daniloff said that, uncertain what to do with the that, uncertain what to do with the package, he finally brought it to the embassy, where an official 1984"

In one letter was a reference and other military subjects. The letter addressed to Mr Casey was handed over to the CIA chief of station, and he in turn gave it to a CIA subordinate in the embassy, the sources said.

One embassy official asked Mr Daniloff how to get in touch with Father Roman, and he provided

In an unusual move, which one senior US official in Washington termed "very amateurish," the CIA subordinate then telephoned Father Roman and on the open line said, "I'm a friend of Nicolae" and acknowledged receiving the packet. He also sent Father Roman a note in which he used words to the effect he had received "your package from your journalist quoted him as saying that the episode was thoroughly discussed during his interrogation. It was also mentioned in the indictment tember 7. Mr Daniloff's wife, Ruth told reporters in Moscow that Reagan angry at video

By Diana Page in Washington

appeal from hostages

PRESIDENT REAGAN snapped in letter, telephone and videotape, frustration last week at questions they've shown no inclination to raised by a videotape from Ameritalk directly with us," the State can hostages in Lebanon who Department spokesman, Mr asked that their plight receive the same government efforts as that of Charles Redman said.
We're willing to talk with anythe journalist, Nicolas Daniloff. one or any group about the return and safety of the hostages, but "We don't know who is holding them," Mr Reagan said with visible anger. The President was heading for his helicopter when he suddenly turned and marched back to give reporters his answer. "There's not a day we don't try to get our hostages back," he said. Mr Reagan said that he did not believe that the journalist, Terry Anderson, or his fellow captive. David Jacobsen, had made the videotape sent to news Falklands, after seeing the grave organisations of their own free will. The two hostages, who are believed to be held in Lebanon, identified, and all the bereaved complained on tape that their parents in Argentina agree, they Dovernment had negotiated for Mr Daniloff's release from the Soviet Union while refusing to do anything to free them.

television here and prompted a new outcry by their relatives. Mr Anderson's sister, Peggy Say, told journalists that she thought her borther's declarations were his own, not prompted by his kidnappers.

peared in Argentina — his daughter is secretary — has been all colours, given to the boreaved information about Falklands war victims.

He plans to spend a week in Britain talking to various organisations and meeting Mr Description. has been repeatedly shown on peared in Argentina — his television here and prompted a daughter is secretary — has been recognised government such as the Soviet Union, there are no clear channels through which to deal with "shadowy, faceless terrorist organisations".

His daughter, Maria, a practising lawyer, told reporters that "her mother wished Miguel to be buried in the Falklands". She said her

SENIOR intelligence officers are investigating India's most embarrassing security lapse since Mrs Indira Gandhi was assassinated by Only then did the security men her own bodyguard two years ago

Her son and successor as Prime Minister, Mr Rajiv Gandhi, sur-vived a bizarre attempt on his life atter a memorial service at the cremation site of an earlier martyr. Mahatma Gandhi, whose 117th birthday was being celebrated as a national holiday.

A drastic review was ordered of VIP security. Several highranking officers have already been suspended.

Mr Raiiv Garati.

A memorial service at the commandos of Mr Gandhi's personal bodyguard joined armed police in bringing out the assailant.

The gunman had been hiding in the creeper-covered arch for several days waiting for the Prime Miniadays was murdered by her Sikh bodyguard joined armed police cratic.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

A drastic review was ordered of the area but missed his hiding place.

The manifestation of Mr Gandhi's personal armed police in bringing out the assailant.

The gunman had been hiding in the creeper-covered arch for several days waiting for the Prime Miniadays was murdered by her Sikh bodyguard joined armed police in bringing out the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

A drastic review was ordered of the creeper-covered arch for several days waiting for the Prime Miniadays was murdered by her Sikh bodyguard joined armed police in bringing out the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit appeared to want revenge for the assailant.

Police said Karamjit app been suspended. Mr Rajiv Gandhi passed barely Minister and his wife, Sonia, were plainclothes security men and three bystanders were slightly wounded in the crossfire.

The assailant surrendered with-out a struggle. Mr Gandhi has been top of the Sikh extremists' hit list since the pogrom in which 3,000 Sikhs were butchered after Mrs Indira Gandhi's assassination The Sikhs blame him for not ntervening sooner.

Polico sources said that the gunman had no known connection with any terrorist group. He was Karamjit Singh, 26, a Sikh from Sangrur in the Punjab. He and at first given Hindu name.

The man appeared to be acting alone and to have no plans to

The first shot was heard at about 7.15am while Mr and Mrs Gandhi were already paying homage at the Mahatma's black marble memorial. President Singh joined the Prime Minister about five minutes later, and the ceremony continued.

A second shot was heard after 30 minutes amid chanting by Hindu priests. The police dismissed both shots as scooters backfiring. The service ended. The President left and Mr Gandhi began to follow him. Both of them passed within 10 yards of a concrete srch, covered in thick vines. The gunman was hidden amid the vines on the roof. He waited until Mr Gandhi was about 30 yards

Father and daughter showed visible emotion when the blue and white Argentinian flag was re-moved before the coffin was gently lowered into the ground by four soldiers from the King's Regiment,

The 12-man firing party, com-prising members of the Kings' and the RAF, fired three volleys over the grave while the Last Post and Reveille were sounded by a bugler.

Later, left alone in their soli-tude, Mr Gimenez and Maria put flowers upon many of the 233

graves, picking out in particular some of the 122 on which are written, on a plain, white wooden cross, the words, "An Argentine soldier known unto God."

who wore black armbands.

Argentinians attend Falklands burial

By a correspondent

MR Isias Gimenez, father of an emotional occasion, which affected me profoundly," said Mr Gimenez. Argentinian pilot buried in the Falklands, said in Darwin, in the turned to their homeland".

we're not going to give terrorist demands," he said.

Mr Gimenez, who is president of the National Commission of Par-The tape showing the hostages ents and Relatives for the Disap-as been repeatedly shown on peared in Argentina — his pera.

The Administration position is that, while the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash, while the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash, while the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash, while the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash, while the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash, while the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash and meeting Mr Des rated the graveside at Darwin.

Later, left alone in their sections and meeting and meeting with the person of the Brittash and meeting and the person of the Brittash and meeting and meeting with the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash and meeting with the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash and meeting with the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash and meeting with the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash and meeting with the US can talk to a specific person of the Brittash and the US c organisations".

The State Department announced that contacts through third parties are continuing, although so far they have led nowhere.

"Although the kidnappers have demonstrated that they can communicate with news agencies by an announced that they can communicate with news agencies by in the Falklands". She said her falklands". She said her falklands". She said her falklands the falklands in the Falklands the falklands in the Falklands the falklands in th

Gandhi's narrow escape

Only then did the security men go into action, firing in rapid succession at the shelter and calling on the gunman to put up his hands and come out. "Black cat" commandos of Mr Gandhi's person-

10 yards below the arch where the assailant was hiding, but the man did not open fire until the Prime in rural India, but are hardly the in rural India, but are hardly the ty organisations assigned to protect the Prime Minister. The happiest man in Delhi was no doubt Mr R. T. Nagrani, who was dismissed last week as chief of the "black cat" National Security

The would-be assassin used hiding in his employer's house, what is described as a "country- After returning home, he slipped weapon of a professional hit man, attempt on Mr Gandhi's life Sikh The pistol would nonetheless extremists opened fire on the about 30 yards away.

No one in the Prime Minister's have been lethal if fired at shorter Punjab police chief, Mr Julio Ribeiro, narrowly missing him but range. Ribeiro, narrowly n Indian observers blamed the wounding his wife.

FILL IN THE COUPON. THEN FILL IN CHEQUES FROM A DEPOSIT ACCOUNT THAT PAYS OVER

If you have sterling funds to invest, find out about the Sterling Money Account managed by offshore bankers. Tyndall & Co (Isle of Man) Ltd.

You earn high interest (the result of Tyndall Group's muscle in the money market) and enjoy the convenience of a cheque book for all normal banking services, including instant access to your funds, and payment of large bills (minimum cheque £250). The account can also be used for standing orders.

Investment is in UK banks, local authorities and building societies. Interest is credited four times a year, with the interest itself earning interest to give you an even higher return (currently 9.71%). Post the coupon for details.

To: Tyndall & Co. (Isle of Man) Ltd, Dept PO Box 62, Tyndall House, Kensington Rd, Douglas, Isle of Man, U.K. Tel: (0624) 29201. Telex: 628732. Please send me details of Tyndall Money Accounts. Sterling ☐ US Dollar ☐

Tyndall & Co. (Isle of Man) Ltd

By Alex Brummer in Washington and David Beresford in Johannesburg

IN A sharp repudiation of Presi- chairman of the Foreign Relations will put into place the most far-reaching and punitive measures against Pretoria imposed by any Western government. The vestice was crushed in the Democratic-controlled House, earlier in the controlled House earlier in the

It is the first time in almost six years of Mr Reagan's presidency that Congress has overturned a veto on a critical foreign policy bill. The override represents a severe setback for Mr Reagan's view that the executive alone should frame foreign policy.

After the vote, the President said he deeply regretted that Congress had seen fit to override his veto. "Punitive sanctions, I believe, are not the best course of action. They hurt the very people they are intended to help," Mr Reagan said in a White House statement. He expressed the hope that the sanctions would not lead to more violence and more represdent Reagan's policy towards South Africa, the Republican-controlled Senate last week overrode the President's veto of the Congressional Sanctions Bill.

The overwhelming 78 to 21 vote for the rejection of Mr Reagan's veto means that the United States will put into place the most fardoing better than the President."

In the midst of the debate, Pik Botha, the South African Foreign Minister, telephoned Senator Jesse Helms, a rightwinger who de-scribes himself as an old friend, and warned that Pretoria would retaliate against US sanctions by cutting off grain purchases from

Senator Helms immediately brought several conservative senators from farming states to the telephone. Mr Botha told Senator Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska and Senator Charles Grassley of Iowa: "The moment that you override President Reagan's veto, South Africa will ban US grain exports."

Mr Botha's action was, not sur-prisingly, condemned as an unjust interference in America's domestic political affairs. The main Republican proponent of the Sanctions Bill, Senator Lugar, said Mr Botha's phone call was despicable, adding: "I cannot imagine that a Senator would be influenced by Meanwhile, rightwing senators Senator would be influenced by attacked Senator Richard Lugar, bribery and intimidation . . . It's an

EBC House

FAMILIARITY WILL BREED CONTENT

International investment opportunities for the private individual have never

Financial marketplaces have her ome ever more complex as the possibilities

If would be beyond the resources of any one person to be tamiliar with them all, and beyond all but a few institutions as well.

LBC Trust Company (Jersey) Limited is one of these tew.

Through a discretionary Portfolio Management Service, we can open the cloops fully to international investment opportunity for high net worth individuals with an investment potential of £100,000 or more.

affront to the decency of the American people." It is considered highly unusual for a foreign government to seek directly to change the votes of Senators on

Mr Botha, however, refused to apologise. He said in a statement issued in Washington: 'I informed the senators that if the Senate should reverse President Reagan's veto and legalise the ban on imports of South African agricultural produce in terms proposed by the US Congress, then South Africa would purchase no grain from the United States."

In Johannesburg, he expressed bewilderment at accusations by US senators that he was using "bribery" and "bullying" tactics. The minister said he had merely ineffective process towards its economic isolation. The US was South Africa's are under no illusions that replacing the lost trade will be easy. Mr pointed out the inevitable conseuences of sanctions

The American Sanctions Bill While most of this has been described as symbolic it will deprive Pretoria of valuable dollar foreign exchange at a time when it is struggling to meet its debt repayments.

be banned from landing in the US.

Counting the cost

WHITE South Africa reacted to community. The response of the the United States Senate's decision Foreign Minister, Mr "Pik" Botha, to impose sanctions with an enger and dismay, but also with an uneasy sense that a point of no return has been passed in what sanctions, he has so far been a slow and biggest trade partner last year, according to figures collated by the South African Foreign Trade Organisation, and business leaders Pat Corbin, president of the Johan-nesburg Chamber of Commerce, urged exporters to give the highest priority to the search for new

Although less than half of South Africa's exports to the US — they totalled 3 billion rand last year would be affected by the sanctions package, losses would still run to nundreds of millions of rands a year, Mr Corbin said. The contral mportance of the US to the South African economy is illustrated by Senate has taken a moral decision. another figure: it is the third It is not anti-South African rese-

By Patrick Laurence in Johannesburg

While deploring the "emotional wave" in the US which led to sanctions, he urged South Africans not to be discouraged, but to stand firm and search for alternative markets. Meanwhile the Chamber of Mines, which represents the powerful and conservative mining companies, warned that tightlyapplied sanctions would cause in-creased poverty, racial tension and polarisation, and would lead eventually to destabilisation of the subcontinent and "set back progress towards full democracy for years."

Archbishop Desmond Tutu, the leader of the Anglican Church of South Africa, who played a critical role in coordinating the sanctions campaign, offered whites an olive branch of sorts. "The sanctions are Government takes the action we have all been advocating, then there will be no sanctions. The biggest investor.

Meanwhile, Pretoria attempted to stiffen the morale of the white justice."

tion, it is anti-injustice, anti-apartheid. It is for freedom and justice."

Secret SA security system

By David Beresford

Council — and runs parallel to the country's open system of govern-

Most of the committees are headed by members of the security forces, and their activities are dominated by joint intelligence sub-committees. They are believed to have been crucial to the conduct of the present state of emergency.

The system, known as the National Security Management System, has been operating for seven years, It was established as

DETAILS have emerged in South Africa of an extraordinary "hidden" system of government effectively controlled by the security forces.

The system is made up of over 500 committees — under the supreme control of the State Security Council — and runs parallel to the system have been involved in "black propaganda" operations— the distribution of fake pamphlets intended to discredit anti-apart heid organisations.

The committees have no executive powers, but are obviously highly influential — having a line of appeal to the powerful State Security Council in the event of its advice being rejected by the "open" government department or local authority which it is shadowing.

The creation of the Nationa seven years. It was established as part of an attempt to clean up rivalry between government departments—notably the intelligence services—which led to chaos in the security field during the premiership of Mr John Vorster.

The creation of the National Security Management System was announced in Parliament in 1979. But the astonishing scope of the network—its modus operated and the extent of its influences on the Government—is revealed for the first time in a report published by a Johannesburg newspaper, the Weekly Mail. THE GUARDIAN, October 12, 1986

COMMONWEALTH parliamentarians last week wound up their 32nd meeting, reassured that the Commonwealth will survive differences with Britain on sanctions against South Africa, (writes Hella Pick). Even though there was no attempt by the British Prime Minister or the Foreign Secretary to deny the wide gulf, speeches delivered during the week-long meeting of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association in London suggested an effort on all sides "did not merely survive that trial con suggested an effort on all sides to find greater common ground in the search for fundamental change in South Africa.

During the mini-summit in August, there was widespread concern that the Commonwealth might break up over the sanctions issue. But last week the Secretary
"did not merely survive that trial (of credibility) but emerged from the mini-summit with at least some new strengths." He added: "It to British Government's abhorment with the British Government's and that its wish to see it "abolished quickly and completely" was as strong as everybody else's.

But Britain could not accept that to underline that the British Government's abhorment with the British Government's as a "satural properties of a partheid as a strong a partheid as a "satural properties of a partheid as a "satural properties of a partheid as a strong a partheid as a "satural propert nunciation of apartheid as a "saa row with Britain.

ic course of action. The Common wealth was not an executive body, Mrs Thatcher had argued at the state opening of the conference. Its very strength, she asserted, stemmed from the fact that its common ideals, and its committee ment to democracy, allowed free debate with diversity of policies.

The impotence of the legatees of Empire

ONCE upon a time there was the British Empire, on which the sun never set. I shall return later to never set. I shall return later to this never-settingness. Then there was the British Commonwealth, which was at first made up of dominions, and which managed for many years to include not only Australia, Canada, and so on, but very different states like southern Ireland and South Africa. But there were very few members. Then there were more. The resulting action were more than the British Commonwealth but simply

There are 49 sovereign states and 19 associate members. Of the 49, 25 happen to be republics (though the Queen still remains head of the Commonwealth), and 22 happen to have a population less than that of Greater Manchester. This Commonwealth has been meeting, at its parliamentary con-

Some 1,800 delegates have been

was asked how things were going,
"Well, one dose one's best in an imperfect world".

After lunch on Tuesday came SirGeoffrey Howe, the Foreign Secreif the form of notes, was handed round beforehand. "Introductory it courtesies," said his first note, and he galantly mentioned relief at the British press to do it for them.

Then the Hon Joseph Shikuku be got on to his Sunday school days, as well the Commonwealth, because it had much to gain from being in it be Commonwealth, because it had much to gain from being in it be Hillish familier. The his got on to his Sunday school days, be recalling a Silver Jubilee card of the Hilling and their hearts. This somehow did not eatch the spirit of the Hilling hample. Then till we have school and the commonwealth of the body, and in front, where should be proud to give their exist. This somehow did not eatch the spirit of the body, and in front, where should be provided to give their minds, and their hearts. This somehow did not eatch the spirit of the body, and in front, where should be provided and school and the beautiful the stomach. Got the body, and in front, where should are not or read his service with the body, and in front, where should are the response of the delegates here.

But, he whole Commonwealth the beat add the press about 200 pool be being killed.

Well, I thought quite a lot had been add in the press about 200 people being killed.

Well, I thought quite a lot had been add in the press about 200 people being killed.

Well, I thought quite a lot had been add in the press about 200 people being killed.

Well, I thought quite a lot had been add be and allow the till.

Now real Heads of State

Terry Coleman at the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference

made to them by the Queen, the Lord Chancellor, Mrs Thatcher, the Speaker, and the Foreign Secretary. The delegates have also been given dinner by the Lord Mayor of London, and taken, at the carrenge of LMC, on trips to green. expanse of HMG, on trips to see Blenheim, Chartwell, Knole, Greenwich, and the musical, 42nd Street. The Commonwealth, so constituted, spent much of two whole days debating itself. The motion was, The Commonwealth:

I must make it clear what this conference was not. It was not a Commonwealth Conference prop-er, with Heads of State in full panoply, threatening each other. It was the 32nd conference of Commonwealth parliamentarians, monwealth parliamentarians, MPs, and adjuncts. All panoply was not of course dispensed with.
Parliament Square was decked with many-coloured flags.
Before getting round to deciding who cared, the Commonwealth debated apartheid. The consensus seemed to be that there was going to be a bloodbath, though it might take some time. An MP from Zimbabwe remarked that there Zimbabwe remarked that there would be prosperity in South Africa after apartheid, which seemed optimistic, but also, in the next breath, that we, the United Kingdom, should not force the South Africans (by which he did not mean the present Covernment) "to mean the present Government) "to look for other friends".

or all the other countries must, but he did not believe it would come to that. Tripided and Talana Much laughter. that Trinidad and Tobago remarked that the so-called common bond which bound the Common wealth together was Britain's previous colonial domination.

Tanzania explained that the privileges of South African whites would go up in flames in the not too distant future. Its delegate said the struggle had now been thrust into the hands of boys of nine, 12, and 13 years, and that from these people, in 10 years' time, would come the new leaders, thus bred in Britain was not, on the whole, held in high esteem. Baroness Young, Minister of State at the Foreign Office, who listened to the debate, was heard to say, when she called the Commonwealth a force for good, and then tinished. There was the lightest of applause.

This speech, though in large part about South Africa, opened the two sessions devoted to "Who cares?" It became obvious that the delegates thought Britain didn't. The Hon. Robert S. Hall, Minister Turks and Caicos Islands, was certain, to be frank, that Britain didn't care about the islands. Nor, he said, did the press. They had a hurricane, and nobody telephoned. But when their constitution was suspended, there were all sorts of calls. The chief minister was arrested, and again there were all sorts of calls. Nobody in the hall laughed. Mr Hall did not mention that the former chief minister who was arrested is now in a Florida gaol for drug smuggling.

It was then that Mr Hall told his old chestnut about never-setting suns and got the conference applauding and banging on its tables. There was an Englishman and an Indian, he said, and the Englishman was boasting that the nean the present Covernment) "to sun really never did set on the book for other friends".

An Indian MP said either British Empire. At which the Indian replied, "No, because God Indian replied, "No, because Code Indian Replied," "No, because Code Indian Replied Indian Rep

And so it went on, on both days. And so it went on. Papua-New Guinea urged the Commonwealth to act now. A woman doctor from the city state of Singapore said it would be presumptuous to offer words of wisdom, but called for a more equitable world order. A message was conveyed from Nelson Mandela

There was throughout much irritation that the London newspapers were reporting nothing. Six column inches had been spotted in one paper, but that was all it was hard luck that the conference coincided with the Labour Party's; one delegate complained that Labour's new red rose symbol was

ROYAL SQUARE, ST. HELIER, JERSEY

FUNDS WITH NO INITIAL CHARGES

Ermitage is a Jersey based fund management group offering a wide range of services, including

		. Others little for
ı	a variety of international unit trusts	and funds with NO IN	TIAL CHARGES DES	and loads. Bid	offer spreads
	A STATE OF THE STA	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1	Hermon, on the	regular eligi
ij.	offshore trustee and nominee service	Con al allaboration differ		aldination the stays. A	ribandhila ner Aine
	OHRUOLE Address dud dougues service			in sint or or
: 1	 formation and administration of Jerr 	sey companies,	And the second	The state of the s
4	management and administration of	investment portfolior.	Annual Section 1	A 4 1 1 1 1	LANGE TALL THE STREET was the same and the	it is a mark the real farmer		de la company de	an i com a grand as i den co de la Companya de la
			THE PARTY OF THE P	75.65	e segunda i engan pers Segunda i engan pers
1	Please send me further details of the Ex	TITLINGS PRIVICES		was held on the	r in minder
	Linguist the first an employed	inged the name	±175	The second
ď	Name	THE REPORT OF	2.7.2.4	MAN MIN .	tille, temperatur
1	William To world will work with the	In the Control of	od distribution	A Commission	上的
11	Address	A Section of		1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	A 113 A 11
1	Andreas and the second	Trans Theory			公城 計學 國內
ir	A THE PARTY AND			411
				A Marian	The same of
	E SHOULD ENTE			7 (14.14)
'n,	THE PERSON NAMED IN
	The state of the s		i, //:	MANAGE AND	ne Hay
ŀ	and a ser of the art of the ground of the				d to the
ŀ	A STATE OF THE STA				对的 T. 内部

LBC frust Company Gersey Limited is a wholly owned subsidiary of EBC Amro Bank Limited, the London based merchant banking arm of Amro Bank.

EBC Amro has itself made a formidable reputation for successful foreign exchange dealing, and through Amro Bank, the Company has access to the resources and representation of a major international linancial organisation.

This helps give the Portfolio Management Service depth in experience, expertise and information, necessary in today's volatile, fast moving financial Our success is based upon total familiarity with the major financial centres. Perhaps yours should be based on familiarity with us. EBC Trust Company (Jersey) Limited Phrase contact us at EBC House, 1-3 Scale Street, Si Heller, Jersey, Chánnél Islands, Telephone 1934 36331, Teles: 419 2089, Fax: 0534 39493

Arms control and a sunken Soviet sub

ONE THOUSAND miles off New York a Soviet nuclear submarine comes to the surface crippled by fire. Gorbachev informs Kremlin. Doubtless they knew of the Reagan. Reagan replies regretting the deaths of three of the crew, adding "and if there's anything we can do to help...." The exchange is as weird as any to have taken place between the two men. For the submarine, now sunk, carried 16 nuclear missiles targeted, presumably, on places like Washington and the White House war bunker in Virginia. In use it would have killed not three people but a million times as many. If minds needed to be concentrated on this weekend's pre/interim/mini summit this is the very contingency to do so. To those in the military who sit around the clock tracing the other side's submarines as warheads apiece. If the Nato disposition submarine's whereabouts many hours before that. The deadly vigilance is part of a day's work. For everyone else it is another reminder of the shortness of the fuse between life and devastation. It also illustrates, and therein lies the weirdness, the vast disproportion between the exchange of civil messages and the barbarity of what those messages are really about.

Precisely how many intermediate-range missiles the Soviets have trained on Western Europe is occasionally but not seriously disputed. A reliable Western tally has 336, most of them "mirved," that is with three they carry their lethal cargoes round the oceans the incident may say nothing new. were to be completed there would be 572 single-warhead missiles pointing the other way. A reduction of these grotesque totals is now in prospect, either in Reykjavik or at a subsequent plenary summit. If the prospect vanishes through the endeavours of arms lobbyists the consequences will be serious. For in arms control it can be worse to have tried and failed than never to have tried at

Supposing some reduction is achieved. where does that leave the two alliances? The answer is both diplomatic and military. Diplomatically there will have been a pronounced shift, which probably began at the recent Stockholm conference on accurity in Europe. An agreement under the belt is a powerful incentive not only to go for more agreements but to downgrade the rhetorical competition which is itself half the cause of the tension of recent years. Militarily, though, the situation reverts closer, but not entirely, to what it was before the Soviets began to install SS-20s and Nato responded with its twin-track policy of 1979. It still needs an imaginative leap to see the strategic totals diminished and — on Gorbachev's programme — eliminated by 1999. The Soviets have honoured their recent word to report immediately a serious nuclear accident. That the accident was a military one makes the change of attitude more impressive. After two bad but subcritical accidents in a year the wiseacres who have engaged in such menacing competition to attain the more powerful nuclear arsenal may be brought to recognise both the futility of their quest and the hostility which their blase attitude towards it has aroused world-wide.

Report, page 15

The new enemy below

WITH the Russian Yankee nuclear missile silo. In turn, the silo is when at sea, to make as little and a massive release of radioactors. Although the basic facts unable to move implies that the sub was ters. Although the basic facts ters. Although the basic facts about this old class of strategic explosion also damaged the reactor nuclear submarines are well-known, nobody knows what will happen when the stricken vessel settles in the North Atlantic deep. This is the first strategically armed sub to go to the bottom, and all earlier but lesser nuclear accidents of this kind are shrouded in technical secrecy. On board the Russian sub are 16 nuclear missiles, probably of the old liquid propellant SSN-6 type, each with a one megaton warhead. It is believed, but not confirmed, that the explosion which killed three of the crew outright and blow a hole in the sub's side, was caused by an accidental firing of missile propellant. The hole is said to be aft of the sail — the modern sub's great single fin — which means that it was close to or in the steam system. Other missiles may also have been damaged.

Yankee class submarines, of which 34 were built and 23 are still in service, are the oldest of Russia's strategic fleet and under the terms of existing Salt agreements are being phased out. Ten have already been converted into a hunter killer role. But Russia's large submarines, like her nuclear ice breakers, each have two nuclear reactors on board, not one as is common practice in the West. Each of the Russian reactors is about 300 megawatts (thermal) and delivers about 30,000 shaft horse power. Like all other subma-surface to enter the marine food reactors almost shut down and chain and drift with moving surusing only natural circulation of face water. Like Chernobyl this coolant. It is a requirement that they should be self-cooling when contamination problem. contamination problem.

The nuclear missiles, whatever they are shut down. Yet the two reactors, now on the bottom, even if fully shut down and undamaged, will continue to deliver a great deal of best for many and undamaged, although in time — quickly if they are damaged — their contents of reactors, now on the bottom, even deal of heat for many years. If plutonium and other nuclear incooling water continues to circu-late, they will produce only a tually be dispersed in the ocean late, they will produce only a rising column of warm and very slightly radioactive water. This sediments or carried, with the may or may not break through the temperature barrier known as the nuclear explosion are close to zero and no salvage was attempted.

The loss of the strategic Russian ocean thermocline and reach the surface. In this particular case the ously damaged, even this cannot sub is the first occasion on which a surface water is likely to be the be a certainty. Gulf Stream heading our way. But, on the seabed, reactor

Anthony Tucker on a possible deep-sea threat

a training mission and was parth recovered from a deep ocean trench in a secret US exercise that was disguised as scientific research. In a more serious accident, the US nuclear sub Scorpion went down in May 1988 450 miles south west of the Azores after the accidental explosion on board of a non-nuclear torpedo.

The Russians have suffered similar accidents. In April 1970 a November class submarine sank after a reactor accident 170 miles south west of Land's End. This sub was believed to be carrying nucwarm water plume from the reac- lear tipped torpedoes but was tor, to the surface. The chances of a closely guarded by a Russian ship complete nuclear missile silo has rine reactors, they are extremely compact, are fuelled by highly enriched uranium and are very vulnerable to core melt-down if such as a constant of the reactors could go into the accidental sequence which sub Thresher went down while on surreptitious recovery. There have been nuclear- been lost. The implications are

The Senate gives a lead on sanctions

But no. Mr Reagan finally got the Republican Senate wrong. He also got the mood of the American people wrong, wholly misjuding the depth of moral hostility towards South Africa and all its current works (as seen, night by night, on nation-wide television). And just in case there was Caught Out

Col. Gadhafi remains in power, and the United States remains deeply frustrated by his regime. Still, it is clear that the U.S. government, very sensitive line. The posturings, threats and signals through the media that are so integral a part of policy-making were conveyed in this instance with a casual disregard of the bounds being passed and of the embarrassment and damage to credibility sure to come in the event of disclosure. For the government did not simply practice deception by, for instance, ordering fleet movements that it figured the press would find out about and publish, and thereby presumably panicking Col. Gadhaft — this n the example of justifiable "psy-war" cited by George Shultz. The government actually conveyed to reporters things it know to be false — that opposition to Col. Gadhafi was stirring, that an American attack was on the way. This was "disinformation," and it deserves to be condemned. The government is not meant to be in the business of organized lying to the public.

difficult to believe that the President would lose. So many times, over the last six years, the House and then the Senate have seemed ready to humiliate the Great Communicator. And so many times, at the brink, their resolve has crumbled as the full weight of charisma, threat, and bribery has come to bear. government could top the recent spectacle of a white Dutch Reform minister holding a memorial service for hundreds of dead black miners in Afrikaans. But Mr Botha's sjambok diplomacy effortlessly leaves such minor tactlessness behind. America has voted for sanctions. The President is finally stranded. Cosmetic offerings of the kind that staved off real measures last year are no longer enough. Be clear about the Senate's package, with its bans on coal and agricultural imports as well as investment and air links. It will not bring Pretoria to its knees. But it is the toughest and most effective array of sanctions taken anywhere against South Africa Still, it is clear that the U.S. government, while operating on terrain not altogether new to official and press actors, crossed over anything yet fully imposed by the Common anything yet fully imposed wealth. The nation with the government most implacably opposed to sanctions has, ironically, gone further than any of its partners — and it has moved because publ indignation has propelled its legislature to

> A number of predictable — but important — things will begin to happen next. One is that Mr Roagan himself will swiftly move to embrace the Capitol Hill initiative. The tide has washed over him. If he wishes to retain the authority of leadership, he must bow before the wave of revulsion for apartheid and seek to ride it from the crest. That in turn will see Europe's foot-dragging reluc-tance broken. West Germany, with Reagan's resistance ended, won't linger for Reagan's resistance ended, won't linger for long as the strongest nation which declines to act against South Africa. There will be a judicious buckling. And Mrs Thatcher, the leader who has, most volubly, borne the brunt of the argument, the Prime Minister who has poured scorn on sanctions (and her own Foreign Minister) most prolifically? She must either fall glumly into line or risk the now patent peril of being the one voice of any strength anywhere who declines to take a stand against the apartheid system. If that happens then the Commonwealth will indeed fragment: but why on earth should our Prime Minister now think her or real problems. South Africa can, and will, hit back. Pik Botha's threat to stop American grain doliveries, not only to South Africa but to all its black neighbours who rely extensively on the South African transport system, confirms the worst fears of those who, like us, have consistently deplored the sloppy thinking behind most calls for general sanctions. Pretoria's black neighbours are least able to apply such measures and most likely to be hit by retaliation, which is why we suggested exempting the whole of Africa, the world's economically weakost continent.

A GOOD INFLUENCE I'VE HAD ON YOU"

It has been authoritatively estimated that it would cost £2 billion to free the "frontline states" of their current dependence on SA Railways for the transport of two-thirds of their trade. The British and West Germany governments could at least spare a few railway engineers and some money towards restoring and maintaining the alternative routes damaged by South African-supported rebels. In Washington there were hints of substantial aid that might have been used in this way. The fact that the veto has been overruled should not entail the shall ment of measures to reduce the dependent of South Africa's neighbours. Those for and those against punitive sanctions can surely agree on the need to free the frontline states of their crippling and dangerous dependence on Pretoria. Those who argue that sanctions will hurt the Africans most are not obliged to sit back and let it happen as sanctions are imposed. The West has begun, finally, to move on one front. The other front, of poverty and starvation and emergency help, follows naturally.

> letters to the Editor are welcome ut not all can be ackno Dut not all can be acknowledged. We don't like cutting them but sometimes this is necessary to get tham in the page — shart latter stand a batter chance: Send them to The Guardian Weekly, PO Box 19, Cheadla, Chashire SKS 1DD

Le Monde

Pope's warning to French

By Henri Tincq and Claude Regent

and France, what have you made of the heritage of your glorious martyrs?" At the very place where "isn't there a real danger of their faith there are a danger of their said the said that the said the said that there are a danger of their said that the sa in the year 177 the first Christians faith becoming trapped in an were persecuted, the Pope took up, environment that is tending to were nersecuted, the Pope took up, as if echoing it, the question, by now celebrated, he asked at Le Bourget in 1980: "France, what have you made of your baptismal Promises?"

His diagnosis of France's moral and religious situation is even regard it exclusively as an individ-more shattering than the one he delivered on his visit to Paris six prevailing indifference to the Gosyears ago. "Currents of thought, lifestyles and sometimes even laws contrary to the true meaning of man and God constitute a denial of the Christian faith in the lives of sure which are sought at any price people, families and society." The reference to abortion in particular Resorting to this is clear here.

The Pope conceded that unlike

Minister who accompanied the Prime Minister, of a measure which will no doubt be disliked by the 600,000 Moroccan immigrants in France as by Algerian and LYONS — "Christians of Lyons the first martyrs, today's Christians of Lyons and France, what have you made the first martyrs, today's Christians of Lyons the first martyrs, today's Christians of Lyons and France, what have you made yourselves?"

Right from the moment he en-

> Pope John-Paul II arrived In Lyons on Saturday, October 3, for a four-day visit, his third to France so far.

pels and the moral behaviour they demand one way today of making sacrifices to the idols of selfishness, luxury, possession and plea-

Resorting to this kind of provocative rhetoric, which he is fond of, the Pope once again asked the tered the Trois Gaules amphitheatre, where the Church of France received its bloody baptism, the Pope set the tone for the four-day visit to the Rhône-Alpes region. He proposed to a worried France to go back to the great traditional proposed traditional pr traditional or more recent Christian figures and rediscover a new feryour. To his mind, this is the foundation of the "second evangelisation" which he is pro-posing to Wostern European coun-tries marked by unbelief and religious indifference.

place in the presence of all the religious authorities in Lyons — Catholic, Reformed, Lutheran,

So once again, the transport ministers of the 12 EEC nations met in London on October 3 to The ecumenical service work out a compromise solution between dismetrically opposed po-sitions. The "Latins" — Greece and Italy - want no change at all. The Orthodox, Armenian and others.

France — propose to increase Prime Minister Jacques Chirac returned to Parls on Saturday after a two-day official visit to Morocco. In Rabat he announced that nationals of the three Maghrebi countries — Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia — would in future require visas to enter France. He added, however, that terrorism would in no way influence France's policy competitiveness on a graduated basis by granting fluctuations of 45 to 55 per cent and in two years' time of 40 to 60 per cent to national carriers. The "liberals" —

RABAT — Tradition has been respected. Prime Minister Chirac's 48-hour visit to Rabat provided an Visas: oil occasion for the customary celebration of France-Moroccan friendship. And the proof was the On troubled warmth of the conversations. Nevertheless, they concluded with the announcement by Robert Pandraud, the Public Security means having to expand French consular services in the Maghreb. Pandraud announced that a new Tunisian immigrants. Pandraud told the press that Paris had finally decided to restore visa requirements for Maghrebi nationals seeking to enter France.

Given the volume of business that France ocnducts with the Maghreb, France had hesitated to extend to Algeria, Tunis and Morocco the visa requirements intro-duced on September 15 as part of a package of measures to combat terrorism. (All visitors to France, except nationals of EEC member-counties and Switzerland, must now have visas. Demands by Austria and Sweden to be exempted from viza requirements have been

Up to now the only document Magrebi nationals were required to show on entering France was a simple airline boarding pass. The relative size the importance of the spectacular deal to sell 100 Airbus A-320s to the United States' Northwest Airlines Inc.

What we know of its terms sug-gests the contract imposes a minimum of constraints on the airline quarter of a Boeing 747 which,

with a price tag of $120 million, is selling very well today.

waters

ran. Pandraud explained that the system would take into account the special relations between France and the Maghreb, and in particular that open-ended visas would be issued in fairly large numbers for persons making fre-quent visits to France. Maghrebi nationals already living in France before they leave the country on

US sale assures future of Airbus have a great time trimming down ratirements show no signs of flag. The present contract has been ging in the plants of Aérospatiale, British Aerospace, West Germany's MBBA and Spain's CASA.

These considerations will ensure that Airbus directors do not crow triumphantly, all the more so as they would like to show the same selling hundreds of planes worth billions of dollars.

ing success, which is all the more elling very well today.

significant as it marks the coming British companies to see the incompanies. To these reservations has to be of age of Airbus. It has been sistency of a situation where British companies to see the incompanies to see the incomp added the fact that Northwest achieved at a time when a plung-Airlines order will not help Airbus ing dollar could have disadvan. Airbus Industrie but uses none of 30 in 1986). The European consor that when Airbus signed a contium is doggedly sticking to its tract with Pan Am in 1984, the won American approval.

nificant as it marks the coming with Northwest Airlines is a strik- development. It will perhaps also DISGRUNTLED PERSONS will month, and the number of early it is hovering around F6.70.

which has made a firm commit-ment to buy ten A-320s and has vals who are now accustomed to taken an option on the rest.

Secondly, an Airbus A-320 costs
$33 million and weighs about a Nonetheless, the contract signed to avoid recording its lowest pro-duction total in recent years (about manufacturer. It may be recalled production rate of 6.5 A-320s a dollar was worth F9.20 and today making us take special temporary measures. We are moved by the understanding showed by the Maghrebi countries on this subject. The ways and means of applying these measures will be decided in consultation with the states con

The Prime Minister took the opportunity to respond to some of the fears expressed by Arab um-bassadors posted in Paris. France, he said, certainly intended "to take the necessary measures for com-bating terrorism, but it refuses to Pandraud announced that a new consulate would soon be opened at Oujda.

The visa question is a sensitive one. As it affects tens of thousands of people, it has received wide publicity in the press. "Visas: what for?" was the headline that Friday's edition of the daily L'Opinion are Pandraud explained that the world will not be influenced by "France's policy towards the Arab world will not be influenced by terrorism: that policy will not

On this point, Chirac confined himself to two observations. "We hope there is less foreign interfer-ence in Lebanon," he said. And on the Soviet suggestion for a meet ing of a preparatory committee to will have to obtain re-entry visas plan for an international confer-before they leave the country on ence on the Middle East, he said holiday. France approved it provided this Chirac made only a broad referwas not an oblique way of burying the international conference itself flourishing companies in the United States and not one in bad shape. It also means that Boeing's breakthrough has been confirmed it should help in launching its brothers — the big twin-jet A-380 and the intercontinental four-jet A-340 which are waiting for the

$3.4 billion necessary for their help the British government and British companies to see the incon-these planes on routes serviced by its airlines, and has ordered only

Now that the "little? A-320's counterattocks are not irresist

A EUROPE of air transport is no less easy to bring about than an agricultural or monetary Europe. The uninitiated finds this even harder to understand as air travel has consigned borders between countries to status of fossils. What was new at the London meeting was Britain's decision to switch sides, much to the displeasure of the Dutch who refused to take part in the proceedings. Was it prompted by concern for efficiency? Or a desire to make sure that countries to status of fossils. Airlines have become the symbols of governmental authority ways was a success? However that the privatisation of British Air may be, the British government rallied to the West German and and instruments of national strategy that states are loath to let them out of their hands. This is why air traffic between European states continues to be regulated by bilateral agreements that fix in detail the number of seats, the ger will have to leave for at least detail the number of seats, the frequency of flights, an even apportioning of passenger capacities between the two countries concerned and, of course, the all-signed to freeze out persons travelling on expense accounts, like In the spring the European Court of Justice condemned this stratificated of regulations as a violation of the Treaty of Rome, and called upon the Council of Ministers in Brussels to liberalise businessmen. Britain is proposing to do away with one of these conditions for off-peak hour jour-noys. French Transport Minister Jacques Doufflagues is reported to be ready to accept the arrangement. But many more meetings would be necessary to hammer ou a final policy acceptable to the Twelve.

Airline deregulation

One thing is certain. Europe is not going to plunge into uncontrolled deregulation of air transport, whose inconveniences the United States is just beginning to discover — airlines going bank-rupt or entering morgers and fare increases for passengers who are now going to see the great days of attractive prices coming to an end if the American example is to be important fares.

(October 5/6)

THE LABOUR PARTY SPONSORSHIP APPEAL "What you can do right now to help Labour win' Nai Rumoch

EEC air transport by 1992.

moderates" — West Germany and Britain and Holland — want to be able to let market forces operate freely, at once.

Labour believes in freedom. Freedom from poverty, homelessness and oppression — both here and abroad. Just as important is the freedom to achieve, to question and to learn. The last six years have shown us how fragile those freedoms are Now they must be rebuilt. Millions of people are looking to Labour to generate jobs, services and a better future.

But that isn't going to happen unless Labour wins victory at the polls—and has the money to mount the most powerful campaign possible when

That's why, if you become a Labour Party Sponsor now, you will be ving us the resources we need to get into fighting condition. We have been ping a lot to lick Labour into shape. We want to do a lot more.

There is one great barrier to victory. And mundane as it may seem that barrier is hardcash, or rather the lack of it. Labour simply cannot afford to be out priced by the Tories.

That's why I hope you'll Sponsor the Labour Party today. Please complete the form below and return it as soon as possible. And, if you complete the Banker's Order section, you'll be giving us an income we can rely on. Freedom doesn't come free.

YES I want to he for a faired INDIVIDUAL SPONSORSHIP		£15□	£25 🗀	250□	£
UNWAGED	£6□	£10🗀	£15[]	£20	£
"I do not wish to Sp Name ways	onsor, but I en	iciose a ch	eque/postal	order for £
Address			Post (Code .
Enclose your Spons section. In eliner ca	se, ensure you	ince, or coi u complete (ER'S O	the Name	Banker's Or and Addres	der s panel.
Enclose your Spons section. In either ca To (name of your Bank)	se, ensure you BANK	u complete (ER'S O	the Name	Banker's Or and Addres	der s panei.	• section. In either ca	se, ensure you BANK	u complete	the Name	and Addres	s parei.
section. In either ca	BANK Ad	dress of you You Acc	r Bank r Bank r Bank r Bank ouni	and Addres	s panel

HARARE - Was it a simple coincidence that the recently opened shopping centre in the heart of the Zimbabwean capital bore the name Karigamombe? The word, in Shona, means "he who felled the ox" — a clear reference to Zimbabwe's Prime Minister

Robert Mugabe. After all, hasn't all political activity in the country in the past few months been centred around the merger "under the same umbrella" of the party in power, the Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU), and its rival, the Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU), whose symbol

Expectations of such a tidying up had been hinted at when the eighth summit of the Movement of Non-aligned Nations took place recently in Harare. Indeed,

Mugabe would not have been weighed the risks of the operation and did not want to invite surprises and disturbances just when the eyes of the whole world were focused on Harare. Both sides are determinedly optimistic about the negotiations, which are dragging on with many ups and down, coming to a success-ful conclusion shortly. "Mr Nkomo isn't making any more wild de-mands," noted an observer. The veteran nationalist leader merely wants an honourable end to a quarrel going back to the days of white Rhodesia and the war of independence. He is already said to have agreed that the merger should take place under the ZANU banner and that only a part of the

ZAPU central committee should be absorbed into ZANU's central committee. The man who is regarded

HARVEYS of Bristol

G3 Cleret & Moselle Cess ______ £11.4 1 bottle Harveys No 1 Claret 1983 1 bottle Harveys Epecially Selected Moselle 1984

G7 Sherry Case

1 bottle Bristol Creem Sherry
1 bottle Club Amontilado Sherry
1 bottle Luncheon Dry Sherry

GP Celebration Case

1 Magnim Harveys Pirrot Champagne

C& Gordona Special Dry Gin ______ £12.25 1 bottle Gordona Special London Dry Gin

G6 Specially Beleated 3-bottle Case ______214.95
1 bottle Maratsiner Guise Domiai 1984
1 bottle Beautolais 1984
1 bottle Harveys No 1 Claret 1993

1 bottle Muscadel 1994, White 1 bottle Cote du Rousilion, Blanc 1 bottle Toureine Sauvignon 1984, White 1 bottle Cotes du Rhone 1984, Rad 1 bottle Costiere du Gard, Les Sept Collines 1984, l bottle Coteaux de Tricastin, La Tour St Remy 1983, Red __ 13.20

214.90

1803, Feb.

1812 Dinner Perty Cese
1 bottle Tico, The Mixer Sherry
1 bottle Soundgroot de St Bris 1984, Loire
2 bottles Chetasu Heut Sociondo 1982, Claret
1 bottle Coddourns 10 years Old Tewny Porl
1 bottle Harveys Fine Champagne Cognac

G14 Hock Case
1 bottle Harveys Liebkaumlich
1 bottle Mainzer Domherr 1983, Rheinhessen

G17 Port & Sherry Case 21 1 bottle Cookburns 10 Years Old Tewny Port 1 bottle Reine Victoria Amontifiado Sherry

G16 Whisty & Gin Case 222.20 1 bottle Teadistre Highland Cream Scotch Whisky 1 bottle Gordons Special London Dry Gin

G13 Creen & Dry Case
1 bottle Harveys Bristol Cream Sherry
1 bottle Harveys Bristol Dry Sherry is precisely the ox.

By Jean-Marie Colombani

VICTORY IN 1988. The right's victory, his victory, of course. So speaks Jacques Chirac, as the leader of his own side, confident of himself and overbearing. In politics, naturally. For on the question of public security and fighting terrorism, the Prime Minister continues to juggle dangerously with proclamations of firmness and its opposite. And yet (the contradiction is only apparent), Chirac has rarely been able to take advantage of a policy line that is "on the whole positive" on this point.

Opinion polls, elections, the state of the ruling Majority, the governing team — everything's going swimmingly. The public is in fact not far from voting overwhelmingly in favour of a Prime Minister who shoots up 12 points in the monthly popularity ratings conducted by SOFRES-Figaro Magazine, while electoral projec-tions by BVA-Paris Match put him running neck and neck with Fran-cois Mitterrand in a run-off presidential election after a first National in last week's byround which has gone heavily in the right's favour. This Majority has, moreover, just experienced a fine electoral Sunday: a Senate which has now secome bipartisan and is becoming increasingly unlikely to turn centrist; and especially a very promising election in the Haute Garonne. It is significant that with a year and half to go before the presidential election, they are already talking about a run-off election in both the RPR (Chirac's Rassemblement Pour la République) and the UDF (Union pour la Démocratie Française, the coalition headed by Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Jean Lecanuet). And for this run-off election, all eyes are fixed on one man - Jean-Marie Le Pen, the leader of the hard right Front election in the Haute Garonne twhere the Front National collected 6.7 per cent of the vote, beating the Communist Party into fourth place) was most promising for Chirac, for it showed that a not inconsiderable segment of the extreme right's electorate was standing firmly by government policy.

Chirac: lucky streak

If this decline is confirmed, it will eliminate the main threat hanging over the run-off election, the threat of a Le Pen electorate's votes not going in favour of the right's candidate. On this point, Le Pen has missed the bus. Terrorism gave him an opportunity to achieve the respectability he is seeking by joining in the national consensus. Instead, tempted by radicalisation, he took the opposite the most of both his adversaries' and his partners' weak points. He gives the appropriate speech at the appropriate time and commits self to a Majority pact just when the UDF is wavering and the interests of national union prevent other possible leaders of the right from rising up to point out their

Public confidence, good election prospects, a sewn-up Majority: Chirac has another big card up his sleeve in the person of Edouard Balladur (Finance Minister). Balladur is without a doubt the man who is running the show. one of the stars of the Majority, ranking sixth in the list with a 28 per cent popularity rating. While Chirac plays the president, Balladur is prime minister. So, as work it's doing"?

A little less than a year ago, the two men forged a risky strategy underpinned by a dual calculation power-sharing could work if there was agreement with the President on a different interpretation of the constitution; the lead established by Barre could be wiped out by the advantages of the legislative victory and the government. The strategy required Chirac to step into the most exposed post, that of Prime Minis-

Today, Chirac alone is not responsible for a situation which has once more become a major concern become exceptionally favourable. also something to do with it.

The President gave the signal for national union - "when it comes to combating terrorism, we go hand-in-hand," he told the Prime Minister on September 15 - and the mood of unity which has been established is facilitating Chirac's task. At the same time, Mitterrand's attitude, which is guided by the principle that the government governs", is for the moment resulting in this incredi-ble paradox of putting the Socialist Party (which, like it or not, is still destabilised than the right. In addition, in the present circumstances, Barre is caught in a with him Chirac can make people squeeze. He will have to wait in feel that at his right hand is a man who, in the public's eyes, is a match for Raymond Barre (former match for Raymond Barre match for Raymond Barre (former and predicted a crisis) until the Finance and Prime Minister). This facts prove him right. And very National. On this point, the set-back suffered by the Front grasp his advantages and make back. Suffered by the public, has moreover emerged as mechanisms of party solidarity set (Oc up within the Majority by and for

Where Chirac has been lucky of course is that the UDF has collapsed. The UDF is more than ever Chirac points out, doesn't this a sum of rival personalities who team deserve to continue the are all facilitating the process of vassalisation begun on March 16 with the help of François Léctard So much so that ultimately the question could be whether the UDF will be able to name (and support) "its" candidate to the presidential election. The question above all is whether it is not in the Prime Minister's interest to hasten that day, in short to put an end to power sharing. Why indeed wait and grow stale again (once the mood of national unity passes off. the "living conditions of the French", as Socialist Party Secretary Lionel Jospin puts it, will of the country). But it is hard to see how Chirac could go along with such a line. For there is still very strong public feeling against any sort of political crisis. Chirac himself would doubtless lose the benefits of his long patience which helped him to live down his reputation as a nervous President alone who can fix the timetable for an election.

Now as ever time is Mitterrand's trump card. And temperament is Chirac's biggest handicap. It is this temperament which prompts him to promise one thing one the President's party) in a position moment and the opposite the next, where it finds itself more when he is not playing at double or quits every day. Witness the ambiguity of the line he is taking with rand above him is forcing him to behave as if he has grown up. But

Italian anti-nuclear campaign builds up steam

ROME — The future of civilian producing, by the beginning of the nuclear energy has become a major political issue in Italy in the past few weeks. Those who advocate doubling the number of nuclear power plants already existing, under construction or planned — from three to six units — are now very much in a minority. (Italy currently has only one big nuclear plant on stream at Caorso in the Po valley; another is at a a very advanced stage of construction at Montalso, north of Rome; and work has started on a third plant at Trino Vercellese, in the Piedmont.)

Until early September, the antinuclear campaign was for the most part carried on by a hodge-podge environmentalist groups of various political persuasions. Only the smaller parties like the Radical Party (11 Deputies) and the Proletarian Democratic Party (seven the Italian parliament. The Radical Party, in particular, took the initiative in the spring of collectforthcoming referendum on the Things took quite a different turn however when the deputy leader of the Italian Socialist Party (PSI), Claudio Martelli, declared that the time had now come for Italy to abandon civilian nuclear energy altogether. Now the supporter of the atom, could only PSI's position until then had been by reinforced when Craxi himself necessary evil and that the counrecessary evil and that the country had a duty to make use of it to meet even a small part of its electricity needs. Last November, the party approved the umpteenth draft of a "national energy plan" the PSI had in fact called for a which provided for Italy to be arrice no contributed (under a pseudonym, of course) to the "while waiting for controlled furwhile waiting for controll next century, 6 per cent of its electrical power from nuclear plants as against the present 3.8 per cent. And at the Tokyo summit meeting only days after the Chernobyl disaster, the party's leader, Prime Minister Bettino Craxi, signed apparently without any qualms the seven-power document stating that the peaceful utilisation of the atom was indis-pensable for the development of industrialised countries.

11.0

caused a sensation. As it was made shortly after his return from the congress of the West German Socialist Party (SDP), there was some talk of his suffering from the plants in the West Germany. The PSI's adversaries — and they are legion even in the ruling coalition headed by this party — spoke of "duplicity" and even an "Italian-style comedy". Quipped Giorgio La might go into voluntary. liquidation and leave behind one million voters waiting to be picked up by Party is nuclear with Reagan and anti-nuclear with Marco Pannella (leader of the Radical Party)." The judgment of La Malfa, a staunch Socialists, Christian Democrats, Republicans, Liberals and Social Democrats) provided for a decision to be taken only after a national conference on the subject, which would be held in December. The PSI's opponents-cum-partners could accuse it of hamstringing the coming debate by adopting a quite rigid preliminary posture. This was the mildest of the Martelli's statement therefore charges made, for example, by the Christian Democratic Party. Some of the members of Italy's biggest party were eager to accuse the PSI of betraying its electoral obsessions by espousing a cause apparently so obviously popular in Italy.

By Jean-Pierre Clerc

Commentators pointed out more subtly that Craxi's party was taking this grand in the case of voters waiting to be picked up by its more attractive neighbour. What electoral scheming, protested Socialists. They argue that Italy, which only very cautiously and reluctantly opened the door to nuclear energy, can abandon it rushed to defend his deputy in an article he contributed (under a pseudonym, of course) to the "while waiting for controlled fumunist Party (PCI), whose grassroots following split almost evenly down the middle at the recent congress in Florence with the pros triumphing over the antis by a hair's-breadth. In the last fortnight or so, quite high-level Communist officials have been coming out with statements very which after 40 years of holding coming out with statements very hostile to nuclear energy. The office without a break, is primarily party's deputy leader. Achille office without a break, is primarily responsible for Italy's present nuclear situation, is forced to take a public rally in the Piedmont to cautiously conservative line. As a festival of the party paper Unita knows that a cutback of a few ballnuclear referendum.

But the PCI has also to reckon ers clustered around its nuclear Mita, has therefore recommend physicists, whose arguments are not so easy to budge. They particularly like to compare Italy with Japan — a country with a high risk of earth tremors — which is just as dependent on external supplies of energy and is still at the forefront of progress and yet 44 nuclear power plants are on stream or are under construction there today.

Mita, has therefore recommended its members not to commit themselves on the subject until December's national conference.

As a matter of fact, things appear to have been already settled — theoretically at least the answer will be "no" to nuclear power plants. But as it so often happens in Italy, carrying out there today.

new nuclear power plants and the second Craxi government's the Italian Socialist Party has setting a rougonably distant desd-programme, finalised at the end of already begun a very active cam-July by its five coalition partners paign against nuclear power operational plant (Caorso) and paign against nuclear power operational plant (Caorso) and halting the work, which is at a The PSI's u-turn would appear very advanced stage, at the to have liberated the Italian Com- Montalto plant. The PCI has, more-> protest against the construction party of the people, it knows that work now going on at the Trino atoms are unpopular, and it must vercellese plant. At the traditional take account of that. But it also tary-general Alexandro Natta point or so increase in inflation hinted his party could possibly which is bound to be caused by even support the Radicals' antipower plants, will doubtless t force of habit be held against with a hardcore of nuclear defend- The party's secretary, Ciriaco De there today.

The PCI could opt for a "graduated way out"—closing down old small power plants immediately, balting construction work on all process as the construction of the power plants has been, in spits of receiving regular approval from the people's representatives.

Sentended of are under construction to be a cautious, in short as elow a process as the construction of the power plants been, in spits of receiving regular approval from the people's representatives.

'Father of Zimbabwe' looking for an honourable exit

as "the Father of Zimbabwe" reported to have confided: "God will not let me enter paradise if don't succeed in making peace." For his part, Mugabe facilitated matters by releasing, some weeks ago, about 80 political prisoners, including several top ZAPU offi-cials who had been accused of plotting against the Zimbabwean Prime Minister. And he has promised to review the cases of those still in prison, whose number he puts at "less than 200". Among those held since 1982 is General Dumiso Dabengwa, Nkomo's heir apparent and head of ZIPRA, the former ZAPU army. The question is whether Dabengwa's supporters will consider the release of this "hardliner" as an essential prerequisite for national reconciliation.

The reconciliation is causing problems inside ZANU itself, for i will inevitably lead to a shift in and the government. All those who operation are naturally trying to hold it up and even sabotage it. The reconciliation is also likely to result in a different ethnic mix in the composition of governing bodies, probably with Mugabe's own Zezurus and Nkomo's Ndebeles getting a bigger share at the expense of the Karangas and the Manicas, the other two ethnic groups in the government.

Provincial governors, who until now have been taking advantage of such divisions to carve out private flefdoms for themselves. are not very pleased either by such political prospects. As for grassroots activists, they are having a hard time reconciling themselves to the thought that their counterparts in ZAPU, who have always been their enemies, can now be treated like honest citizens. In any case, for Mugabe and his followers, Nkomo is no longer an adversary to be reckoned with. They have done what had to be done to bring about this situation especially by throwing his chief supporters in gaol and pursuing a policy of methodically intimidating ZAPU members. The "Father of Zimbabwe" is 69 today; he is a sick and broken man with no future and with no great authority over his own followers; his sole concern is to find an honourable exit from the political stage.

By Jacques de Barrin

However, Mugabe's problems with ZAPU hardliners are not over either for they will not readily they will be swallowed up by ZANU, they know they do not have much to lose. The Zimbabwean authorities fear South Africa may try to exploit such "dissidence" by keeping up the pressure — at little cost itself — in Nkomo's stronghold of Matabeleland. For the moment the dissidence in the "rebellious" province of Matabeleland is less active. On the initiative of John Laurie, former chairman of the Union of Commercial Farmers, the protection of local farmers has been entrusted to a 250-strong militia unit paid by the farmers themselves and armed by the government. The dreaded North Korean-trained Fifth Brigade is no longer rampaging in the region where it used to perpetrate the most unspeakable acts of viougree to lay down their arms lence. The regular army has been Frustrated at having the war of operating in the region for the past three years and it is behaving properly towards the people. A sixth brigade is at present being recruited for taking over its work.

This does not mean that human rights violations are a thing of the past. The militia and the party's youth organisation are still behaving extremely aggressively to-wards anyone they consider, rightly or wrongly, to be a political opponent. Enos Nkala, the very activist Home Affairs Minister, has a special police and investiga-tive corps operating directly under his orders and it does not hesitate to resort to torture — especially torture by water and electric shock -- to extract confessions from "suspects".

"The human rights violations that Amnesty International has exposed are not theoretical cases," agree many observers. Understandably therefore, the local authorities recently branded Amnesty International as an "enemy of the nation" and are today frantically trying to run its correspondents to earth. They feel it is all the more necessary to discredit this organisation now because the day all political prisoners are freed Amnesty will realise that hundreds are still missing and it will

It is one thing to merge two political parties, but quite a different matter to rounite the Zimbabwean people. This is a much more complicated task. about to disappear," point out observers. 'There'll always be incidents which will serve as excuses for further disturbances." The Ndebeles do in fact feel a greater kinship with their southern neighbours, the Transvani Zulus, with empire, than with their neighbours to the porth, the Shonas who are now ruling in Harare.

(September 24)

BRUNSWICK HOUSE, TORRIDGE HILL, BIDEFORD, DEVON, ENGLAND CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR U.K. DELIVERY

Telephone sales will be readily accepted, our order department number including the Bideford code is: 02372 78748.

International

Gifts

All prices include postage and packing for delivery in the United Kingdom. To order simply send us gift reference numbers with a covering remittance and names and addresses of the recipients with dates of delivery. No Custom Q6 Bristol Cream Sherry

1 bottle Bristol Cream, chokest old tull pale sherry.

Solid presentation carton.

C0,85 G2 Cockburns Vintage Port
1 bottle Cockburns 1980 Late Bottled Vintage Port

We can accept payment on any of the major Credit Cards. Please state card name, full number, exptry date and address to which the card was issued, together with your signature.

up with items surtable for two people at one siting.

100g ctn Metthew Walkers Christmas Plum Pudding with Ruth & Brandy. 220g tin Royal Norfolk Strawberries; 110z tin Gardenvale Mandarin Oranges; 8oz tin Gold Real Frut Salad; 8oz tin Glorpeson Steak and Kidnay Pudding; 7oz tin Plumrose Ham; 35g jer Shippams Crab Paste; 3oz pid Conquest Sage & Onlon Stuffing; 125g pid Ritz Cheese Sandwich; 1.5oz jar Scotts Scottlath Manmalade; 1.5oz jar Scotts Strawberry Jam; 5oz tin Campbells Turkey & Vegetable Soup; 100g pid Percy Daltons Dry Rossest Pressate; 10cz tin Royal Norfolk Baby Carrols; 150g pit Walker Shortbread Fingam; 2 x 5e pid Rowntree's After Sigh! Afterla; 85g. pid. Peerce. Dulf "Custard; Powder.

This small selection is taken from our 72-page fully illustrated catalogue which lists over 1,200 carefully chosen gifts including Christmas hampers, wines and spirits, chocolates, kritwear, jewellery, perfumes, glassware, books and games to children. for children

The calalogue will be sent immediately on request. Please remit £1 if required by simplif. All orders for Christmas delivery 1859 jar Cranberry. Sauce; 1359 pat Crivers Strawterry. Jelly, 464 jar Duerre Traditional Thick Cut Marmelade; 411g tin Australian Gold Pasch Halves; 411g tin Australian Gold Two Fruits; 140g pid Farry Dationa Nut & Fruit Assortment; 125g 8n Daniah Mackerel Fillets in 82; 100g pid Cravers Assorted Tollees; 227g ctn Mackintosh'a Quality Street.

becurs.

635 Clown Tin.

An attractive, galy coloured its, decorated with a clown's face. Containing an assortment of 50 thick chocolate potent club blecuits and

G38 Cechury's Selection Box

Assorted milk and plain chocolates, including such delicacies as; Milk Megie Walnut; Coffee Cream; Maraschino Cherry; Orange Turitie and Marzipan.

The late gift for homebrew enthusiasts, a pack containing all that is needed to brigh beer and lager. Makes one gation of each just by saiding sugar and water.

1 (4 g) (5)

The Washington Post

After Sanctions

THE Senate did what it had to do in overriding President Reagan's veto of South African sanctions. Especially for Republicans who went against their own chief, it was a painful vote. But it was also necessary, given the urgent requirements at this point to mute the signals of American equivocation on apartheid emitted, although not deliberately, by the White House. It was necessary to demonstrate that across the spectrum of American politics, opposition to apartheid burns.

Some Republican senators seemed genuinely surprised and offended to find South Africa's foreign minister reminding them that sanctions are a game two can play — that South Africa might retaliate by halting purchases of American grain and by denying transit of grain to black-ruled states next door. But it is myopic not to understand that Pretoria believes it is fighting a war for survival — for the cultural if not the physical survival of the Afrikaner community. It has very substantial weapons to bring to bear, including the capacity and taste to make much of the burden fall on its black citizens and neighbors. This is not an argument against sanctions meant to accelerate political change. It is an argument against sanctions meant to accelerate political change. It is an

In shorthand this is a sanctions with open eyes.

In shorthand this is a sanctions with open eyes.

Apartheid Act of 1986 is an unusually ambitious and detailed statement Apartheid Act of 1986 is an unusually ambitious and detailed statement of a broad political strategy in which various sticks and carrots are offered not only to draw the South African government toward a just society but to draw black political organizations, including the African National Congress, toward American standards of nonviolence and democracy. Such a strategy, however, cannot conceivably be pursued by congressional directive alone. It requires the active and sympathetic cooperation of the president, and it begs belief to think that Ronald Reagan is going to embrace the myriad tasks of daily policy-making that Congress has prescribed for him. This was always the danger of a policy in whose making both parts of the government, and both parties, did not share.

So this is no moment for unrestrained cheering. Rather, it is a moment for soler deliberation by all of the American actors on how some semblance of working policy unity can be restored. The object, after all, is not simply to get on the right side of history. It is to help move South Africa — the power on one side, the society on the other — toward political consensus. Responsible people at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue must put behind them the draining sanctions battle and accept that urgent agenda. Otherwise, the sanctions are nothing.

The Test In Iceland

IF something had to be paid, and it did, then the United States came out of the Daniloff affair better than it looked for a while. Nicholas Daniloff was freed without a trial — "vindicated", as he put it — although the nasty precedent of hoking up spy charges against a journalist remains. One of the great moral lights of the Soviet Union, the dissident Yuri Orlov, is also now freed. Progress was made, though more is needed, on clamping down on Soviet spying at the United Nations. Ronald Reagan got the early summit meeting he was after — it is to be called a preparatory meeting — without meeting Mikhail Gorbachev's pressurecooker condition of prior assurance of an arms control agreement.

In return, like all accused Soviet spies before him, Gennadi Zakharov goes home, but only after a no-contest plea that equates with guilt. Moscow keeps alive the issue of UN staffing for presentation at the Reykjavik meeting. General Secretary Gorbachev also gets the opportunity, in Iceland, to press further his arms control case.

The incident already has become established in hard-line lore as one of the most suffering by a fine of the most suffering by a first hard-line lore as one of the more unforgivable American humiliations since the war. A broader public, however, is likely to be respectful of Mr. Reagan for finally avoiding any strict equivalence between the two prisoners and for handling the Daniloff case in a way that does not seem to prejudice pending negotiations.

Certainly there is no call to regard this sequence of events, as some do, as a healthy and timely demonstration of damage control. The chemistry of great-power relations, and of Soviet and American politics as they affect those relations, is too unpredictable for such a sanguine reading. It is enough that the search for substantive agreement, which is far more important than simply movement toward a summit meeting, can be

Iceland: One hopes it turns out to be an ironic name, not an apt name for a Soviet-American meeting place. There has been much talk of whether one side or the other needed a summit meeting at all, or needed one more. This essentially tendentious question must now yield to specific planning, in a very short time, for a session that will serve

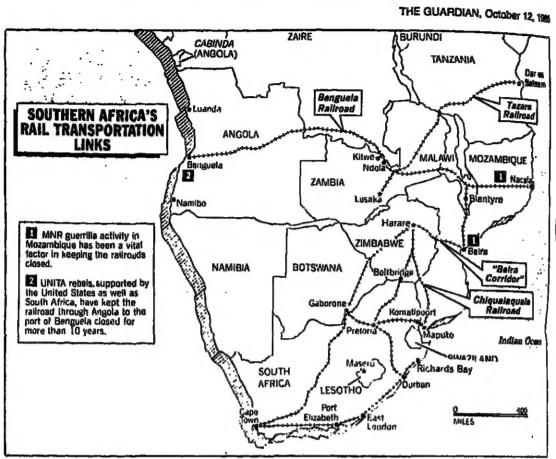

At this second meeting of the two leaders, getting acquainted and touring the horizon are inadequate goals. The circumstances and especially the early date argue for a businesslike tone, a short agenda, an imphasis on the practical as opposed to the conceptual and, as always, an absence of illusions. In wrapping up the Daniloff affair, President Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz were at pains to treat the Soviet Union as a competent negotiating partner with whom further business could be done. That is the lest at Reykjavik.

Missile Agreement Contined from page 15

missiles in East Germany and Czechoslovakia following the 1984 stationing of Pershings and cruises Soviet analysts of Western Euroled to veiled letters of complaint in pean affairs admitted privately the East Berlin and Prague communist party newspapers. Some Western European com-mentators here have argued that coalition will probably be reelected anyway against the Social Demoroassuring his allies about his many next January, would hoost commitment to reducing the dangers of an outbreak of war. Soviet counterdeployments of short-range many next cantuary, would need the chances of the ruling centering the ruling approved the deployments of Pershings and cruises in 1983. But that incumbent Chancellor Helmut Kohl and his conservative an INF decision, coming on the eve of national elections in West Ger-Moscow.

Pretoria's Stranglehold On Neighbours

restore the corridor and harbor.

By Allister Sparks

a moment's silence while the white executive who works as an economic technician for southern Africa's black governments did some rapid desk-top calculations.

Then he looked up and snewered

the region's crucial question. "Yes," he said, "we could survive retaliation sanctions by South Africa, but it would require fairly massive initial assistance. I'd say $3 billion over four years."

Edward G. Cross is the key figure in what has been described as southern Africa's tracheoto operation — the opening up of transportation passage that will enable South Africa's neighboring black states to continue breathing if the white-ruled republic responds to international sanctions by trying to choke them to death. He heads a nine-nation coordinating committee that is directing a crash program to reconstruct the "Beira corridor," a 400-mile rail-road, highway and oil-pipeline route connecting Zimbabwe's cap-ital of Harare with Mozambique's Indian Ocean port of Beira.

The corridor is one of six outlets that the landlocked "front-line states" bordering South Africa have to the sea. Four are inoperative because of lack of maintenance and sabotage by South African-backed insurgents. The other two are in a badly run-down

The result is that the front-line states depend on South Africa's transportation network for 68 per-cent of their vital import-export trade. It means that as the call for sanctions to force South Africa to abandon apartheid, which as black states they feel morally obliged to major powers move toward total

South Africa already has demonstrated its ability to do this. After Zimbabwe and Zambia announced in July that they would apply Commonwealth sauctions against South Africa, Pretoria ordered goslow inspections on all trains and trucks crossing its northern bor-ders and demanded a stiff customs deposit for all Zambian imports crossing its territory. The econom-ic effects were felt in these coun-could survive. After four years we'd be okay."

The corridor project has been given priority rating by the SADCC states, and the railroad track is being relaid at the rate of half a mile a day. The next step will be to deepen the port of Beira so that it can take bigger ships, and to repair the derelict wharves.

According to Cross, train speeds

ic effects were felt in these countries immediately.

According to Cross, train speeds already have increased from a pathetic 10 miles an hour to 40 from Blantyre to Beira, and from hold. It was initiated by an alli-

HARARE, Zimbabwe - There was ance of nine black states called the been cut from four days to 12 Southern African Development Co- hours.

ordination Conference (SADCC). Freight tonnages have been doestablished in 1980 to maximise bled from 600 to 1,200 tons, and the number of derailments reregional cooperation and reduce ne countries' dependence on South duced. "In six months last year there were 54 derailments," Cross The port of Beira once handled 80 percent of the trade from this tracks, which kept breaking. No region before 20 years of guorrilla we hardly have any."

Attacks by marauding rele warfare and economic collapse in Mozambique reduced it to a dilapibands of the Mozambique National dated and barely functional outlet. Resistance movement remain Now Crosa's committee has emproblem. The rebels periodically barked on a $300 million project to blow up the track, the bridges a the oil pipeline. Sometimes they shoot up the trains. Zimbabwe has an estimated 12,000 troops in Mozambique helping to guard the The emergency first phase of the

The corridor project is being project will be completed in De-cember, Cross said in a recent interview here. Beira and the from the Notherlands and Scandin other operational route - the navie. Canada and France are Tazara railroad that runs from Zambia to the Tanzanian port of Dar es Salaam — then will be able to handle 60 percent of the front- of Nacala, which is scheduled for to handle 60 percent of the Irontline states' trade, he explained.

The second phase is scheduled for completion in mid-1989. After that, Cross said, the front-line states will be able to handle all their own trade and their dependence on South Africa is a key aspect of Pretoria's strategy. They are not south Africa of using property. dence on South Africa's transportation system will cease.

The interim period is the worrying time for them, when they still be vulnerable to retaliatory as well as mercenaries and distinct the work of the who have moved south laboration by Pretoric. This is under the work of the whole work is the work of the work of

will be vulnerable to retaliatory action by Pretoria. This is what Cross was referring to when he said the front-line states would said the front-line states would with this assessment, but point of need $3 billion in assistance to that lack of maintenance during survive if South Africa closed its borders to them before phase two of the Beira corridor project is the railroads and port facilities to the railroads and por completed. deteriorate badly.

"We would need a bridge," Cross Jonas Savimbi's UNITA relationships and the complete of the comp do, they run the risk of crippling retaliation by Pretoria.

South Africa is also in a position to use them as economic hostages, threatening to strangle them if the major powers move toward total lems recrientating our supplies and markets, but with help we could survive. After four years would be also "

Reagan Denies Libya Plan Involved 'Disinformation'

By David Hoffman

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said last week that he wants to make Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi "go to bed sevry night wondering what we might do" to deter terrorism, but To fighten the Libyan leader.

Directive that authorized the Central Intelligence Agency to spread to spread and also ordered a series of abroad and also ordered a series of appeared Aug. 25, Speakes described it as "authoritative."

Speakes said last week that we were never going to speak the false information about Gadhafi report. After the Journal story appeared Aug. 25, Speakes described it as "authoritative."

We shad at the time that, while we have that we were never going to speak the said at the time that, while we have that we were never going to speak the said at the time that, while we have that we were never going to speak the said at the time that, while we have that we were never going to speak the said at the time that, while we have that we were never going to speak the said at the time that, while we have that we were never going to speak the said the newspaper had included in the said the time that, while we have the said the time that, while we have the said the time that the said the newspaper had included in the said t he denied that a plan he approved in August involved the spread of "disinformation" through the American news media. He was responding to a report (below) that the administration launched a se-cret affort of deception aimed at convincing Gadhafi that he was about to be attacked again by U.S. bombers and perhaps ousted in a

The secret plan was outlined in a three-page memo sent to Reagan by national security affairs adviser John M. Poindexter. It called for "real and illusionary events through a disinformation program — with the basic goal of making Gadhafi think that there is a high degree of internal opposition to him within Libya, that his key trusted aides are disloyal, that the Secretary of State George P.

Shultz told reporters in New York that he knew of "no decision to have people go out and tell lies to the media" but that "if there are ways in which we can make Gadhafi nervous, why shouldn't we? Frankly, I don't have any problems with a little psychologi-cal warfare against Gadhafi. It's cal warrare against Gadnan. Its very easy. You people in the media enjoy not allowing the United States to do anything in secret, if you can help it." Shultz noted Winston Churchill's statement in World War II that "in time of war the truth is so precious it must be attended by a bodyguard of lies."

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Poindexter had told him there was no effort to spread officials said last week that the plan was approved by Reagan in a secret National Security Decision officials said last week that the plan was approved by Reagan in a secret National Security Decision officials said last week that the plan was approved by Reagan in a secret National Security Decision of the American media. Speakes said a report in The Wall Street Journal about Libya last August included intelligence information on Gadhafi that media.

no comment on whether the administration had spread false information about Gadhafi outside the United States.

Reagan, meeting with a group of newspaper columnists and broad-cast commentators at the White House, at first said, "I challenge the veracity of that entire story" published in The Post, But he then published in The Post, But he then said the administration had been paying close attention to Gadhafi and "I can't deny" that "here and there, they're going to have something to hang it on." Asked whether there were memos describing a deliberate effort to mislead the American people, Reagan said: "Those I challenge. They were not a part of any might use those weapons. Well, the same thing is true with some-one like Gadhafi and with all the speculation that was going on in the media throughout the world tempt him into further acts or not. "And constantly there were questions - aimed at me as to were we planning anything else.

My feeling was, I wouldn't answer those questions. My feeling was just the same thing — he should go to bad every night wondering what we might do."

about whether our action would thing to hang it on." Asked whether there were memos describing a deliberate effort to mislead the American people, Reagan said: "Those I challenge. They were not a part of any meeting I've ever attended."

Pressed further about whether the administration intentionally put out false information, Reagan recalled arguments about using nuclear weapons in Vietnam while he was California governor. "And I must distinguish between the audiences, you must distinguish between ideception and disin-

The administration plan drew criticism last week from editors of major.news organizations and from experts on terrorism.

"I think it was one of the most important and depressing stories I've read in a long time," said A.M. Rosenthal, executive editor of The tions that our government was sitting around figuring out how to lie to the press makes me have to ill. It makes you ask a lot of questions. Who authorized this kind of thing? Has it happened before? Who's going to bolieve these people again?"

Secret Campaign Of Deception To Destabilise Gadhafi

WASHINGTON - In August the Reagan administration launched a secret and un-usual campaign of deception designed to convince Libyan leader Moammar Gadhaficonvince Libyan leader Moammar Gadhanthat he was about to be attacked again by U.S. bombers and perhaps be ousted in a coup, according to informed sources and documents. The secret plan, adopted at a White House meeting on Aug. 14, was outlined in a three-page memo that John M. Poindexter, the president's national security affairs adviser, sent to President Reagan.

"One of the key elements" of the new strategy, the Poindexter memo said, "is that it combines real and illusionary events through a disinformation program — with the basic goal of making Gadhafi 'think' tword underlined in the original that there is a high degree of internal opposition to him within Libya, that his key trusted aides are disloyal, that the U.S. is about to move against him militarily."

It was an elaborate plan: "a series of closely coordinated events involving covert, diplomatic, military and public actions," according to Poindexter's memo. Military officers expressed some reservations about the plan, and intelligence specialists were deeply divided about its potential efficacy. The plan was the latest phase of the administration's policy, first adopted last year, to try to topple Gadhafi, a known instigator of terrorist acts and targeted by the administration as a threat that has to be

Beginning with an Aug. 25 report in The Wall Street Journal, the American news media — including The Washington Post — reported as fact much of the false information generated by the new plan. Published articles described renewed Libyan backing for terrorism and a looming, new U.S.-Libys confrontation. But U.S. intelligence officials had actually concluded in August that front, according to the Poindexter memo. The only "confrontation" was the one generated by the administration plan, according to sources and administration planning papers.

During September, however, U.S. intelligence agencies assembled evidence that Libya had begun planning a significant number of terrorist attacks, and some senior officials are concerned that this is in part a response to the administration's latest campaign against Gadhafi. Of greatest concern to U.S. officials are reports considered reliable but still inconclusive that Libya had a direct hand in the Sept. 5 attack on Pan American World Airways Flight 073 at Karachi airport in Pakistan and provided logistical support for the terrorists, according to informed

When the administration's secret decep-tion plan was launched in August, officials acknowledged in internal memos that it might provoke Gadhafi into new terrorist of Libya, sources said. The anti-Gadhafi acts. But senior officials decided that the forces that the CIA had been supporting potential benefits of the operation outweighed this risk. The objective of the plan was to keep Gadhafi "preoccupied" and "off balance" and to portray him as "paranoid and ineffective" so that, as the memo put it, "forces within Libys which desire his overthrow will be emboldened to take action."

Poindexter's three-page memo to Rengan outlining the plan was drafted in preparation for a National Security Planning Group (NSPG) meeting convened to consider the next steps the administration would take against Gadhafi. The NSPG is the key Cabinet-level forum in which Reagan and his top aides discuss and make decisions on the most sensitive foreign-policy matters. The president, Poindexter and nine other key officials met at the White House to discuss this plan at 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 14. Sources said the basic plan was approved and codified in general terms in a and among Libyan exiles.

Officials acknowledged in their internal discussions that the deception plan was risky. "Gadhati may lash out against Americans and regional friends with terror and subversion," said the White House memo sent to Casey. But the administration concluded that potential benefits outweighed any dangers. "There are risks," that memo said. "However, the benefits of a successful policy demand that every appro-priate effort be made to achieve our objectives."

Senior officials said Reagan, Casey and Secretary of State George P. Shultz are particularly determined to remove Gadhafi.

By Bob Woodward

formal presidential decision document. Details of the plan were left to Poindexter, the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Soon after the meeting administration officials told reporters that the United States had new intelligence indicating that Gadhafi was again stepping up his terrorist plans, following a four-month lull after the April 14 American bombing raid against Libya. But Poindexter's memo to Reagan just before the Aug. 14 meeting painted a just before the Aug. 14 meeting painted a less alarming picture: "Although the currept intelligence-community assessment is that Gadhafi is temporarily quiescent in his support of terrorism, he may soon move to a more active role."

Other sources confirmed that there was no aignificant, reliable intelligence in mid-August to suggest that Gadhafi was stepping up his terrorist plans.

But the State Department and the CIA concluded that it might be an opportune moment to execute the coup de grace against the Libyan leader. A White House alonging decument sent to CIA Director planning document sent to CIA Director William J. Casey before the Aug. 14 meeting said: "Gadhafi's aura of invincibility has been shattored, his prestige is badly tarnished and his grip on power seems

But administration analysts evidently were of two minds. The Poindexter memo to were of two minds. The Poindexter memo to Reagan written at the same time said:

Most intelligence estimates conclude that in spite of new tensions and Gadhafi's own shock, depression and impaired performance following the April 14 raid, he is still firmly in control in Libya.

Over the summer, the administration over the summer, the administration considered but rejected mining the harbors of that a new confrontation was in the sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to offing. In reponse to a question to the Unity Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the French voiced concern to the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department. Instead of frighten-ing Gadhafi, sources said, the State Department ing Gadhafi, sources

As Poindexter said in his August memo, the purpose of taking additional steps against Libya was to deter terrorism, moderate

Libyan policies and "bring about a change of leadership in Libya. ..." The administration has concluded that, as the Poindexter memo said, "any alternative leadership to Gadhafi would be better for U.S. interests and international order."

The mid-August plan approved by Reagan did not specifically call for the planting of false stories in the U.S. media. A State Department planning memo, however, did provide that "U.S. government backgrounds media on 1) three-ring circus in Libya with in-fighting among groups jockeying for post-Gadhafi era, 2) threat of resurgent

The secret plan also called for "foreign who called the article "authoritative. On the basis of those endorsements, other news organizations, including The Post, carried reports summarizing the information that intitially appeared in The Journal. In leadership."

After The Journal and other news reports describing the purported U.S. who called the article "authoritative." On subsequent days administration officials both affirmed and denied that there was in the August memos. The report did not mention deception, the key ingredient in the plan. The paper quoted "a senior U.S. official" as saying of Cadhaft: "There are increasing signs that he's resumed planning and appropriate that the senior to the contractions. proved weak and disorganized, the sources said. All of the efforts against Gadhafi were apparently thwarted by his personal securiand preparations for terrorist acts."

Acording to the Poindexter memo to ty force and a network of informers in Libya Reagan, there were no such signs. The Journal wrote: "The Reagan administration is preparing to teach the mercurial Libyan leader another lesson. Right now, the Pentagon is completing plans for a new and larger bombing of Libya in case the president orders it."

In fact, the administration only had contingency plans for new military action that were several months old, and nothing new was being done, sources said.

The Journal report said the administra-The Journal report said the administra-tion was considering action through the African country of Chad to put pressure on Gadhafi, who has annexed a portion of Chad with about 6,000 Libyan troops. According to The Journal, "The deputy commander in chief of the U.S. European Command, Gen. chief of the U.S. European Command, Gen. Richard Lawson, quietly visited the poverty-stricken desert nation (of Chad) earlier this month to see whether (Chad) President (Hissene) Habre, with U.S. and French help, might be able to expel the Libyans." In August, a State Department planning paper on the decention ries said: "Lawson's trip to August, a State Department planning paper on the deception plan said: "Lawson's trip to Chad later this month provides an opportunity for disinformation to reach Gadhafi that the U.S. and France are developing contingency plans for a 'Chad Option.' "

Lawson visited Chad on Aug. 12 and 13, but State Department officials said recently that the United States never formally had discussions with Exames about joint action discussions with France about joint action against the Libyan forces there. France has tacitly accepted the partition of Chad.

The Chad aspect of the deception plan apparently grew out of a National Security Council memo dated Aug. 7, proposing that The secret plan also called for "foreign media placements" by the CIA, When a report appeared on the front page of The Wall Street Journal on August 25 stating without qualification that "The U.S. and Libys are on a collision course again," it was embraced publicly by Poindexter and White House spokesman Larry Speakes, who called the cartiel "nutberistive" On the control of the cartiel and the cartiel and the cartiel of the cartiel and the cartiel of the cartiel of the cartiel and the cartiel of Given the stated desire of some (French)

both affirmed and denied that there was appeared describing the purported U.S. new evidence of Libyan-backed terrorism, or proposal to take joint action in Chad, that a new confrontation was in the sources said, the French voiced concern to

*1966 The Washington Post Co. All rights reserved.

91988 The Washington Post Co. All rights reserved.

LONDON HOTELS AND APARTMENTS

LONDON -- Heritage Hotel, 47/8 Leinster Gardene, W2. Moderate terms. Private tellet, shower. Tel. 01-402 9062.

LONDON, Wimbleden — a/c flats for 2-6. 5 mins. stn., CH, TV. 2 weeks min. From £90 pw. Brochure: 17 St Mary's Road, London, SW19, Tel: 01-947 0573.

Clizabeth Botel

London SW1.
Ideal central quiet location nr. Balgravia.
SgiJDbi./Twin/Femily.rms. Highly recommended, Engl. B/fast. Budget rates. Free brochure. 37 Ecclesion Square, Victoria brochure. 37 Ecclesion Square, SWIV 1BP. Tel: (01) 828 6B12.

FAIRLAWN APARTMENTS

APAHI MENTS

Kensington W11

A temporary London home for visitors or tember on the move. Short or long lets in comfortable trity equipped service flats, sleeping 2-7 from 500 per flat per day. Fully equipped kitchen, indge, china, linen, central healing, hot water, colour television, included with meld service and private telephone. Push chairs, high chairs and cots or cribs available on request without charge. Bebyeiting and easy car parking. Easy sposes to West End and Portobelo Road.

109 Elgin Creacent Kensington, London W11. Tel: 01-229 5006

MAIL ORDER

EDUCATION

CITY & GUILDS OF LONDON ART SCHOOL

LONDON ART SCHOOL

Principal: Reger de Grey, P.R.A.

Full-time: tyr toundation course. 3yr diptoma courses in Palming, Illustrative Arts, Sculpture, Sculpture Carving in Stone & Wood, and Restartion of Wood, Stone & Polychrome Prinshas, Decorative Arts STEC diploma courses in Restoration, Carving & Polychrome: 2-year general and 2-year higher 2-year diptoma courses in Lettering, and Woodcarving & Gilding Fees ellering, and Woodcarving & Gilding Fees

£2,300 per annum. SAE to: The Secretary, 124 Keenington Park Road. Landon BE11, England.

IUC SVENDBORG INTERNATIONAL BACCALAUREATE 2 year boarding school programme laught in English. Diloma is accepted as university entrance qualification in over 70 countries.

Applications for 87-88 academic year now invited. Phone or write for further

International Education Centre Vestergrade 45 PO Box 150 5700 Svendborg

W. JONES & SON LTD Lennox Street
Bognor Regis
Sussex, England
TELEX 86402 (CH1 TYP) ALSO AT HEATHROW COMPETITIVE RATES £75

For qualation write to:

Economic Car Fentule Limited, P.O. Box 8, Botchworth, Surray, RH3 702, Telephone: 01-842 2288 Telep: 917118

FLYING TO GATWICK

OR HEATHROW?

LOW COST CAR HIRE

€60 PER WEEK

Unlimited mileage, VAT,

Insurance.

Please write for brochure

WORTH SELF DRIVE

14a Priestley Way, Crawley, Sussex RH10 2NT, England

Tel: (0293) 29027

*ぷヨいႽいいも*かかり

SELF DRIVE CAR RENTAL

LET US MEET YOU

FROM YOUR FLIGHT

01-581 1717

Open 7 days a week

Jaguar etc.

*Competitive rates

AA cover included.

three-day visit here last week, signing a five-year grain agree-ment that was anxiously sought by PER WEEK Canadian farmers and agreeing to "personally review" the cases of Soviet Jews and Ukrainians with IF YOU ARE HIRING A family ties in Canada who are CAR MAKE IT E.C.R "WE'RE CHEAPER BY FAR"

seeking to emigrate.

In a gesture highly unusual for a Soviet official, Shevardnadze took time out from his schedule to talk Cars from £80 p.w. including unlimited mileage. AA/RAC Membership, radios in all models, Irae delivery Heathrow, Gatwick Airports and Central London. All vehicles current Ford models including Automatica and Estates. briefly on two occasions with protesters from Canadian Jewish organizations who had shadowed him during the visit. He accepted from them petitions and a list of names of 3,000 Jews who are trying to leave the Soviet Union for a number of other nations. Canadian officials and Soviet security agents with Shevardnadze appeared stunned when he not only did not seek to avoid the small knot of demonstrators on Parliament Hill but walked up to them. "We have 3,000 names on this list who have family applica-tions, including several cancer patients," a woman in the group blurted out. In a soothing voice, the foreign minister said, "You should not worry." He took the list and promised to look into the

Shevardnadze Signs Five-Year Grain Pact With Canada By Herbert H. Denton

After signing the grain agreement, and trailed by a larger OTTAWA - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze ended a throng of camera crews, Shevardnadze returned to speak again with the protesters and expressed concern that they had had to stand for two hours. Ottawa Rabbi Reuven Bulka retorted "You know, standing outside in the nice bright sunshine is nothing compared to spending 20 years in a Soviet prison for no reason whatso-

> The Soviet foreign minister maintained a cordial demeanor as he openly sought to establish a stronger relationship with Canada and appeared to be acting subtly to exploit differences between Canada and the United States. He flattered Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and External Affairs Minister Joe Clark by consulting them on arms control issues and by listening attentively and taking notes when they reeled off the names of relatives of Canadian citizens hamstrung in their efforts to leave the Soviet Union. He said he would "personally review" the cases of the 40 families seeking to come to Canada.

"I've had an excellent meeting," Mulroney said after spending more than an hour with the Soviet deadline for accominister. Shevardnadze told the offer was passing.

Canadian press corps that they were not as "pushy" as their American colleagues, who tended to "put on a full-court press." "We understand that Canada and the U.S. are allies that are bound by certain obligations which they take into account," he said at a press conference. "On the other hand, we know this: the Canadians don't always agree with the Americans." He mentioned Cana dian support for the unratified SALT II treaty and for the Soviets voluntary moratorium on nuclear testing as examples of the differ-

The Soviet foreign minister ap peared to score the most point with the Canadians by his decision to renew the five-year grain agree ment with Canada that expire last July. Canadian farmers had been deeply concerned at the pro-pect of losing a significant share of the Soviet market after President Reagan offered in August to sell American grain to the Soviet Union at subsidized prices. But Shevardnadze ended their anxiety by agreeing to continue to purchase a minimum of 5 million tons annually from Canada at almost the same time that the U.S. deadline for accepting Reagan's include articles showing that the Soviet Union was planning a coup

Secret Campaign Of Deception

in Libya, It said, "Libyan intelligence should be provided photogra-phy of Libyan dissidents meeting with Soviet officials in Paris, Baghdad, etc."

The U.S. intelligence community has been sharply divided over the concerned that the administra-

KARDRUP

ment of Defense) operations will also be required to give credibility to rumors that the U.S. intends to take further military action." The memo said there would be "unilateral and joint exercises designed o deceive, overburden and 'spook' Libyan defenses." U.S. and Egyptian forces con-ducted military exercises, called

of death" into the Gulf of Sidra,

"Seawind," in the region in August. Sources said the exercises were carried out in a particularly Ford, VW, Porsche, BMW, provocative manner, sending air-craft into the Tripoli Flight Information Region so they would appear on Libyan radar, though the most provocative action, crossing Gadhafi's self-proclaimed "line of death" into the Gulf of Sidra was not undertaken.

Telex 268851 24-25 CROMWELL PLACE LONDON SW7 2LD Just by South Kensington

U.K. Self Drive

FIESTA

Other models available

No mileage charge. Free meetleave Heathow all hires. Free delivery Gatwick hires over 2 weeks

Brochure by return air mail

Ross Car Rental

i Dickerage Lane New Maiden,

Surrey KT3 3RZ, England

Tel: 01-942 7756 Telex: 27950. ref: 605

was not undertaken.

The administration plan specified that two U.S. diplomatic missions be given an anti-Libyan spin.

One was a visit to European capitals by Vernon A. Walters, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations; the other a visit by Assistant Secretary of Defense Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard L. Armitage last month to Libyan neighbors Algeria and Tunisia. Walters' mission, which followed the publication of The Journal report and Speakes' description of it as "authoritative," was billed as a briefing on the new ship of terrorist acts. In fact, European sources told Washington

Other portions of the plan in-cluded attempts to make it appear that the United States was flying across the "line of death" by using deceptive radio communications. Another aspect of the plan involved deceptive aircraft-carrier operations to mislead Libya about Another aspect of the plan involved deceptive aircraft-carrier rity affairs advisers, Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., the chairman of the the intent of U.S. forces to operate near its territory.

The CIA undertook placements

in the Karachi hijacking, but said complicity.

Reagan has publicly promised to including material gathered by complicity. Post correspondents in London and Bonn, Walters offered no such evidence to the Western allies. The Armitage trip, according to a raid, if that country is directly several newspapers. Reagan has publicly promised to take military action again against being material gathered with the plant of the reporting to the reporting to the reporting to the reporting to the reporting formation, in the plant of the pl planning memo, would provide a connected to other terrorist acts sary to Europe to seek is against U.S. installations or tar-sanctions, and discussed the difficulty for against U.S. installations or tar-sanctions, and discussed the difficulty for against U.S. installations or tar-sanctions, and discussed the difficulty for against U.S. installations or tar-sanctions, and discussed the difficulty for against U.S. installations or tar-sanctions, and discussed the difficulty for against U.S. installations or tar-sanctions. gets. The week after the raid, Reagan said, "If their government continues its campaign of terror against Americans, we will act stressed that U.S. intelligence agencies do not yet have conclu-

At the Aug. 14 meeting of East of Reagan and his top national secu-Joint Chiefs of Staff, voiced concern about the plan, according to sources and abroad aimed at the U.S. sources an about the plan, according to The CIA undertook placements sources, questioning whether it of false information in the foreign was an appropriate use of military media. Other covert techniques resources He said the of military indeed, our government conducted indeed at the conducte media. Other covert techniques involving communications, U.S. great danger in saying or implying aircraft and submarines were were among that the United States was going indeed, our government conductors indeed planned. One planning document to take dramatic steps, then falling said the false information should to follow through. Crowe argued that this would lessen the deterrent value of the April 14 raid.

Though a variety of reservations were voiced during the hour-long meeting, sources said that the strong unti-Gudhaft sentiment in the administration overrode other considerations. At one point, according to a new tactics against Gadhafi, according to informed sources. Some source, Rengan made a joke about the Libyan leader's well-known proclivity for wearing ostentation Libyan experts in the CIA are and colorful clothing. The president quipped, "Why not invite Cadhuil to Sun Francisco, he likes tion's psychological warfare against Gadhafi will backfire, or already has. In this view, the U.S. plan is only feeding Gadhafi's desire to be at the center of events. to dress up so much." Shultz rejoined: "Why don't we give him AIDS!" Others at the

and has likely fueled his terrorist schemes and plans to extend his rule in North Africa beyond Libtable hughed. Asked about The Wall Street lournal's Aug. 25 report on Libys. the newspaper's managing editor, Norman Pearlatine, issued this yan borders. The possibility that Libya did promote the Scpt. 5 hijacking of the Pan Am jetliner in Karachi is On Aug. 11. Washington be reau chief Al Hunt approved a cited by some specialists who fear the consequences of the U.S. decep-tion plan, though there is no evidence that U.S. actions trig-gered the hijacking, which is the sort of terrorist act that Gadhafi proposed by John Walcott for a story on the situation in Libys, in anticipation of the Sept. 1 anniver-sary of the Gadhafi revolution Hunt suggested involving Cair correspondent Gerald F. Seib. has organized in the past. Sources

"The reporting which produced our Aug. 25 story came from multiple sources in multiple spen-multiple sources in multiple spen-multiple spencies of the U.S. government culties in pinning the exact blane for terrorist events. The Journal subsequently revealed in a slott on Sept. 2 that the U.S. planned to promote reports in the Middle East of growing opposition &

"If our government also mounts a complex disinformation can THE GUARDIAN, October 12, 1986

MARMADUKE HUSSEY, a director of Times Newspapers, has been chosen by Mrs Thatcher days a week job. The appointment, Newspapers, has been chosen by Mrs Thatcher as new chairman of the BBC to succeed Mr Stuart Young, who died last month. Conservative backbenchers, who have been making increasing allegations recently about the BBC's alleged political bias, applauded the appointment with the aim of removing him and ment of Mr Hussey, who is 63, to the £33,820 four

The 'Duke' at the helm

HE is 6ft 5in, 17-stone-plus, "enormously ebullient, noisy, friendly, a very powerful personality, with very strong views, and induces someone who worked closely with someone who worked closely with him at his most critical period.

"He's absolutely nothing, absolutely incompetent for the job. He was wheeled in as a toughte, but he's a genial nobody," said another. They both watched from within, then from the street, as the managing director ordered the managing director ordered the Sunday Times and Times into suspension.

He is "an outrageous and provocative appointment". That was the shadow home secretary, Gerald Kaufman, on hearing the news and pledging Labour to remove the new chairman of the BBC's governing board as soon as they came to office. "He goes straight for the bottom-line. And he has a short fuse." That is the experience of someone who knows the man in his most recent media enterprise, knocking an ailing commercial radio station into economic shape.

Quite what the arrival of Marmaduke "Duke" Hussey at

Broadcasting House will mean for the BBC is a matter for contradictory conjecture. That the style will be very different from that of the quiet-spoken Stuart Young, whose death a month ago precipitated the hunt for a successor, is certain. That the Government has lit upon a figure even closer to the Conservative Party and to the establishment than Young is a matter of record. But whether this is a man with either the appetite or the capacity to force radical change on a large organisation — seen as Mrs Thatcher's personal aim — is less

Duke Hussey, born in 1923, is Duke Hussey, born in 1923, is for Fleet Street a major figure who had dropped out of sight. After Rugby, Oxford, the Grenadler Guards in Italy, he joined Associated Newspapers in 1949, went on to its board in 1964, was managing director of Harmsworth Publications, then moved to the Thomson Organisation as chief executive and managing director of Times and managing director of Times Newspapers in 1971. In the mid-70s, it was Hussey who led a joint attempt of Fleet Street management to get a full-scale new technology agreement with the unions. The Plan For Action failed.

In 1977 the Thomson family interests grew impatient of mounting losses and industrial disruption, and in apring 1978 Hussey was ordered by the group's UK board to act. On April 26, he wrote to the union leaders saving he to the union leaders saying he would suspend publication of the Times and Sunday Times on November 30 unless agreement had outraged reaction to some of his changes, including putting carica-Drogheda, a national director of the paper, thought them "cruel" and complained to Murdoch, precipitating further debate. Evans records Duke Hussey's reaction: "Funnily enough, I saw Queen Elizabeth's (the Queen Mother's) private secretary Martin Gilliat at dinner last night and he is a very dinner last hight and he is a very avid and discerning reader of the Times — as is his boss!" Gilliat had approved, "So I don't think you need worry about those lotters." A royal pardon, Evans felt.

When Murdoch cleared out the inherited Thomson management, family to the fore.

Mr 'Duke' Hussey

been reached on new manning levels, wage structures, and disputes procedures. There was no agreement — and it was October 21, 1979, before a deal for the papers' return was agreed.

Three months earlier, the unions had refused to negotiate further with Hussey, to his evident dismay, and insisted on going above him to the by then wavering Thomson Organisation top echelon. When it was over, one print worker, who had worked as a barman meanwhile, commented:
"With every bitter I served I thought Duke Hussey, there's no with cautious approval: "He did say he believed the newsrom was the backbare of the station." way you're going to get away with

Hence one part of Labour's intellectual capacity to grasp the reaction last week. But people who complexities of a major were closer to those events, and to organisation, both logistically and Hussey's other newspaper industry experience do not see union-bashing as part of his make-up. His Establishment pedigree, on the other hand, looks flawless. His wife, Lady Susan Hussey, is daughter of the 12th Earl Waldegrave, elder sister of Mrs Thatcher's environment minister, William Waldegrave, and has been pressured by the Government, bu not being able to do anything about it." is one view. Another is less sanguine, "The Murdoch connection in itself the backbone of the station."

In more doubt, for some, is his makes the appointment sinister in intent. If he was malleable enough to be told to shut down the Times, thick-skinned enough not to sense the reactions, and not clever since 1980.

Hussey takes evident pleasure enough to carry it off, what might be do at the BBC?"

in the royal connection. Harold Evans, editor of the Times after the Murdoch take-over, records

Hussey stayed as a consultant, and went on to the board of TNL in 1982. His executive responsibility since then seems to have been confined to organising the Times's bicentenary colebrations, at Hampton Court Palace, the royal

His surprise appointment to the BBC may have come through yet another connection. Like the former Times editor William Reca-Mogg, he lives in some style in Somorset. The two are close friends, and Rees-Mogg was himself deputy chairman of the BBC until this year, when he retired from the board, denied the chair to which he himself aspired.

Duke Hussey is a prominent figure in the West Country, and his only broadcast media experience has come quite recently.

When Radio West, the Bristolbased ILR station, ran into economic difficulties, Hussey was brought in as chairman, and was brought in as chairman, and was largely responsible for cutting it back and effectively merging it with the neighbouring Wiltahire Radio. Since last October the two have traded out of Swindon, with tenets of monetarism.

tackled a new subject or a new

Kaldor of King's

Professor Robert Nelld on Lord Kaldor, the Cambridge economist, who died last week

NICKY KALDOR was one of the most brilliant, warm-hearted, and amusing people I have ever known. Through his extraordinary originality and persuasiveness, he probably had more influence on policy-making than any British political economist since Keynes.

He was born in Budapest in 1908 and attended the famous Model Gymnasium which produced a general of the West, including Szilard, Teller, Von Neumann, Kurti, and many others. After a term in many others. After a term in Berlin, he came as a student to the LSE in 1927 and after gaining a first swiftly became one of the young stars of the staff. During the war he was evacuated with the LSE to Cambridge, where he be-came part of the circle of econo-mists that included Joan Robinson, Richard Kahn, and Piero Sraffa.

At the end of the war he served with the US Bombing Survey Unit, holding temporarily rank of colonel. The unit produced the famous report that dispelled the myth that bombing had done much to damage Germany's economic

After two years in Geneva as director of research at the Economic Commission for Europe of which Gunnar Myrdal was the head, he was invited in 1949 to take up a lectureship at Cambridge and a followship at Kings', where he remained for the rest of his life. He made frequent excursions into the outside world. He was special adviser to the Chancellor of the Exchequer during the Labour governments of the 1960s and

Having served on the Royal Commission on Income Tax under Lord Radcliffe in the early 1950s, he advised a remarkable number of Third World countries on fiscal policy, including India, Ghana, and Mexico. In 1974 he became a life peer and delighted making speeches in the House of Lords dissecting and challenging the

The originality of Kaldor's mind. the force of his arguments, and the strength and charm of his personality was such that whenever he

CLASSIFIED

SELF DRIVE HIRE

DELIVERY AT LONDON'S

HEATHROW and GATWICK

AIRPORTS

Choose from the brand new Montego Maestro & Metro models (Saloons of Estates) — even a 12 seater Minibus. New arrival 8 seater Combi and Rover 20

Wadham Stringer

Dept GW Woodbridge Road, Gurdford, Surray GUI 1DX England, Telephone: (0463) 69231 or 66751

saries. Unlimited mileags, Comprehensive instable included.

was always happy to visit Hunga-ry and talk Hungarian. And he loved with pride his wife, his four daughters and 11 grandchildren. FLYING TO GATWICK? DON'T JUST RENT A CAR TAKE A LIBERTY! ★ 5 mine from airport — free Gatwick delivery ★ Full insurance and RAC membership ★ Free mileage ★ High standards — low rates ★ Quotations without obligation Gend for brochure today from: Ubarly Gar Hira, Three Bridges Rail Station, Crawley, Sussax, UK, Tel: Crawley (9292) 544188

yet logical capacity to see new theoretical links with a grasp of how the world works, plus a Politically he was a radical. As a young man he was influenced by the Fabians and later by Keynes and Beveridge. His views were usually unorthodox. He cared deeply for social justice and for democracy. In recent years he

He was a natural companion and friend of the intellectuals of the Labour Party and was especially close to Tony Crosland and Dick

Crossman. He also became a close friend of many people at the top of the Treasury and the Inland Revenue who, through all the argu-ments that raged about policy, became devoted to the benign

His main influence was on tax policy where he repeatedly devised

new taxes that might influence economic performance. They were usually controversial, sometimes shortlived — for example, the selective employment tax. Perhaps nia most enduring influence,

though it is sometimes forgotten was to revive and elaborate the notion of an expenditure tax in good company. He was full of life;

he was funny, simultaneously generous in word and deed yet intent upon winning any argument on which he embarked; and he was a great teacher. He loved England and felt very English, though he

Nicky Kalder was tremendously place of the income tax.

became devoted to the eccentric in their midst.

about the nuclear arms race.

capacious memory for economi

MANCHESTER GATEWAY TO NORTH BRITAIN

Large selection of 1985/86 Cars, Estates and Automation, from £80 per whele. No mileage charge. Delivery and collection to Airport. Child sesis available Brochure by meum airmail

MANCHESTER SELF-DRIVE 1212 STOCKPORT ROAD MANCHESTER, M19 2RA. Fel: 061-432 0664 Telex: 668514 TORTEC.G

ACCESS CAR HIRE U.K. Phone: 0734-410551 £76 F Ford Sterra 1.8L Entate £117 C Ford Escort 1.3L Estate (or similar) £99 K Murcedee 1908 D Ford Escort 1.8 Ghis £99 K Murcades 1906 SP Ford Flests XR3 E 129 KS Mercades 28054 E 7ord Signy 1.84 E 105 KL Mescades 2805E Ford Signy 1.84 Westly Rays — Unitaritied Alliance — Compitalenative Instruction— Child Source Acc. Free delivery London Aleport on all these of 2 weeks. Credit Card. All Rates plus VAY.

A COUNTRY DIARY

CORNWALL: By the end of last week the afternoon tide had advanced to high water at 8pm. Each chill to make an open fire welcome ground and only saw him in flight across the sea.

The most interesting sighting of day the sea came in over sands which had been exposed to a day of sunshine and provided as worm a sea for swimming as any encountered this year. I walked the 200 amongst the boulders of the foresther than the sea gently stirring the shingles amongst the boulders of the foresther than the sea gently stirring the shingles amongst the boulders of the foresther than the sea gently stirring the shingles amongst the boulders of the foresther than the sea gently stirring the shingles amongst the boulders of the foresther than the sea gently stirring the shingles are shiftened to be a sea of the sea gently stirring the shingles are shiftened to be a sea of the sea gently stirring the shingles are shiftened to be a sea of the sea gently stirring the shingles amongst the sea gently stirring the shingles among the sea gently stirring the shingl yards from the cottage down to the beach to swim just before high tide came down off the fern covered hill and although the sea remained to drink from the stream which choppy it was a pleasant way to choppy it was a pleasant way to runs through the garden. Occarinse off the sweat of a day in the garden. The week of the full moon — a splendid harvest moon which reflected each night off Veryan Bay in a long glittering trail — was a period of high pressure and

The most interesting sighting of the week was a butterfly, one which does not occur in any of the guides as a species nativo to these shores. On hot sunny afternoons saw this specimen several times on the top of a privet hedge close to the heat-reflecting wall of the cottage. Edged wings the colour of mushroom gills with irregular yellow patches suggest it was a Cardinal well outside its normal range and a vagrant from warmer

Colin Luckhurst

Stripping bare a gypsy's passion

Gerald Larner reports from Glasgow on Scottlsh Opera's remarkable production of Carmen director of productions, neither Scottish Opera nor Graham Vick could afford another one -- least of all on the symbolic occasion of John Mauceri's first appearance with the company since his antor. But the virtues of their new Carmen are so rare and so positive that it has to be the beginning of a reversal of Scottish Opera's failing

There have been hopeful signs before in the last five years or so. This time it is different. Vick has set himself a prodigiously difficult task and has proved, in contradic-tion of doubts about his technical competence, that he can do it. Above all — and this is what is so rare about it - he has secured not only the agreement of the conductor but also his co-operation, so that the dramatic concept and the musical interpretation set out from the same point and are developed

The starting point is a bare stage, with no set and no furniture apart from four rows of chairs forming a square along the three walls and across the front. As the prelude ends, the company enters authentic Spanish costume) and takes its seats as though at rehearsal. As required, they stand or sing from their chairs.

The only luxury Vick allows himself is a revolve, which provides a vertiginous walkway for the passers-by and which carries a section of flooring which can be raised to the vertical to form a wall with a doorway whenever conceal-ment or a significant entry has to

During the first act Mauceri conducts the music in much the same way as Vick directs the action — which is to say that it is precise and disciplined, factual rather than impassioned, with no such thing as a great Karajan-like surge of cello sound on the fate motif as Carmen fixes her attention on Don Jose for the first time. She performs the habanera sitting on the floor with her back against the wall. Her seguidilla later in the same act is slightly more things are going. Scene by scene, act by act, the story comes to life, ning its own kind of reality beyond the routine of the rehearquit room. As the emotions develop, the atmosphere intensifies, but still with such restraint and economy that the sunny lighting and the modestly picturesque detail of the street vendors at the flesta in the last act look like a riot of colour. At the same time the musical message is ever more urgently communicated — not to the point but that has at least as much to do with the casting as the conducting.

AFTER a series of failures from its actually gets up on to the table to

One unexpected effect of this approach to the work is that it throws Micaela into such prominent relief — presumably because of the general reduction in colour around her. Certainly the producer takes advantage of the situation: it is she alone, dressed in mourning for his mother rather than a crowd of soldiers and bull fight fans, whom Don Jose has to face when he kills Carmen at the end.

Fortunately, in Jano Leslie Mac-kenzie, Scottish Opera has a Micaela of integrity in both per-sonality and vocal line. Emily Golden — although, as one of Peter Brook's Carmens, she is used to this kind of thing — cannot equal her as a dramatic or, with her uncertain intonation, musical force. Gary Bachlund is a potentially lyrical but still fragile Don

Of course, it would be difficult for any cast to start from cold in the way of this production and, however precise and disciplined the direction, to survive four acts with the help of so few of the conventional theatrical resources.

At the same time they are coping with a new translation, which is always a problem, particularly for singers who have played the part before. Apparently, much of Anthony Burgess's text had to be changed during the rehearsals but, from what one can hear of it in the Theatre Royal, it seems witty and idiomatic enough to have been worth the trouble.

Not quite Yum-yum

Tom Sutcliffe on Miller's Mikado

THE Mikado has been repatriated. The gentlemen of Japan now at the um are very clearly denizens f the Athanaeum in the 1920s. omic orientalism is out: the world of Miss Marple and Margaret Dumont is in. The Mikado is not about Japan, says Jonathan Miller following G. K. Chesterton's line that "all the jokes in the play fit the English, if they would put on the cap." not even about English perceptions of Japan, as Sondheim's Pacific Overtures is bout the American view of Japan. It's about a kind of dotty imperial twilight, says Miller, and the Twenties theing suitably fashion-

Twenties (being suitably fashionable on television) will do nicely.
So Stefanos Lazaridia's all-white set is full of Lutyens and Rex Whistler, and Sue Blane dresses Pish-Tush in plus-fours, and Katisha in a turban-hat and goggles, with a long-fringed dres inder her floor-length velvet great-coat, and Nanki-Poo in striped blazer, white ducks and

Anthony van Laast choreographs chorus lines of leap-ing bellboys with red lips and rouged cheeks, and pony-prancing chambermaids with doyly headdresses and neat white Lyons corner-house aprons. Three little maids really are from school, in gymslips tied with striped ties and carrying lacrosse rackets. The de-cor seals the illusion with ferns, grand piano, radiators and gramophone horn. It is all terrifically a la mode. But The Mikado is not about

1920s England either, and Chesterton's hint that it works like Swift and Gulliver strikes me as wildly inflated and irrelevant. Like all operettas, The Mikado is only incidentally estirical at all: the secret of its success is that it is lightly, slightly romantic in a gently comic way, and the trick in performing it is to keep up the pace and/or support the fleeting reality of the emotions. In a way Miller's Twenties trappings are even more specific and beside the point than the traditional Japanoiserie, yet Miller does not manage to evoke a tangible sense of an idealised world in which absurd and natural reactions clash divertingly togeth-er. Miller's Mikado is the prisoner of its updated image, so busy being knowing that it scarcely manages to trundle the tale along.

English National Opera have cast the show strongly, and there are some excellent performances. Richard Van Allan is an ideal Pooh-Bah, who gets his lines across absolutely in character but without resort to operatic enunciation. Bonaventura Bottone has a nicely complacent air as the jeune premier, Nanki-Poo. Felicity Palmer steals the show so overwhelmingly on her arrival as Katisha that her performance has nowhere clae to go thereafter: the voice with its deadly accuracy and penetrating zeal could not be bettered.

Richard Angas's mountainous Mikado in a floppy Jonathan Miller-style white suit and panama hat moves away from his usual rasping style to something more silily dangerous. Susan Bullock sai Jean Rigby make good impressim as Peep-Bo and Pitti-Sing. And above all Eric Idle's Ko-Ko (not badly sung incidentally, desite the competition from pro singeni is a superbly realised creation, bare-faced in its vaudevillian pranks - such as the corkscrew squirm with which he gets his ongue under the Mikado's shot. after the revelation of Nanki-Po's royal lineage.

The trouble is that ENO's Mikson acks pace and energy. The conductor Peter Robinson displays sime no sense of theatrical timing, and in the second act with its roster 6 not-so-motivated numbers thing hang fire terribly. Van Lass choreography becomes repetitist just when it should be moving mb higher gear. And Miller, in the vastnesses of the Coliseus. labours to get lines over at the expense of vitality.

The clash of approaches between Idle and the rest is not exploited! make for much dramatic variation Worst of all, Lesley Garretti charmless Yum-Yum is self-on scious, mewling and — as so ofte — decidedly flat in her singing. Yum-Yum is not delicious and pleasing, 'The Mikado become rather a drag. That it should nee be so was excitingly demonstrate by both The Black Mikado and more recently, Ned Sherrina Me ropolitan Mikado. ENO's pub-may love the style of Mike production, but the vordict mude "modified rapture."

Navy Tomcats on a hot tin roof

"IF you two screw up, you'll be flying a cargo ship full of rubber dog shit out of Hong Kong," says an officer to the heroes of Tony Scott's Top Gun. The two concerned are pilots of F-14 Tomcats, every adolescent fantasy in the costing $86 million each and the pride of the US Navy Fighter Weapons School. It is, as you might imagine, a man's world, and it is one of the big hits of the season in the States.

Top Gun is British director Tony the fairly dire The Hunger — and denied Discipline yourself, believe in the cause and you too could be the change is amazing. It is not quite so astonishing, however, when you think of his previous experience making commercials.

The stars are Tom Cruise as experience making commercials.

"Maverick," a pilot who dices with affort to beat the unambiguous zealots, is simplistic in the extreme but highly efficient, and its "human factor" allows for

Machines of death glisten in the sky and their occupants, constantly stripped in the shower rooms, seem like perfect specimens of gilded, audacious youth. This is a picture that never lets up, as if its in the cause and you too could be be the best, officered by pretty good in the shower himself, but Maverick is the real sexual symbol — a God among men, trying to exorcise the devil in him. Top Gun is a deeply depressing movie the moment you begin to think about it. But, if you don't, lines like "Your ego is signing cheques your body can't cash", will possibly suffice. So will the story of guts and gumption finally rewarded. And no one could question the sheer professionalism of the story-military machine determined to have a story at all. Icemen looks They are the typical products of the degenerate half of the Western Alliance — dissatisfied, middle-aged and dumbly kicking against lives that have turned sour. Bottom Gun, in fact.

Derek Malcolm

spot-on.

Anthony Hopkins as Bill out hardly be botter. He gass through his part like a rulest tom Gun, in fact.

is Bill, rumpled and furious — a beast from another era out to get the wife who has left him and so deatroyed his relationship with his blows. And there is a side boy. The rage within this child of cameo from Simon Callos at the revenge through the agency of Roger, also separated from his wife and mortified to learn that she is off to Australia with the kids.

If he can persuada Roger to take experience making commercials. This is, above all else, an advertisoment for the current American dream, as set out by President Reagan and orchestrated by a Hollywood that's at least still capable of icily efficient dream. The film looks extremely swish as it goes through its motions of describing the tribulations of the young aces being trained to defend the West against the Communial peril. Its acrial photography is sometimes superb, its portrait of a superbolacies. The stars are Tom Cruise as telling.

The stars are Tom Cruise as telling.

Top Gun may be a deeply reactionary movie and totally absurd as a commentary on human nature. But my guess is that it will now been better than him but who dided mystoriously; and Kelly reactionary movie and totally absurd as a commentary on human nature. But my guess is that it will now been better than him but who dided mystoriously; and Kelly reactionary movie and totally absurd as a commentary on human nature. But my guess is that it will nounce because it is son hated this movie because it is son heated this movie because it is indelibly middle. If the legal action to ruin this uncertainty of the material transition of the induction of the memory of a fat

The example we inspect most closely in Christopher Hampton's adaptation of Peter Prince's novel

THE GUARDIAN, October 12, 1986

Churchill on the attack

By Asa Briggs

ROAD TO VICTORY, by Martin Gilbert (Heinemann, £20)

THERE are many nuggets in this massive and magnificent seventh volume of Martin Gilbert's biography of Churchill. What is most impressive about it, however, is its range. Like the Second World War itself, this is a biography with many fronts: the well chosen titles of many of the 69 chapters proclaim it.

The scene is always changing, and if there is less about domestic matters than about the war itself this is because Churchill was for the most part interested only in winning the war. As Clementine Churchill told Diana Cooper at Marrakesh in 1944, "I think Winston will die when it's over . . . we're putting all we have into this war, and it will take all we have."

Like many other of the nuggets, this comment has already been published. Very frequently, inleed, Gilbert uses comments from published diaries and autobiogra-phies for his punch lines. They play much the same part in the biography as decoded Enigma mes-sages did in the war itself. Yet, as in previous volumes, Gilbert has made the most of Churchill's voluminous private papers, supple-menting them with unpublished private diaries and letters from members of his war secretariat. The latter he solicited in an appeal on Desert Island Discs. Unlike Roosevelt, Churchill was preoccupied with strategy and, like Stalin, he firmly believed that "wars are not won with plans."

"War is a constant struggle," he wrote in 1941, "and it is only with some difficulty and within limits that provision can be made for the future." He was always impatient with "mischief-makers and sowers of tares" who hindered "the great machines rolling into battle." "All our operations are being spoiled by overloading and playing for safe-ty," he wrote in March 1943: "improvise and dare," he told General Maitland Wilson later in the same year.

the same year.

The navy not surprisingly figured prominently in his thinking, particularly during the alarming U-boat successes of that year which were made possible by the failure, soon happily overcome, to "decrypt" a new German naval Enigma, but it was on military matters — and bombing, where he matters - and bombing, where he was in complete agreement with Stalin — that Churchill had most ideas. He greatly enjoyed his visits to the different war zones." Instead of sitting at home waiting for news from the front," he wrote characteristically of his journey to Egypt n 1942, "I could send it myself."

The fact that the war became a coalition war with America's entry into it after Pearl Harbor was a guarantee of victory for Churchill, but there were to be as many arguments about strategy with Americans as there were with the Russians. Military coalition was more testing than political coali-

DEVIZES BOOKS

New books sent worldwide. All types, from single books to library supply. Mastercard/Visa accepted. Devizes Books, Manday Market St., Devizes, Willshire, U.K.

AUTHORS

invited submit Manuscripts all types (including Poems) for book publication, Reasonable terms. STOCKWELL DEPT. 52 lifracombe, Devon.

Tel, 0271 62557 (Esid. 1898)

London By Alan Brien

tion. The long argument with the Americans about "Anvil," the south of France landing, later called "Dragoon," rightly receives as much attention in this volume as much attention in this volume as the earlier argument with the Russians about the Second Front. So, too, does Churchill's relationship with Eisenhower, now under review across the Atlantic.

Yet there were often sharp differences behind the scenes in Britain itself. Brooke, often quoted, complained of Churchill's "frightening impatience to get an attack launched," which he described as his "regular disease." Why? 'Well,' she said, I must know exactly because I'm about to have scribed as his "regular disease," while Churchill himsel complained just as sharply of the Chief of Staff system leading to around Gant's Hill.

"weak and faltering decisions — or rather indecisions."

Most of the discussion of such themes in the biography will be familiar to historians of the war, but there is much that is new in the sections of the book dealing with foreign policy. There is a brilliant chapter on Churchill's first meeting with Stalin in August 1942 when he met "the ogre his den," and it is fascinating thereafter to trace changes in their

Poland and Greece are major preoccupations, but there is much that is new about Tito also and even more about de Gaullo. "He might be Stalin with 200 divisions behind his words," he said of the latter in 1943, a relatively mild remark when compared with state-ments he made about him and his "trail of Anglophobia" in a secret session of the House of Commons in 1942.

For anyone involved in the continuing debate about just what happened in particular cases and the extent to which political motivations influenced Churchill's or Stalin's — strategy this biography is essential reading. So it is also in relation to the debate about what happened after the war. There is not much comfort in looking into a future where you and the countries you dominate, plus the Communist Parties in many other states are all drawn up on one side, and those who rally to the English speaking nations and their associates . are on the other," Churchill telegrammed Stalin in August 1945. "It is quite obvious that their quarrel will tear the world to pieces."

The year of victory had begun, as Colville has reported, with Churchill sending a greetings message to a correspondent with best wishes for this "new and disgusting year." There was more than irony there. As Gilbert notes on his penultimate page, as the German war came to an end, the breach with the Soviet Union was almost complete.
Whatever the circumstances, what comes out clearly throughout this volume is the richness and exuberance of Churchill's person-ality. He had his moods just as he. had his problems, but there was never any failure of nerve or spirit. Political leaders are rare, but than a political leader. ENGLISH BOOKS and postage).

Any UK-published book in print supplied at published price plus postage (allow £1.25 per book and any balance will be credited) or let us send your UK friends a book or Book Toker for any amount in multiples of 25 pence (add 30p to cover card

Payment please by Sterling cheque, Access or Visa Credit Card or International Money order.

THE BOOKSHELF

17 High Street, Budleigh Salterton, E. Devon,

EX9 6LD, UK.

Peculiar

LONDONERS, by Nicholas Shake speare (Sidgwick & Jackson, £8.95; cloth £12.95). MAYFAIR: A SOCIAL HISTORY, by Carol Kennedy (Hutchinson, THE caller insisted the Directory

Inquiries operator spelled out the long Greek name — "She said, 'Are you sure that's right?' Yes, I said.

it tattooed on my arm'."
Wapping has the oldest police station in the world, set up in 1798. London has 18,421 taxi drivers and 8,000 of them live

Men in nightclubs often complain their wives are too intelligent and requisition the most cheerful, stupid hostess on the premises. Gavin Stamp, architectural historian, occupies an entire house but to deter burglars keeps six bell pushes on the door frame. "Everybody thinks their milk is fresh on the doorstep," said the milkman, "but it rould be up to a week old."

A random selection of one-liners garnered from Nicholas Shakespeare's eminently browsable Londoners. Most of the text, however, consists of lengthier interviews, profiles and outings as he tracks down and nets every kind of metropolitan type the most dedi-cated London perambulator could imagine plus quite a few Dickens could not have invented. No amount of tedium, discomfort, emparrassment, rudeness or even danger prevents him from visiting their unnatural habitat and filling his notebook with quotable quotes

The device is not new but none of the many who have followed in the wake of the great Henry Mayhew has come so near to equalling him. Stockbroker, murderer, call girl, ratcatcher, ragand-bone man, spy, waiter, cab driver, wig-maker, madman — his 200 genuine peculiars stand up on the pages like figures in a pop-up volume. I can almost forgive him for not insisting on an index, grave flaw in a work that rightly aspires to scholarship as well as Carol Kennedy's Mayfair is sub titled "A Social History" though i might be more accurate to have called it "A Socialite History". In Mayfair, the difference is anyway

Most of the early decades in the story have been often described, and it is not a book that is very rewarding read attentively line by line. Better judicious skipping un-til you come across such as the surveyor's report on Florence Nightingele's house at 10 South Street. She had taken to her bed here in 1865 and remained in it until her death in 1910. The Grosvenor Estate minutes note that the house was far below the standards of sanitation and hygiene she had ploneered in the Crimea — bad drainage, inadroom.

IN THE 1740s a clandestine manuscript circulated in Paris which sought to define what a philosopher was. It said that he should be a man who had freed himself from the prejudices imposed by religion, who is governed by reason as Christians are governed by grace, whose principles are based on observation, who studies the universe without bestudies the universe without be-lieving that he will discover all its secrets and who achieves probity because he follows reason. In the eighteenth century it is Voltairs who most clearly follows these precepts; today, in England, it seems to be A. J. Ayer who fits the picture. There is a resemblance too between the short quick-fire sentences of Voltaire's style and the rapid and incisive sentences o Ayer's lectures. What could be more appropriate thon that Ayer should write on Voltaire? (It's probably not true that the publishers considered calling the book Voltaver").

The starting point is the fact that whereas everyone knows of Voltaire, whose reputation has remained considerable for more than two centuries, few people read him. His epic and dramatic poetry, which was admired well into the romantic period by such people as Byron, is now forgotten.

forays into science and mathematics. His championing of causes in the name of justice is remembered only in the most general way. Thus with the exception of the contes, especially Candide, Voltaire is VOLTAIRE, by A. J. Ayer (Weidenfeld, £14.95).

Our own Voltayer By Douglas Johnson

revered and unread. Professor Ayer has made what he calls a not exhaustive but serious attempt to repair this deficiency. Wisely avoiding the textual and bibliographical forests which swallow up most Voltaire scholars he has presented us with a brief biography and then an examination of several themes. It is only to be expected that Aver does not simply present Voltaire's views. He discusses thom, sometimes as if he were discussing them in Voltaire's presence. Thus Voltaire commenting on Pascal is followed by Ayer commenting upon both ("Voltaire mistakes a scientific for a philosophical question," "Both Pascal and Voltaire go astray here"), and his deism is subjected to a particularly close scrutiny ("I interrupt Voltaire at this point to remark that his reasoning here has gone astray." "I own that unlike Voltaire. I am not entirely convinced

But while doploring his attitude to the Jews, finding his constant attacks on Christianity tedious, and regretting his deism. Ayer clearly admires Voltaire's acumen. honesty and courage. He quotes from Micromegas, the story of the two giants who visit the earth and who falsely suppose that human beings spend their lives in love and The wide-ranging historical thought, since these constitute the works are neglected, as are his genuine source of happiness. Hore," writes Ayer, "I believe that Voltaire was speaking for

MONTHLY BOOK CHOICE

The book club with a difference

We combine the services of a book club and bookshop for discriminating

HOW IT ALL WORKS Simple! Each month the MBC Builetin is sent to you (airmail if you are outside Europe). This describes at least 70 brand new books on many Specially reviewed each month is an outstanding fiction title by a top author (THE BOOK CHOICE). You can select ANY book in the Bulletin, BUT if we do not hear from you by a specified date, we automatically mail you THE BOOK CHOICE free of postal charges. For any other books you order we charge actual postage, with no package or handling fees.

SPECIAL SERVICES TO MEMBERS

Books sent with your personal greating direct to friends or rela ANY in-print book supplied on request Free search and quote for out of print or rare books

Magazine subscriptions handled NO OTHER BOOK CIRCLE OFFERS ALL THESE BENEFITS!

OUR GUARANTEE

MBC has been backed for many years by Bumpus, Haldane & Maxwell Ltd., international library supplier and bookseller. We guarantee good service.

JOIN NOW

TO: MONTHLY BOOK CHOICE (G), OLNEY, BUCKS, MK46 4BN. Please enrol me as a member. I will pay for each book by ONE of the (a) by Access/Visa (delete as appropriate) (b) by maintaining a deposit account ... I enclose cheque/international money order/girocheque for £25/$30 as deposit, any unspent part of which you will refund to me on demand.

ADDRESS 1 / 2 (1 of)

1 / 2 3/2

2 pagestines

(I em over 18 years old)

5. Picture a man bound up with end, and that's right (9) Job a character found in "Pickwick fixed amount (13)

savoury morsel (6)

SELF DRIVE

Aubrey Street, Salford M5 2UP. Tel: 081-872 8055. Telex 62869

Late Model Cars, Estates, Minibuses and Automatics

Free Delivery to Manchester Airport and Stations

BROCHURE SENT BY RETURN AIR MAIL

SELF-DRIVE CAR HIRE IN THE U.K.

Sidlow Bridge, Raigare, Surrey RH2 BPP
Tel: Reigare (073 721 40281, Telex 947084

GLASGOW, MANCHESTER

VISITING UK?

WINDSOR CAR HIRE

PO BOX 14, BRACKNELL, BERKSHIRE RG12 4FD Telex 846785 CITCAR ref WCH

le Sept | 11 Dec | Model | Model

ONE WAY RENTALS
BETWEEN DEPOTS

support (9) 16. A top journalist under strain (7)

18. Visits give a boy a name! (5, 2)

19. Report a ranter broadcast (7)
20. The staff pop back inside for a

THE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS

On Combine in the property

ACROSS business (6) 6. Outstanding swine coming to bad 1. There's many a shipwreck caused by accident (6)
4. Make up for disappointing spread

9. Fancy a little hide-away (4) 10. The craftsman's son's mate - no use (10) Not an exotic plant (6)

12. Musical instruments still kept in bags (8) 13. Day-dream possibly about a point prepared (4, 5) 15. Look on the pound as an animal refuge (4) 16. Opt for a non-electric tool (4) 17. Leading coppers falling back (9) 21. Let up maybe before a worker gets cantankerous (8) 22. Last railway uniform (6)

(10) 25. Backing friends, makes a hit (4) 26. Become more intense as a letter writer (6) 27. Fed by the hotel, as is natural (6) DOWN

1. Island lorced to Join a revolutionary organisation (7)
2. Having little science, a politician can appear a rogue (5)

3. Preparing tea — sure to be quite

Wooks of Reighte are a fining established family company. Our fervice is friendly and disagned in make your car his as imple and observant as possible. Our fleet includes new Fords and Volke-Jigons and with offices in major cariners, we really can other years service at compositive rates.

= WOODS

PLAYED in the pairs championship at the Juan les Pins Festival this year with Stefan Ballan. Here is a hand on which he managed to make all thirdeen By Rixi Markus® tricks when the opponents could have

♠ A75 ♥ KJ1054 WEST ₩ 82 ₩ Q97 ♣ 9 ♥ A632 1053 + Q9875 ♠ KQJ10843. ♥ 8 ♠ AKJ8 ♠ K

Ballan became the declarer in 4S, and West made the passive lead of a trump. Declarer won in hand and led trump. Declarer won in hand and led the eight of hearts to durmmy's ten, which East ducked after a slight but fatal hesitalion. South read the situation well by continuing with the king of hearts and ruffing out East's ace, He then crossed back to durmmy with the ace of spades and ruffed a small heart, bringing down West's queen. Durmmy's 10-x of hearts were now established, and Ballan was able to cash the scaand Ballan was able to cash the ace-Papers" (7) Reason against the team taking a king of diamonds, ruff a diamond in dummy and discard his two minor suit

. Cure no age problem but offer The two extra overtricks which my partner managed to steal proved to be very valuable, and +510 gave us a very good match point score on the board. He was obviously tucky that East's studious duck with the ace of hearts gave him the chance to avoid both losers, but nobody can do well in Another important aspect of pairs play is the need to take risks if the opponents are threatening to rob you of your part-score. If the opponents outbid you when you were about to score +120 or +140 in a safe partscore +120 or +140 in a safe partscore, for example, it will often be essential to double them even if you cannot be absolutely certain that their contract will go down. This is because +100 might prove to be inadequate at pairs scoring, and because to concede

-530 if they make their doubled contract may not give you a much worse match-point score than conceding -140 when other pairs are making a ing -140 when other pairs are making a part-score on your cards.

Here is an example of this principle from the Juan les Pins pairs. Dealer West; East-West vulnerable.

Q54 ♥ Q2 ♦ QJ92 AQ63 WEST EAST ♠ KJ8732 ♥ K9 SOUTH ¥ AJ875 A 1085 A 752

North

1D(1) NB 3H(3) NB

(1) North-South were playing the Five-Card major system which has become the French national method. The opening bid of 1D is often the equivalent of the British weak no-

(2) Having passed originally, my partner felt entitled to show his good six-card suit.

(3) This was a strange effort by North. His partner was very tight to have four diamonds for his raise of what might have been a three-card suit, and there was no reason not to play in the 4-4 fit.

(4) I was by no means certain first wa could defeat 3H, but I knew field

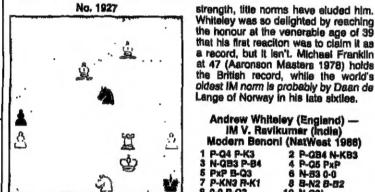

+50 or +100 would give us a bad score if we could make +110 in 25 Our best chance of avoiding a nor match-point score seemed to be to collect +300 from 3H doubled. West led the seven of spades, and my nine held the first trick I continued with the ace of spades, and deduvruffed and led a small heart toward dummy's queen. My pariner wanty with the king and switched to a du, and I won with the ten and returned my last spade, ruffed by declarer. South was beginning to lose conid of his hand. He crossed to the queen of hearts and ran the queen of diamonds, and West won with the time and returned another spade, allowing me to discard one of my losing diamonds. We eventually managed to restrict declarer to six tricks - for hearts, one diamond and one dub – and the penalty of +500 gave us a to on the board. As I had expected, however +300 would have been equally good, while a modest +100 from 3H two off undoubled would have been considerably below average to those East-West pairs who we permitted to play in spades had scored +140 or +170.

Chess

By Leonard Barden

White mates in three moves at latest, against any defence (by H. Karrer, 1979). White's large material advantage creates the problem here, for 1 BxN? is a draw by stalemate.

Solution No. 1928: White K at KN1. Q at KB2, Rs at QN1 and K1, B at KN2, N at Q1, Ps at QB2, Q3, KN4 and KR3. Black K at QB2, Q at QR7, R at QB1, Bs at Q2 and KR1, N at Q4, Ps at QR2, QB6, Q5, KN3 and KR2.

White to win.

1 NxPI PxN (if NxN 2 R-N7 ch K-Q1
3 Q-B8 ch mates) 2 R-R1 and Black soon resigned. If 2 . . . Q-N7 3 KR-N1

NATWEST'S annual young masters tournament finished, predictably, in a victory for the youngest contestant but and gloomily predicted that the selectors would choose 14-year-old Michael the 1987 junior world championship. It's hard being a teenage Brilish IM, but after NatWest Norwood will be

As for the oldest competitor, Andrew Whiteley has played in three olympiads result: in fact the game was in 1967, and twice been runner-up in the British. the opponent was Whiteley, and the championship. Though clearly IM result was part of a dramatic 3-1 strength, title norms have eluded him. Whiteley was so delighted by reaching the honour at the venerable age of 39 that his first reaction was to claim it as a record, but it isn't. Michael Franklin at 47 (Aaronson Masters 1978) holds the British record, while the world's

East South
Martus
NB 1H
NB 3D

D'ble(4)

Andrew Whiteley (England) — IM V. Ravikumar (India) Modern Benoni (NatWest 1988) 2 P-QB4 N-KB3 4 P-Q5 PxP 6 N-B3 0-0 8 B-N2 B-B2 10 N-Q2| 1 P-Q4 P-K3 3 N-QB3 P-B4 5 PxP B-Q3

In Paylovic-Hodgson, Lloyds Bank 1986, White met the novelty 5 . . . B-Q3 by the routine plan Q-B2, R-K1 and P-K4 when Black gained active counterplay. Whiteley's thematic choice pressurises the Q-side.

10 . . . P-QR3 12 N-B4 N-N3 14 P-B3 B-Q2 11 P-QR4 QN-Q2 13 N-R3 B-B4 15 P-K4 R-N1 Aiming for P-QN4, Black neglects the other flanks. Here N-B1-K2-K3 is more flexible.

16 R-K1 N-B1 17 B-B1 N-R2 19 N-R3 P-R3 21 P-KN4J Q-K1? Black's position is difficult but he should try N-KR2 to slow down White's

23 BxNP B-R4 25 PxB P-N4 27 N-Q2 P-B5 29 P-B4 P-B4

ever met British opponents. Gulko recelled two games, one in 1985 and the other in the 1988 Student Olympi-ad. Gulko did not remember the opponent and was discreet about the English victory, our first against the USSR at national level. Whiteley's favourite Slav nets a vital pawn, and

Boria Gulko (USSR) -Andrew Whiteley (England) Queen's Gambit, Slav (Harrochov 1967)

2 P-QB4 P-QB7 4 N-B3 P-K3 1 P-Q4 P-Q4 3 N-KB3 N-B3 B-N5 PxP P-QR4 B-N5 6 P-K3 P-ON4 8 N-Q2 B-N2 9 PxP BxN 11 Q-N1 P-QR3 10 PXB PXP 10 PMB PMP 12 P-K4 Q-82 14 Q-0 N-82 16 QR-Q1 QR-81 18 N-K4 P-R3 20 BMBP N(3)-K2 22 N-86 NM 24 Q-K2 Q-87 13 B-K2 0-0 15 Q-B2 K-R1 17 P-K5 N-Q4 19 B-B1 P-N5! 21 Ban NaB 22 N-86 NaN 23 Pan Qabp 24 Q-K2 Q-87 25 Pap ch Kap 26 Bap ch Kas 27 Q-K3 ch K-N2 26 R-Q3 R-KNil

Faced with material defeat on the C side. White has been forced to by a sacrificial biltz on the king which Whiteley defends coolly.

29 R-K1 K-B1 30 P-Q5 R-NS 31 Q-R3 BxPl 32 Resigns Why? At first glance White can for play 32 RxB PxR 33 Q-R8 ch not parpetual check, but the answer is 2 RxB Q-B6I 33 QxQ PxQ when Blacks

Tyndall-Guardian Funds Prices Prices as at 26 Sept, 1986

North A Fund Money Fund Overseas Fund Pacific Fund Wall Street Fund

Mortgage Fund Commodity Fund Eurobond Fund Gold Fund Further information can be obtained from:

Tyndail-Guardian Management Ltd. Box 1255, 201 Mechanics Bidg. (Church St., Hamilton 5, Barmuds

Breathtaking Brave

HORSE RACING: Richard Baerlein reports on a record-breaking Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe

KHALID ABDULLA'S Dancing Brave on Sunday put up the most churageous and brilliant performance could g mance ever seen in the Trusthouse Forte Arc de Triomphe at Longchamp to establish himself as one of the great horses of the century.

Even the great Sea Bird did not beat a stronger field than this one which included the English, on the far rails. French and Irish Derby winners, Shardari, the best four-year-old in Europe, the Prix Vermielle winner Darara, and the German horse Acatenango, unbeaten in 12 consecutive races. It was the second year running Khalid Abdulla and Eddery have won France's most prestigious race, but Dancing Brave is in quite another class to last year's winner, Rainbow Quest, as Eddery has been quick to point out.

He took his mount to the wide outside of the field so that there was no chance of any interference. Never has a jockey ridden a Never has a jockey ridden a cooler, patient or more confident race, for all the time he was waiting behind he said he was never in any real danger of defeat. As they swept down to the two-furlong marker Gary Moore made his challenge on the French Derby winner, Bering, and quickly took over from the Aga Khan's trio, Shastrani, Shardari and Darara, who were almost in line. who were almost in line.

No sooner had he done so than

Eddery made his awoop on Dancing Brave and the acceleration of is mount was positively outstand-

Taking the lead about 100 yards out he was going away at double the speed of Bering. The time of 2 minutes 27.7 seconds was a record for the race and he finished 11/2 for the race and he finished 1 1/2 lengths in front of Bering.

Half-a-length back in third the evergreen Triptych, who never runs a bad race, kept the Derby winner Shahrastani out of third place by a short-head. Then there was a neck back to Shardari, with play when they banned the Pontypool international scrum half, David Bishop, from play for the rest of the season. Bishop, aged 25, is barred from playing until

August 31 next year, a period which includes the first World Cup series, to be played in Australia and New Zealand and for which

and New Zealand and for which Bishop might normally have ex-pected to be selected.

The ban follows Bishop being gaoled for a month for assault on an opposing player during a club match, a sentence that was sus-pended on appeal. But the Welsh Burky University that their desi-

Welsh rugby sends a clear message to the game's rowdies WELSH RUGBY UNION sent a clear and severe message to clubs and players last week over foul cause Pontypool had ignored calls clevision contracts and the pre-

Japan's touring rugby players began their atint in England last week by losing 33-22 to Leicester-shire in the county's centenary match. The Japanese party paid the penalty for fielding many second string players but again gave enjoyment through their han-dling and passing. At the weekend they had their second win of the tour in beating Cornwall 36-15, again featuring their running. Canada, meanwhile, ended their four match tour of Ireland by sharing their match with Connacht 27-27.

million, with an option for a third for disciplinary action.

Though none of the Aga Khan's horses could gain a place, his trio ran with great credit and were well in contention until the final

In seventh place came the German horse, Acatenango, who had run a great race throughout, with Steve Cauthen having a clear run

The betting took an unexpected turn, probably owing to the firmish ground. The French turfites did not, as is their wont, support their own soft ground specialist. Bering, although it had been elegated by the property of the state of the s been claimed he was an outstanding champion.
Instead they joined with the English to plunge on Dancing Brave, who returned the rather disappointing price of 11-10. Befors Eddery was announced as the rider a fortnight ago, Dancing Brave was quoted at 7-2 and he gradually hardened as the news came from France that the ground

came from France that the ground was gradually drying up.

Alec Head, who manages the runner-up, Bering, said: "We were beaten by the better horse on the day, and could have done with better ground." Bering's jockey, Gary Moore, added: "No excuses, but Bering was gallant in defeat."

Eddery said: "I have ridden some good horses, including Derby wingood horses, including Derby win-ners, but this was terrific, some-thing quite out of the ordinary."

Dancing Brave has now won just under £800,000, a record for an English trained three-year-old. He will now go for the Breeders' Cup over 11/2 miles on grass at Santa Anita on November 1 when he can double his present winnings.

Eddery won that race last year round. On the 17th green he was on Pebbles and will have no even forced by the seriousness of on Pebbles and will have no trouble on the cramped course because his mount, like Pebbles, has such tremendous speed.
PRIX DE L'ARC DE TRIDMPHE (1½ miles): 1.
Dancing Brave (Pei Eddery): 2. Bering (G. W. Moore): 3. Triplych (A. Cordero): 4. Shahrastani (W. R. Swinburn). Winnig Indiper G. Herwood 2m 27.7s (new race record). Pari-muluel (one tranc state): 2.10, 1.90, 1.50, 6.00, DF: 4.50.

season wrangling over the next season wranging over the next stage of League development. The new deal could be good for both parties; Today is in the process of a re-launch after its birth last March, as the first of the new breed of new technology newspapers, had been less than successful.

But English account is at ill wing.

But English soccer is still miss-

European competition. Last week Scottish and Welsh clubs took part

The second of the

ing the extra lure and cash of memorable year for him, had went mainly Norman's way.

approach to the game, and he scomed totally unsurprised when Lyle handed him that six-up start.

He has spent most of the year six

Lyle lost to Greg Norman by 2

Norman too strong for Lyle

two fine shots to 15 feet at the first, while Norman bunkered his second shot. But, instead of going back to two up, the Australian went four up by holing the sand shot. Sickeners come in many shapes and sizes, but those at the 18th and 19th were brand leaders.

and 1, giving the Australian his third Matchplay title and Lyle his third losing final. It was, in truth, Isth and 19th were brand leaders.
Lyle did manage to get a couple of holes back, but the golf was scrappy in general. There were, however, echoes of earlier rounds with the shots to the pin at the ninth. Lyle hit to six feet, Norman to five feet nine inches — but, typically on this day, both were either iron thirds at this perfour an understated grey day, both in terms of weather and of play: Lyle took 39, four over par, for the first nine of the 36 holes and predict-ably was five down. He went six down after 11, and after that there were no margins.

For Lyle to beat a player of Norman's quality, in the kind of year that the Australian is having, the luck would have to go all one way — for Lyle, against Norman. What luck there was to it now

Three up, nine to play.

Once again Lyle managed to get a couple back, holing a five-footer at the 15th and a 12-footer for a claimed that his bad shots had This was probably the first Suntory final to be won by a man wearing a pink, yellow and tur-quoise sweater. If Norman keeps up his threat never to return to the Matchplay, it could well be the last too. Norman is nothing if not confident, both in outlook and his

A moment later, however, it

SANDY LYLE went to the well twice this week in the Suntory World Matchplay championship at Wentworth. When he tried it a third time, in Sunday's final, it had run dry. The inspiration that had blessed his matches against Tommy Nakajima and Howard Clark, and made this such a memorable year for him, had nament golf. In his opening match he had to beat the precocious talent of Spain's Jose-Maria Olizabal, who has won more than

 Greg Norman said immediately either iron thirds at this par-four Suntory World Matchplay final holo. Lyle missed, Norman holed. Suntory World Matchplay final that he would not be coming back birdie at the 16th. Faint hopes been clapped; that a group of began to glimmer: one down and two to play is hardly a dire they were glad he had missed a was. Forced into taking a driver off ing into the game for some time, the 17th tee, it betrayed him once he said, "but today it was blatant. again by hurtling into the trees on the left, out of bounds. Norman played safely down the right, and not a tournament."

SOCCER RESULTS

Lyle did come back at him over the closing holes of the morning round. On the 17th green he was

He has spent most of the year six up on someone or other, and it was clear that the prospect of adding another $75,000 to the $1 million he has won already did not frighten him.

Lyle did come back at him over the closing holes of the morning round. On the 17th green he was even forced by the seriousness of the situation to uhandoon his usual left-hand-on-left-knee, token abeisance-to-the-ball lining-up routins. He went into a full squat, and holed a 10-footer to get back to three down.

Then, more normally, he missed

TODAY LEAGUE, FIRST DIVISION: Choises 0, Charlon 1: Covening 0, Aston villa 1: Everion 0, Planton 1: Covening 0, Polaton (1) Planton 1: Covening 0, Polaton

Crawe 1: Mailiax 1, Swanera 0; Hereford 2. Peterborough 0; Northempton 4, Aldershot 2, Orlant 1, Southend 0; Rochdale 0, Excete 0. Played Friday: Cambridge 5, Stockpon 0; Colchestur 2, Wresham 1: Transere 2, Torquey 2. Played Sunday: Linocin 1, Hertispool 4; Scunthrope 0, Wolves 2
FINE FARE SCOTTISH LEAGUE, PREMIER DIVIBION: Aberdeen 2, Mothenwell 2, Colinc 2, St Mirran 0; Clydabank 0, Dundae 2; Dundae United 2, Fabrick 0; Hamilton 1, Hiberman 4; Hearis 1, Rengora 4;

Faffurk 0; Hamilton 1, Hilberman 4; Hearts 1, Rengora 1
FIRST DIVISION: Airdne 1, Queen of South 3, Clyde 1, Monton 2; Dumbarron 2, Partick 2; Forfar 3, Duntarnina 3, Klimamock 1, East Fife 1; Montrose 0, Brechin 2, Berovich 0, Alios 2, Berovich 0, Alios 2, Berovich 0, Alios 2, Cueens Park 1; Arbroath 0, East Stirling 0; Cowdenbeath 0, Mesdowbank 2; 8t Johnstone 0, Stranger 3; Stenhousemuir 1, Raith 2; Stirling 0, Ayr 1.

Alan Dunn's DIARY

opening stages of the World Cup tournament among the 12 leading nations. And it couldn't have been changes in the order of events, although Manchester United could a better start for England and Argentina in Pool A of the qualifying stages. England beat New Zealand 3-1, while the Argentines beat the highly rated Pakistanis be said by their most loyal supporters to have turned the tide by drawing 1-1 at the First Division leaders, Nottingham Forest, in England. United still have only by the same score. The two pools of six teams will eventually produce one win from their opening nine games and are second bottom in the division above the new bottom club, Newcastle United, on goal difference. For the city of Mantwo teams each for the semi-final stages with many observers seeing this competition as the most oper

GRAND PRIX motor sport is to phase out turbo-charged engines in the interests of cost and safety. FISA, the world governing body, said at the weekend that they would be phased out over two years in favour of the less powerful normally-aspirated engines of 3.5 litres, which will become obligatory in 1989. In the meantime, turbo engines, which power nearly all cars in Formula One at the moment, will be allowed to contin-ue with separate awards for each category.

BARRY McGUIGAN, so recently the highly popular Irish world featherweight boxing champion, last week issued a writ seeking an end to his relationship with his manager, Barney Eastwood. McGuigan lost his title in the heat drawn Dynamo Kiev, whose players formed the bulk of the Soviet team at the World Cup during the summer. In the UEFA Cup, Rangobservers as coming out of the ed last season not to renew their sitates Craiovs of Romania. In the came to Britain last week with the have deteriorated.

Falkirk 2-0 to stay at the top of the Premier Division by a point from of Las Vegas to Steve Cruz last m. year. The League have been with- ers will meet Boavista of Portugal, Bishop's club was seen by many out a sponsor since Cannon decid- while Dundee United face Univer- HOCKEY at the highest level tween the fighter and manager

Scottish and Welsh clubs took part in the closing leg of the first round with fair success, only Aberdeen and Hearts of the major clubs failing. Glasgow Celtic completed victory over Shamrock Rovers 2-0 (3-0 on aggregate) in the European Cup, while Wrexham beat Malta's Zurrieq 4-0 (7-0) in the Cup Winners' Cup. In the UEFA Cup, Dundee United beat Racing Club Lens 2-0 (2-1), while Glasgow Rangers lost 2-0 at Tampere of Finland but went through 4-2 on given the city of Manchester City are fourth from the bottom with seven points from their nine games. Wimbledon, who in their opening matches in their first season at the highest level took the game by surprise in going to the top, are beginning to settle to a more realistic level at mid-table. They lost at home at the weekend to Liverpool, 3-1, but gave to the match a spirited pended on appeal. But the Walsh Rugby Union said that their decision was based not on the offence, to which Bishop had pleaded guilty, but on his initial denial of being involved. He had conducted himself in a manner prejudicial to the interests of the union and the game, said the union push along the KN flie.

22 P-N5 PxP 23 BxN
also, paradoxically, in a success for the oldest. Leading scores were Pedersen (Denmark) and Norwood 6½9, Hebden and Whiteley 5½, Rodgaard (Faroes) and Ravikumar (India) 4½.

David Norwood, Britain's youngest IM, has won all three NatWest internationals — jointly in 1984 and 1986, outright in 1985, At the success for the oldest. Leading scores were and Norwood 8½9. Hebden and Whiteley 5½, Rodgaard (Faroes) and Ravikumar (India) 4½.

David Norwood, Britain's youngest IM, has won all three NatWest internationals — jointly in 1984 and 1986, outright in 1985, At the success for the india suc Harlequins, a London rugby club, are poised to enliven the domestic scene by signing two New Zealand All Blacks players. Dave Loveridge and Stu Wilson, who have both recently retired from interactional rugby are expected £75 £79 2 Cp. 40 £78 £89 Rangers lost 2-0 at Tampers of Finland but went through 4-2 on aggregate. Aberdeen, whose goal-keeper, Leighton, accred an own goal after five minutes of their Cup Winners' match against Sion of Switzerland, went down 3-0 (4-2), while Hearts were beaten 1-0 by Dukla Prague for an aggregate of 3-3, which gave Dukla the tie on the away goals rule.

weekend to Liverpool, 3-1, but gave to the match a spirited challenge that often disconcerted the champions. Rush scored twice for Liverpool on the way to overtake the club scoring record of 115 goals held by the player-manager, Dalglish. Scotland's European winners stayed in the mood at the weekend, Dundee United beating Falkirk 2-0 to stay at the top of the ame, said the union. Bishop's response was an angry 3 Austin Mustro I JI £83 £94 4 Austin Montego 1 bl. £109 £122 to join forces in the club's first $23.90 33 R-N1 ch K-81 35 R-N8 QxR 37 Q-N5 ch K-K1 39 RxP ch K-Q2 41 Q-N7 B-N7 ch 43 KxR N-N3 45 R-Q4 Reeigne team after initial training outings $27.21 "if everyone involved in a punch-5 1 m Montego Stationwagon E115 E141 6 Austin Montego 2 III. E129 E154 up on a rugby field was reported with secondary teams. £139 £179 8 Nissan Valvia Turbo I S £145 £184 $18.32 for common assault, the country's gaols would be full of rugby players." He said that the ban, 7 Ford Escort XRV Yen 3160 * * * £137 £158 10 Peugent 4045 ft Family 7 seal Stationwagen £189 £287 42 QxB RxQ 44 R-Q1 K-Q2 aion of Lloyds Bank a few weeks $33.38 against which there is no appeal, was a travesty. He would consider legal redress. "I am determined 11 Rover 3MUS ENGLISH SOCCER, still finding £209 £235 12 Ford Graned 2 ML £212 £241 earlier, the normally ebuilient Norwood was downcast with his indifferent result C$10.57 in an interview given to the British Chess Magazine (£1.30 from 9 Market-Street, St Leonards, East Sussex) the refusenik GM Borls Gulko, who has just its sporting image dragged down by hooligan spectators, at last had $27.45 something to smile about last week. Today, the daily newspaper created earlier this year, has de-cided to sponsor the League for the not to take this lying down," he said in an unfortunate turn of the away goals rule.
In the next round, Celtic have 15 Rolls Royce Silver Shadow II 2540 2540 Adams (who achieved his second IM norm at Lloyds) instead of himself for $21.85 left the USSR, was asked if he had phrase, for the man he was guilty $10.35 of assaulting, Newbridge forward OTS AT, Healtrow/Gatwet-Confrait London/Prestwet/Manchesia//Giasgow/Ed For Immediate reservations in U.S.A. and Canada, gelf collect to — U.S.A. — WAYSIDE TRAVEL (312) 423-2113 CANADA — HOWARD TRAVEL (418) 683-8800 b) Phone, Telex direct to Central Reservations — U.K. Area Code 08268-65353 Chris Jarman, was lying pinned by another player when Bishop hit next two years to the tune of £4